

World in Brief

WEED AND PATTY TESTIFY — Patricia Hearst spent 2½ hours Monday telling the Alameda County Grand Jury about her kidnapping February 1974 by the SLA. Her former boyfriend, Steven Weed, with whom she was living in an apartment in Berkeley, Calif., at the time, also testified for 30 minutes. There was no word on what they told the panel. District Attorney Lowell Jensen said he would call about 45 witnesses and seek an indictment charging William and Emily Harris with kidnap, false imprisonment and assault with a deadly weapon. Process Invented To Make Boy Babies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new process of washing semen to separate the stronger sperm from the weaker to increase the chances of pregnancy for childless couples has been developed and patented by Dr. Ronald J. Ericsson of Gametrics Limited of Sausalito, Calif.

The Population Reference Bureau, a nonprofit educational institution, said, "However, associated with it (the new process) is the possibility of increasing the likelihood of male offspring..." Clinics accepting applications for the procedure are asking couples to sign consent forms, which include an acknowledgement "that any baby that is conceived is likely to be male."

The British Pound Continues Its Plunge

LONDON (UPI) — The British pound dropped two cents in London Monday to close at a record low rate of $1.6810, four cents less than a week ago and 10 cents less than at the beginning of September. In New York it closed even lower — $1.6715.

The pound's low value means that holidays in Britain are cheaper than ever for foreign tourists. It also means British goods are cheaper abroad but goods imported into Britain will be more expensive. Money dealers said the pound's decline appeared to be due to a combination of several factors, including the fact that the Bank of England, on government instructions, has not intervened for three weeks to bolster the pound.

Sen. Sparkman Foils Missile Sale Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., after a phone call from Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, got unanimous consent to pull a resolution rejecting missile sales to Saudi Arabia off the Senate calendar and send it back to the Foreign Relations Committee.

Sparkman's move angered supporters of the resolution, who did not know about it until after it was done. Further discussion by the committee will be the first order of business today. In the House the International Affairs Committee Monday was unable to muster a quorum to vote on a disapproval resolution. The House vote could come today.

United Way Tightens Its Accounting for Spending

(United Way of Ulster County needs to raise $401,000 between now and November to help operate its 17 member agencies during the coming year. This is the first in a series of stories about United Way, its members and their services to citizens of Ulster County. — Editor.)

With 17 member agencies each providing much needed help in the community, United Way of Ulster County is faced with the task of deciding what share of the donations it raises each member will receive.

The final allocations are made by the United Way's Board of Directors, but the groundwork for that decision is done by the organization's budget and allocations committee, chaired by Kingston accountant C. Lester Legg. Legg's committee, composed of five members, reviews the budgets of each agency and then presents the information to the board.

"One thing to remember," says Legg, "is that none of the agencies is entirely funded by the United Way. Some agencies, like the Association for Retarded Children, receive federal money. Others get money from the state and some from Ulster County. What we provide is the money they need above what is raised from outside sources."

By way of example, an agency with a budget of $100,000 may raise as much as $75,000 from grants, membership, and fundraising events. The United Way would provide the agency with the $25,000 it needs to carry out its programs.

In order to become a member of United Way the agency must submit a list of programs for approval. Any programs that are not approved are not eligible for funding. This can cause problems.

"What we do," said Legg referring to his committee, "is review the agency's budget and determine if they have expanded any programs to encompass areas not previously approved. If they have, we present the information to the board who must then determine if the programs are viable and eligible for approval."

Legg notes that by their very nature the organizations tend to expand programs. Then the situation tends to get complex.

"If an agency has a program entitled recreation for children, they may have been providing baseball, football, and basketball. This year they may want to add soccer to the program. It's still recreation for children, but they need approval for additional funding."

The budgets of the agencies are reviewed annually and in 1975 the by-laws of the United Way were amended to provide greater accountability. The amendment is based on guidelines drawn up by a task force of representatives of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the National Health Council, the National Assembly of National Volunteer Health Organizations and the United Way of America. In addition, the United Way of America has issued a new set of standards for accounting and financial reporting.

"What we've done," says Legg, "is condense the new guidelines for local use. What may be useful to a national organization in New York City may not be appropriate for the local Boys Club. The basic difference is that the agencies must now itemize expenditures in each of their programs as opposed to the old system of listing program expenses in bulk."

Legg, who attends about 20 meetings each fall as chairman of the budget and allocations committee, has held seminars to familiarize the agencies with the new guidelines. He says it's too soon to tell what problems the new system may give rise to.

Property Owners Told HUD Help Is Coming Soon

Low Cost Loans On Way Downtown

Backed by neighborhood advisory chairman Richard M. Kalish and maps of Broadway West, Community Development Director Ralph A. Marallo rises with good news for the skeptics.

KINGSTON — Property owners in the downtown Broadway West area were told last night they should be eligible for low-interest rehabilitation loans within weeks. The rest of a $470,000 public improvement program for the area should be underway by springtime, officials said.

Countering doubts among residents about the long-discussed program for the long-deteriorating neighborhood, Community Development Director Ralph A. Marallo said federal money is finally ready.

Just this week, Marallo said, federal HUD officials released the remaining $260,000 for the Broadway West program. That money comes from the city's second-year entitlement under the federal community development program, and the first $210,000 comes from first-year funds.

Of the $470,000, some $40,000 would go into an "up front" loan pool that would encourage local banks to loan money for private rehabilitation in the Rondout and Broadway West area. With federal help, property owners would pay 3 per cent interest on 10-year loans, Marallo said.

Some of the two dozen area residents and businessmen were skeptical about the loans, but Marallo said arrangements have been made with one bank and are being made with two others.

Loans could average $5,000 per dwelling unit — for example, a two-family house would qualify for $10,000 — and no property owner would be refused because of low personal income, Marallo said.

Frank H. Simpson Jr., owner of a commercial and residential building on West Strand, said he resented asking property owners to go into debt to improve their properties before most of the public improvements begin on Broadway West.

Simpson also doubted the commercial wisdom of rehabilitating property in that neighborhood: "I could have a mansion there, but I still couldn't get any income from my building because the whole area is a dump," he said.

Richard M. Kalish, chairman of the neighborhood advisory committee which called the meeting, asked the property owners "not to be pessimistic. The only way we're going to succeed is to have everybody cooperate with us."

Broadway West rehabilitation is seen as a possible catalyst to private reinvestment in the nearby Broadway East area, where major commercial redevelopment has failed to follow a $15 million urban renewal program that demolished most of the old neighborhoods.

Real estate broker Helen R. Quigley, recalling negotiations with one prospective Broadway East developer, said if brokers "could have done something with Broadway West, we could have consummated that deal."

"I look on the positive side," Marallo said. "If we do something positive here (in Broadway West), there may be a reaction over there."

Annie Jackson, longtime East Strand resident, wasn't as optimistic: "I was at the first meeting that was held. I am still here. I hope I live long enough to see (Broadway East) restored," she said.

Still a major hangup in the Broadway West plan, as it was when details were announced this past spring, is finding an engineer to handle final designs and get

MARKETBASKET Cost Of Food Down Again

KINGSTON — Food prices in the city dropped .7 per cent for the seven day period ending September 24, marking the second consecutive decline in as many weeks.

The Ulster County Consumer Information Service branch of the District Attorney's office has released figures indicating the 41-item market basket cost $65.53 for the week. The same foods were priced at $65.97 for the week ending September 17.

The market basket index is based on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Moderate Cost Family Food Plan and includes the various amounts of foods which should be consumed to provide a nutritious diet for a family of four.

The only products which showed price increases were fresh fruits and vegetables, up 8.7 per cent and beverages, up 2.4 per cent. The largest single category decrease in price was grain products, down 4.1 per cent over the previous week.

Market basket information is based on a survey of at least three Kingston chain supermarkets.

Dutchess Buys Part of Spada

Garbage Routes Sold

KINGSTON — Dutchess Sanitation, currently in a legal dispute with Plattekill officials over dumping non-local garbage at its landfill in that town, has bought out the commercial routes of Spada Sanitation of Kingston.

The sale, completed last week for an undisclosed sum, won't affect Spada's pending contract with the City of Kingston to take away municipal trash and garbage from the city's new transfer station, officials said.

At the same time it sold its several hundred commercial pickups to Dutchess, Spada also sold its residential routes in Kingston and Ulster, serving about 1,000 homes, to Ulster Sanitation Co.

Dutchess Sanitation, a large and growing Poughkeepsie-based firm, will give its new Kingston and Ulster customers "much better service than I was able to give," said Michael G. Spada, owner of Spada Sanitation.

Spada, who for years has run a local construction and trucking firm, got into the garbage business in mid-1975 when he bought out Elliott Refuse Co., an Town of Ulster-based firm, and it was basically these customers who have been resold to Dutchess and Ulster Sanitation, Spada said.

Spada said he decided to get out of the commercial and residential side of the business this year "because there are too many headaches. You've gotta be nuts to be in that business."

Spada said his company still definitely intends to go through with its contract with the city after the new municipal transfer station is completed, probably sometime next year.

Under that setup, the city will take over all refuse collection, garbage and trash, and deliver it to the transfer station. After compaction, the combined refuse will be taken from the transfer station by Spada to a private landfill.

As yet, Spada said, he was "not at liberty" to announce at what landfill the municipal refuse would be dumped — but it wouldn't be at Dutchess' Plattekill

Fewer Flu Shots for Adult 'Low Risks'

ALBANY — A project co-ordinator for the state swine flu immunization program said this morning that there will be only enough of the vaccine available to immunize 55 per cent of the adult low-risk population this year.

Clarence Wysecup of the N.Y.S. Health Department explained that the federal government will only be providing the state with a little over half the monovalent vaccine requested — that's the type used in shots to adults between 18 and 60 years old who have no chronic illnesses.

There will be enough vaccine for senior citizens and persons in the high-risk category, such as those with diabetes, heart, kidney, lung or other respiratory diseases, who would be most susceptible to the new strain of influenza.

The state is expecting its first shipment of vaccine sometime this week and Wysecup says that he will be getting it right out to county agencies responsible for the immunization programs.

The Ulster County Department of Health has scheduled a full week of County Gets Reprieve On Jail Renovation

KINGSTON — Ulster County won an 11th hour reprieve Monday from having to spend $200,000 to implement state-mandated contact visits for jail prisoners.

State Corrections Commissioner Joseph Wasser informed Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone and other county jail administrators that "recent developments call for a different approach to contact visitation requirements."

Just yesterday, Peter R. Kehoe, executive director of the New York State Sheriff's Association said that 28 counties had "refused to appropriate funds for state-mandated jail minimum standards," calling them "unsound" and "irresponsible."

At present, visitors to the jail can speak to — but not touch — prisoners through tiny windows separated by stall-like compartments. Conversations are easily overheard by visitors in adjoining cubicles.

Earlier this month, the Ulster County Legislature voted to hire architect Albert F. Milliken's firm to devise drawings for the renovation of the jail's visiting area in accordance with the state mandate calling for contact visits.

Sheriff Mayone estimated it would cost $200,000 for additional manpower to police the open area.

Wasser explained the delay in implementing contact visits on two recent developments:

- A governor's task force is looking into the long-range use of local facilities with particular emphasis on the possibility of greater utilization for state inmates. Any move in this direction would require a new formula for any flow of state and federal funds to local facilities. (When the new Ulster County Jail was opened several years ago, the state suggested at the time that perhaps in the future it could take care of a larger, area population of prisoners.)
- A second development is the continuing revision of minimum standards by the commission. While the great majority of these will not entail major structural modification, a few of them will — notably in the area of indoor and

Caution Greets Catskill Plan

NEW PALTZ — Local officials are taking a wait and see attitude toward State Environmental Conservation Commissioner Peter Berle's latest proposal for a commission to study land use planning in the Catskill region.

Berle was to release today a 15-volume report urging the creation of a Catskill Regional Land Resources Management Commission.

To help defuse local opposition, which in the past has centered around the loss of home rule, Berle said he would seek the appointment of an advisory panel made up of local tax experts to study the relationship between land use controls and local property tax values.

Peter Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature said he would have to see the proposal before offering comment.

However, he did leave the door open to the possibility that such a plan could benefit the local area.

"What I am opposed to," said Savago, "is the bureaucracy coming into this area and denying local input."

Similar reaction was expressed by Denning Supervisor Harold Van Aken and Hardenburgh Supervisor Lester Bourke.

"Perhaps there should be some land use planning," said Bourke, "but any proposals I've seen up to this point have indicated a loss of personal control by the individuals who own the property in question."

According to Berle's plan, the new commission — which would need approval by the State Legislature — would be a seven-member panel appointed by the governor. At least five of the members would be representatives of the counties of Ulster, Green, Sullivan, Delaware and Schoharie.

Although the issue surrounding regional planning in the Catskill area has been debated for years, Berle said, "The problems of land use in the Catskills have not diminished. Rather they have intensified. If further deterioration of the resources and economic base is to be avoided, prompt and purposeful state and local action is required to redefine the arrangement for air, land and water resource management."

The new study reportedly includes data compiled by the now defunct Temporary State Commission to Study the Catskills.

Mona Had Eating Troubles, Too

Dr. Naruo Nakamura, a heart specialist at Tokyo's Keio University, points to yellowing in the corner of Mona Lisa's left eye which he says is an indication the Florentine matron suffered from high cholesterol. Nakamura made this diagnosis after studying prints of the famous Da Vinci portrait and confirming that the yellow was not a discoloration but part of the original painting. Nakamura suggested that she over indulged in fatty foods and probably "ate her way to an early grave."

Ivan Accepts an Offer

MOSCOW (UPI) — Baku, the capital of Soviet Azerbaijan and an oil center, has accepted an invitation to become a "twin city" to Houston, Texas.

The Tass news agency said Monday city officials have invited a delegation from Houston to visit the Caspian Sea city to work out a program.

Baku traces its history to the 10th century. With a population of 1.4 million, it is the fifth largest city in the Soviet Union.

It's a Bloomin' Change

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Trees along northeast coastal shorelines are in bloom again, confused by Tropical Storm Belle into thinking it is springtime.

Salt spray kicked up by gale force winds on Aug. 9 burned tree leaves, turning them brown. Residents and experts now report new leaves emerging from the seared brown branches.

Tree specialists said tropical storms and hurricanes bring in the salt spray but it is usually washed off by the heavy rain that follows. When Belle struck Aug. 9, she brought no rain.

The salt injury stretches east as far as New Bedford, Mass., and southwest along the Connecticut coast and onto Long Island.

Tom Corell, a county extension agent on Long Island, said the trees there took the brunt of the storm and their confusion was dramatic.

Schuler Names 25 For MTA Study

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) —

State Transportation Commissioner Raymond Schuler has named 25 persons to help him in studying the Metropolitan Transportation Authority. The group, appointed Monday, will constitute a Citizens Advisory Committee. Schuler is directing the management study of the MTA at the request of Gov. Hugh Carey.

A spokesman for the department said the study, begun earlier this year, would take "18 or 20 more months." Thus far, he said, the department team had "defined the parameters of the study," which centers on the management, finances and operations of the MTA.

The commissioner said Theodore Halperin of the Bronx, an attorney and chairman of the transportation committee of the city Bar Association, would head the advisory panel.

The other members were named from the education, transportation, social sciences and related fields.

He stressed that there would be a "definite work program carried out by the committee," including the holding of public forums in the MTA's service area and independent examinations of the authority's structure, operations and responsiveness to the public. The advisory committee will also review the work of the staff of the management study and will prepare a final report, Schuler said.

"When we undertook this study, I pledged that it would be an open one, with broad participation by the public," Schuler said.

"This committee will be an important means of doing that," he said, by providing the study with the "independent thoughts of the public."

Jimmy Carter Labels Ford Worst President Than Richard Nixon

(By UPI)

Jimmy Carter, defending his sex-spiced Playboy interview for several days, is on the attack this week, calling President Ford a worse president than Richard Nixon and questioning administration motives in Africa.

While Carter cut a campaign swath from the Pacific Northwest through the Midwest and on home to Plains today, Ford was busy Monday in his challenger's Southern homeland, courting Cuban-Americans among others in a visit to Florida before returning to Washington.

Ford's main theme Monday was crime, and his plans to combat it over the next four years. Speaking to a National Police Chiefs convention, he said, "It is time to give the streets back to law-abiding citizens, and to put the criminals behind bars."

As Ford was envisioning his future to audiences and preparing for briefings on Rhodesia today, Carter, who spent much of last week explaining his "adultery in my heart" statement, concentrated Monday on the administration record to date.

"Richard Nixon was bad enough," the Democratic presidential candidate told an Evansville, Ind., audience, "It's been worse the past two years."

"We've had four times the deficit average under Gerald Ford as we had under Richard Nixon," he charged. Carter said Ford's vetoes were not geared to saving money, but "designed to keep people out of work."

Turning to foreign affairs, Carter said the administration initiative on the Rhodesian question "has been a tardy thing, and whether or not it was brought about by the election-year considerations, I don't know."

After an embarrassingly small turnout for his appearance in a southern California Latin community Sunday, Carter campaign officials said Hispanic adviser, Alex Aguiar, will be replaced by a new committee, but they insisted the decision was made before Sunday's snafu. The turnout for Carter was several thousand below expectations.

The League of Women Voters announced Monday the Oct. 6 Ford-Carter debate in San Francisco will be held at 9:30 p.m. EDT at the Palace of Fine Arts.

GOP vice presidential candidate Bob Dole mentioned Williamsburg, Va., to an interviewer asking about the site of the third Ford-Carter debate Oct. 22. Later, Dole said he only spoke of the historic city as a possible site.

The last of the nine.

Tremper House Goes Begging

KINGSTON — It's back to the think tank on the future of the Tremper House now that no private bidders have come forth to buy the historic building at 3 North Front St. for a minimum $75,000.

Friday's deadline for receiving "proposals of interest" on private purchase of the building came and went without a single bid, said James G. Connors, executive director of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency.

Connors didn't rule out the possibility that the KURA might now consider private bids lower than the $75,000 minimum: "We can listen," he said.

"We will still continue to investigate all possible uses of the building, both private and public," Connors said.

The 175-year-old house, the last of nine Stockade Area buildings saved from urban renewal whose future is still undecided, once was considered for restoration as a public museum or cultural center.

A $40,000 IBM grant was used to restore the exterior of the three-story house. A 1973 agreement between KURA and the Kingston Landmark Preservation Commission to raise funds for interior restoration failed to bring any sizeable private donations, Connors said.

"We don't have a deadline on this matter. It would be impractical to have one," he said.

Connors said the KURA would continue to confer with the commission and other city agencies about final disposition of the property.

Green Light for Revenue Sharing With Extra Rights Protection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Weary House-Senate negotiators agreed early today to give state and local governments $25.6 billion in revenue sharing over nearly four years and to strengthen the program's civil rights protections.

The agreement, which now goes to the House and Senate for final approval, would extend the revenue sharing, due to expire at the end of December, through September 1980. States and localities have received $30 billion under the program since 1972.

The extension was a hard-fought compromise between a House bill providing $25 billion over 3 1/2 years and a Senate bill, backed by the administration, providing $41 billion over 5 1/2 years.

A conference committee of eight senators and 10 representatives argued for 10 1/2 hours and wearily reached agreement at 12:30 a.m. EDT.

The conference bill:

- Says localities may not discriminate against a person because of age, handicap or religion in any program financed in whole or in part with revenue sharing funds.
- Adds new procedures under which an administrative law judge, after a hearing, could suspend funds to a locality he finds is discriminating. The locality could appeal to the courts. The federal government could initiate civil rights suits against localities.
- Allows citizens to file suits charging discrimination or other violations of the revenue sharing law and try to have funds suspended, terminated or even refunded to Washington. If the citizens win, courts could make localities pay their attorneys' fees.
- Gives citizens more say in how revenue sharing funds will be used by providing for two separate public hearings.
- Removes a requirement in the present law that they be used in several broad priorities such as public safety, environment and health.
- The bill also promises all the money in advance with no annual appropriations by Congress.

Syrians, Christians Launch Battle To Liberate the Lebanon Mountains

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrians and Christians launched a major attack against Palestinian guerrillas in the mountains northeast of Beirut today in what appeared to be the start of a long-expected thrust to rout them from their strategic positions.

Christian forces brought reinforcements from the east and the north and said the "most decisive battle" of Lebanon's 17-month civil war had begun.

"It's started," said a Christian spokesman. "The battle to liberate our mountains has begun."

Palestinian spokesmen said the Syrians launched a "massive, all-out attack" at dawn with armored thrusts from two directions on the main Palestinian positions at Aintouria and Metein, 20 miles northeast of Beirut. The Christians opened a separate front against the Palestinians from the northwest.

The Palestinians said the Syrians and Christians had thrown heavy artillery, rockets and tanks into the "full-scale" battle.

Syrian MIG jetfighters were reported flying over the battle lines but there were conflicting reports as to whether they actually were being used in the attack.

Palestinians said Syrian forces massed at Sofar, 15 miles southeast of Beirut, thrust north to cut the main Palestinian supply line leading into the mountains while other Syrian troops in the eastern Bekaa Valley pushed westward toward Aintouria.

Palestinian reports indicated that Hamana, the first major town along their supply route a few miles north of Sofar, had been captured.

Syrian forces opened heavy artillery and rocket fire on the mountain village of Aley, the stronghold of Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt, a leftist-Palestinian military communique said.

The Palestinian-leftist leadership met in emergency session under Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and a leftist broadcast said they sent an urgent message to the Arab League in Cairo, where Jumblatt is meeting with Egyptian officials.

The attack had been expected ever since the collapse of Syrian-Palestinian peace talks nine days ago that ended in what both sides described as "complete failure" to agree over the terms of mountain withdrawals.

Bodies, wearing placards, hang from the gallows in downtown Damascus outside the Hotel Semiranis. The three men and an accomplice, who was killed, had seized the hotel Sept. 26 and held hostages before they were captured by Syrian troops. Thousands of persons crowded to within 50 yards of the hanging, the first held publicly in Damascus since the execution 11 years ago of an accused Israeli spy.

ZAND UNDER FIRE

Logan Says He Didn't Follow Board's Orders

NEW PALTZ— New Paltz Village Trustee John Logan last night berated Village Attorney J. Phillip Zand for failing to follow a directive issued by the board at its August meeting.

At that time the board adopted a resolution which directed Zand to see to it that 12 apartments on Pencil Hill Road were evacuated because the owner did not have a certificate of occupancy.

Logan's outburst was brought about when Mayor John Vett read a letter from Zand in which the attorney explained why he didn't think action should be taken at this time. According to Zand, attorneys for Pencil Hill Properties' principle owner Vincent Germano are asking that they be supplied with all material relevant to the 1968 adoption of the village zoning ordinance in order to determine if the village took all the proper steps in its adoption. Logan saw this as merely a delaying tactic in order to reach an out of court settlement.

"This man is renting those apartments without a certificate of occupancy and that seems to be the issue as far as I'm concerned," said Logan. "I'd like to see the law enforced on everybody, including the rich and powerful who seem to be able to get to our public officials."

According to Mayor Vett, this situation dates back to the spring of 1975 when Germano brought suit against the village for overassessment. The village hired a Syracuse assessor to examine the complex and make the necessary recommendations. The assessor reportedly found that Germano was under-assessed since he claimed to have only 60 apartments when he was renting 72. A check of village records indicated that Germano had submitted to the New Paltz Planning Board a plan for 60 apartmentz with 12 additional units listed as utility rooms. He was never granted a certificate of occupancy for the 12 units as apartments.

Logan offered a resolution last night that would have redirected Zand to see to it that the apartments were evacuated, but the motion failed to receive support from a majority on the five member board.

Trustee George Ackert abstained, saying he would like to meet with Zand before any further action was taken. Citing similar reasons Trustee O. Lincoln Igou and Vett voted against the measure. Trustee Judith Fractenburg supported Logan.

Outraged that the board did not support the resolution, Logan noted that it was Igou who introduced the same resolution last month.

"We directed Zand to take action and he took none," said Logan.

"It seems to me that his action was to take no action," said Igou.

"I give up," said Logan, throwing his hands in the air.

The board agreed to meet with Zand in executive session on Wednesday night to discuss the matter.

In other action the board approved a measure that authorizes the Village Planning Board to submit an application for money from the federal government's Local Public Works Capital Development and Investment Program. The village is seeking $102,000 to complete their Main St. sewer system. Vett noted that the money was in addition to the $95,000 being sought from the Community Development Program.

The board meeting was preceded by a public hearing on the village's pending adoption of the New York State Fire Prevention Code. Former New Paltz Fire Chief Bruce Ashton said the measure was long overdue and he supported its adoption. The board did not take any action on the measure during the regular meeting.

AARP Plans Dinner, Bus Trips

NEW PALTZ — Jessie Shepard, Teresa Abbruzzese and Margaret Glancy reported on the June AARP workshop for 109 members and 18 guests at the recent meeting of Ulster County Chapter 975, American Association of Retired Persons.

At the chapter's next meeting on Monday, Oct. 4, Dr. Edward Quinn, a New Paltz rheumatologist, will show an film on arthritis and answer questions from the audience. A blood pressure clinic will precede the 1 p.m. meeting at the VFW Building, Route 208, New Paltz.

AARP state director Arthur

Burgess will be the guest speaker at the chapter's fifth anniversary dinner at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 26, at Dominic's Restaurant, New Paltz. A cocktail hour will precede the dinner, which is under the direction of Frances Brooks.

The following bus trips are planned, all leaving from Simmons Plaza, New Paltz: Oct. 6,

9, New Hampshire-Vermont tour, bus leaves at 9 a.m. (a few seats still available); Oct. 21, Belmont Race Track, Long Island; Nov. 14, dog races,

Green Mountain Track, Pownal, Vermont; Dec. 3, Radio City Music Hall to see Elizabeth Taylor in "The Bluebird."

Payroll Met, No Debt

HIGHLAND — The Highland Central School District has met payrolls without having to borrow money, business manager Robert Demarest said Monday.

Taxes received from the Town of Lloyd, normally paid Sept. 1, were delayed this year by a dispute between assessor

Robert Kerwick and the assessment board of review. Tax bills to the residents of the school district were mailed out Monday, and Demarest said he anticipated no trouble in meeting the next payroll Oct. 13.

The district was able to meet the two September payrolls because it had a surplus from the 1975-76 school year of $250,000.

"We really had to scrape the bottom of this barrel for the last one," Demarest said.

The deadline for late filing without penalty will be extended to Oct. 27, Demarest said.

Blood Pressure Clinic

SAUGERTIES — The Saugerties Jaycees, in conjunction with the Paramont Pharmacy, will sponsor a blood pressure clinic Wednesday at the pharmacy from 1 to 3 p.m.

The clinic will be conducted under the auspices of the MidHudson Heart Association Inc. To make the clinic run smoother, two persons will be present to take pressure readings.

Jaycees say it is important to have blood pressure checked periodically. More than 23 million persons have high blood pressure, and since it has no symptoms, half of them do not know it. High blood pressures increases the risk of stroke, heart failure, kidney failure and heart attack. Saugerties residents are urged to attend the clinic.

Dems To Open HQ

SAUGERTIES — Saugerties Democrats will formally open their headquarters at 92 Partition Street Friday, Sept. 24, at 7 p.m.

Democratic candidates for the Senate, House of Representatives, State Assembly, county treasurer, county coroner, and Saugerties Town

Justice have been invited. All Town of Saugerties voters are invited to attend and join the candidates, party officials, present- and past-elected officials at the event. Refreshments will be served.

Further information may be obtained from Chairman Milton Sommers or Vice Chairmam Jane Chodaba.

POLICE BEAT

Second Trial Ends in No Verdict

KINGSTON—For the second time in a year, an Ulster County jury failed to bring in a verdict in the case against 21-year-old Corey Bell, of Ellenville, who was charged with felony sale of drugs.

Bell was arrested in a 1975 drug raid involving five Ellenville residents who were allegedly found to be in possession of 50 decks of heroin, 40 "hits" of cocaine and a quantity of marijuana.

Corey went on trial in September of 1975 and again earlier this month. After six hours of deliberation the jury announced that it could not reach a decision.

Barry Lippman represented Bell and Assistant District Attorney Robert Francello prosecuted the case. Judge Raymond J. Mino presided.

A Brief Escape

A Rochester man, who escaped briefly from police custody Monday night in Woodstock, is in Ulster County Jail today in lieu of $500 bail.

George Wasserman, 22, is charged with criminal mischief in the fourth degree and resisting arrest.

It is alleged that he broke a public bench on the Village Green in Woodstock and was proceeding to remove flags from a monument on the green when he was arrested.

Wasserman fought off state troopers and Woodstock Police Department officers when they attempted to arrest him and fought them again while being taken into custody at Woodstock Police Department. He escaped into the street and was apprehended not far from the police station.

Burglary Solved

Another Town of Ulster burglary was solved with the arrest of James McDonough, North Drive, Glenrie about 2 p.m. Monday.

Ulster County Sheriff Department Burglary Division arrested the 19-year-old youth who allegedly took property from a private residence on Sept. 16.

McDonough was arraigned before Ulster Justice John Gotelli and committed to Ulster County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail pending a court appearance Oct. 7.

Area Thefts

• Two parking meters from Green Street, Kingston, one of which was later found in an excavation on Hurley Avenue. The meters are valued at $110 each.

• An eight-track tape player worth $70, taken from a car parked outside the home of Mrs. J. J. Loeffler, 87 Abryn. • Four hanging plants valued at $50, from the porch of Mrs. Charles Miliman, 41 Wurts St., Kingston.

• A $25 hanging plant from the porch of Mrs. Louis F. Berardi, 142 Hooker St., Kingston.

• A hanging plant from the home of Thomas Rizzi, 113 Cedar St., Kingston.

HUD

all the jobs out to contract by next spring, Marallo said.

Engineering for community development's entire $2 million, three-neighborhood rehabilitation program — covering the Ponckhockie and Midtown East areas as well as Rondout-Broadway West — has been done by the city engineer, but that arrangement has "run into a snag," Marallo said.

On the brighter side, Marallo hoped to sign up an architecture student and save part of the $21,000 set aside for architectural services on facade restoration along West Strand and Broadway.

Another optimistic note was the hope that cruise ships like the one that visited the Rondout docks last week may make Kingston a permanent part of their schedule, Marallo said.

In connection with that, Marallo asked for and received no objections to moving playground equipment from the dock area to Cornell Park, where improvements already are underway.

A summary of the $470,000 program includes:

For Entire Rondout Area
• Rehabilitation loan pool, $40,000.
• Miscellaneous improvements outside Broadway West (defined as the area bounded by Spring, Wurts, Broadway and West Strand), $60,000.

For Broadway West
• Emergency repair program to preserve structures worthy of rehabilitation, $20,000.

• Public improvements, including Cornell Park renovation, as well as new streets, sidewalks and utilities for Post, Hunter, Abeel and West Union Streets, $110,000.

• Facade renovation, $75,000.
• Related architectural services, $21,000.

• Acquisition and removal of three sub-standard properties, $25,000.
• Development of "Interim West Strand Plaza," $60,000.

The latter project has been snagged because the manufacturers who now own the old Freeman building can't give a long-term lease on the parking lot, Marallo said.

Homeowners who apply for loans may be permitted to do the work themselves. Otherwise, the community development office will set up a contractors pool, put work out to bid, and award jobs to low bidders, Marallo said.

JAIL

outdoor recreational space. It is expected that any standards with major structural ramifications will be fully studied within the next few months prior to implementation, Wasserman explained.

While contact visits are temporarily deferred, the commissioner reaffirmed the commission's commitment to the provision for such visits. He suggested that other facilities which are already in the process of installing open visiting areas should continue to do so for their own long-term benefit.

Contact visits were but one of six minimum standards to be implemented by Oct. 1, according to State directives.

Mayone said he can "live with" the others, which include increasing, by one, the number of letters an inmate may send out each week at county expense. Prisoners may now send one letter per week at no cost and as many as they wish at their own expense.

Minimum standards were also to be increased to allow news media visits to inmates which, Mayone pointed out, have been permitted since he has been in office.

Mayone sees the contact visit mandate as costly and cumbersome. He estimates that construction costs would amount to about $5,000 to dispense with a wall and install a table and benches. But he envisions the need for 12 men to maintain security under the new setup — at a cost of $200,000.

SPADA

landfill, he said.

Joseph A. Fiorello, a principal in Dutchess Sanitation, said he couldn't comment on the sale or on the landfill dispute other than to say his company would serve Kingston and Ulster customers "to the best of our ability."

Dutchess was enjoined by the State Supreme Court in April from dumping anything but "dry construction materials" at its 74-acre Plattkill landfill until the courts rule on a recent town ordinance forbidding the disposal of any non-local garbage (food and other contaminable wastes) within the community.

"It's all up to the judge," Fiorello said.

The Spada deal won't be Dutchess' first entry into the Kingston area, Fiorello said. The company has had "some contracts" here in the past, he said.

Dutchess bought out Hertel Enterprises, a refuse company in southern Ulster County, last year at about the same time Spada was buying out Elliott.

Dutchess began operations in New York City in 1905 and has been operating in the Poughkeepsie area for the past 22 years, Fiorello said.

Spada's deal with the City of Kingston will be based on tonnage carried and should come to roughly $250,000 a year, Mayor Francis R. Koenig said.

That deal will bring to an end a contract the city has had in recent years with Kingston Area Sanitation Service for pickup and disposal of contaminable garbage.

Non-contaminable trash had been picked up by municipal trucks and dumped at the Kingston Point landfill until this month when the city made a temporary deal to dump trash at the Town of Ulster landfill until the Kingston transfer station can be built, probably at a cost of $300,000 to $400,000, Koenig said.

FLU

vaccine shot beginning October 18, but program co-ordinator Helen Gneis P.H.N. wasn't sure how the 55 per cent cut-back announcement would affect the local program.

The state office had not yet informed regional and local agencies of the change in availability.

"I'll just be glad if we get the 64,000 shots we were promised," commented Ms. Gneis who explained that the county had estimated that about 70 per cent of the over 18 population would want the vaccine. Roughly estimating that would mean about 80,000 people.

Ms. Gneis was not sure if the 64,000 dose figure initially promised by the state already reflected the percentage cut or if the state would now only provide a little more than half of about 35,000 vaccinations.

"Well we're just going to bone up for the maximum number and then we'll be prepared for whatever come along," she said.

According to Wysecup traditional flu season runs from about December through March, but he was unsure of how this new strain would act.

"It's also a possibility that we will be receiving more of the vaccine in December...the government has not been specific on that point, but it is a possibility. That would mean enough vaccine to immunize every one in the state."

The state health official also commented that the wide spread publicity both for and against the program has added another dimension to the nation-wide vaccination scheme.

he said.

Unofficial surveys reported to the department indicate that at least 70 per cent of urban populations want the vaccine. Rural and farming areas have indicated that they were more undecided about whether or not to participate in the program.

An information brochure being circulated by the Health Department urges all adults to "get your shot!" and states that the possibility of adverse reactions from the inoculation are less than 2 in every 100.

The flyer also says that the vaccine is safe for pregnant women and will provide some protection against a Victoria (last year's) strain of influenza as well as swine flu.

Obituaries

Hotaling

Richard Frederick Hotaling, 40, of Cape Canaveral, Fla., died suddenly at his home Monday. Born Nov. 5, 1935, he was the son of Howard and the late Rilla Frederick Hotaling. He was employed by Pan American Airlines as an electronics technician, and was a U.S. Air Force veteran. In addition to his father, he is survived by: a sister, Bernice Anner of Pembroke Lake, Fla.; four brothers: Leslie of St. Remy; Robert of Jacksonville, Fla.; William H. of Binnewater; and Howard Hotaling Jr. of Kingston; and several nieces and nephews. Entrusted to the care of W.N. Conner Funeral Home, funeral services will be held at the Marbltown Cemetery at the convenience of the family.

Studt

Mrs. Dorothy Studt of 56 Hooker St. died in Kingston Hospital Monday. Born in Kingston, she was the daughter of the late William and Anna Schleele Peters. She was a member of Immanuel Lutheran Church. Her husband, George M. Studt, died in 1964. Surviving are: a daughter, Mrs. Floyd (Christine) Helmreich of Port Huron, Mich.; two sons: Carl F. and James W. # Pre-planning a funeral costs you nothing.

Yet the savings can go beyond money.

Pre-planning a funeral does not necessarily mean even signing a commitment. It simply means making your wishes, or those of a relative, a matter of record before the need arises.

By this thoughtful act, you eliminate the pressures of last-minute, disconcerting decisions and make a difficult time less trying.

National Selected Morticians has prepared an impartial booklet that tells the hows and whys of pre-planning and shows what you can do today to ease some of the burdens that must be faced by someone, someday.

Hooker Chemical Pollution Probe

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — A three-day probe aimed at determining what pollutants the giant Hooker Chemical Corp. plant may be dumping into the Niagara River continued today.

A team of 20 federal and state scientists arrived at the plant Monday and began taking samples from 14 sites within the industrial complex.

The investigation was also trying to determine the source of Mirex pollution of Lake Ontario, one of the scientists said.

The group, which included experts from the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the state Department of Environmental Conservation, was headed by John Cincia, of the EPA's Edison, N.J., Surveillance and Monitoring Division.

"This is a 3-day study to continually sample outflow to determine whether Mirex is still entering the Niagara River," Cincia said. "This will be done by taking samples in specially prepared bottles every four hours at all sanitary, sewer and internal discharge points."

He said one set of sample bottles would then be analyzed by Hooker, another by the EPA and the third by an independent New Orleans laboratory.

Mirex, a highly toxic pesticide which has been linked to cancer, has been found in high concentrations in Lake Ontario fish and water samples recently. A ban has been issued on taking several species of fish from the lake because of the chemical's presence.

Marriage Encounter Great

Dear Editor:

We read with much interest the article, "Marriage Encounter" written by Tim Schuster in your Sept. 22 edition.

Super Sunday, Oct. 3 at Coleman High School at 7:30 p.m. will be the beginning of a wonderful and love filled experience that will be with people for the rest of their lives.

We can say this because we were privileged to attend an informational meeting and then a weekend of marriage encounter.

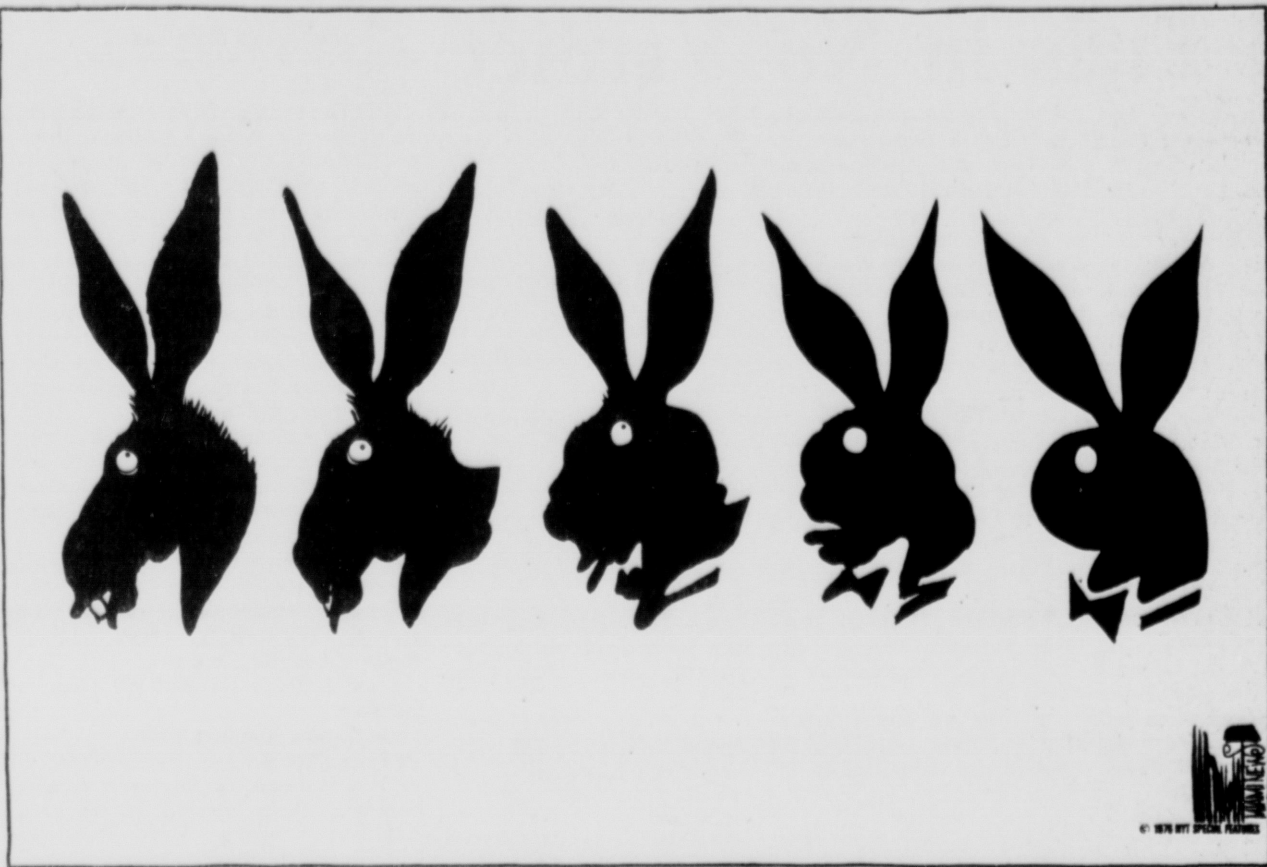

We at first resisted the idea strongly because on Oct. 16, we will be married 33 years. We could not imagine what any one could add to our marriage — in fact, the question was raised that maybe the weekend would end the marriage. If it involved sex or anything like that we were not interested. Believe me we raised every conceivable objection until finally your friend who introduced us to the idea said to trust him. On that basis we agreed to take a weekend.

Marriage Encounter Weekend was so new and exciting an idea. It offered such a simple tool to enhance a married couple's relationship that upon returning we induced a friend to get involved and I am happy to say they will be weekending on Oct. 8 to 10.

Mr. Schuster's article was well written and informative but we were puzzled by the use of the word "proselytize". If he meant the word to mean convert, there is nothing to convert to. What Married Encounter people are trying to do is share the experience they had with the hope that it may give good marriages a new tool to enhance an already good marriage. An encounter weekend is so personal that only the couple really knows what it means to them and what they get from it. It is not a religion or even a religious experience, at least not to us. We can best sum it up by saying it is a technique that we can use if we feel a need to get closer in our relationship. We would urge any one who asked to get the experience.

Peace and Love,

Bernie Singer Comments Unfair

Dear Editor:

There recently appeared in the Freeman a letter to the Editor from Bernie Singer, the Conservative Party Chairman for the City of Kingston, in which Mr. Singer attacked the qualifications of Harold Finkle for County Treasurer. I do not vote in Ulster County, but I found the letter so outrageous that I could not resist writing you. If you will be good enough to print my letter perhaps fewer Kingston voters will be misled by Mr. Singer.

Mr. Singer suggests that the opinion of people working with Mr. Finkle on other commissions was that Mr. Finkle was slow to comprehend and hampered the activities of the group. I have worked closely with Mr. Finkle for several years on the Temporary State Commission for the Catskills and can state categorically that this is not the case. Mr. Finkle was one of our most valuable members. He was always in attendance at meeting, attentive and prepared, and made a major contribution to the work of the commission.

It should also be noted that Mr. Finkle has for many years been with the First Albany Corporation, a member firm of the New York Stock Exchange, and has extensive experience in investments and handling money. I do not understand that Mr. Kirschner has any such experience and I curious as to what are his qualifications that Mr. Singer so highly regards. From all accounts Mr. Kirschner has some difficulty handling his own money. One wonders what he would do with the county's.

Quiet is Ominous in Panama

Dear Editor:

What has happened to the Panama Canal? Suddenly those demanding a new treaty giving away the Panama Canal have become strangely silent. The State Department likewise is totally quiet. This has implications. Has the State Department changed its mind about the new treaty? Has the left-leaning dictator of Panama, General Torrijos, backed down on his threat to wage war against the United States unless we give him the canal territory under terms of a new treaty? Has the Soviet Union ordered him to stop rattling his saber? Has Fidel Castro who reportedly already sent some of his troops to Panama, decided this is not the right time to tweedle the nose of Uncle Sam?

Was it the public opinion poll which showed 85 per cent of the American people were opposed to the Kissinger giveaway? Was it the resolution of 36 United States senators promising to vote against such a treaty? I don't think so.

It is becoming more and more evident every passing week that none of the above reasons are the real cause for the silence on the treaty. The Panama Canal is only one very small part of the total Soviet plan of the western hemisphere. Should the American people become too much disturbed about the Panama Canal they might suddenly become alarmed about the much bigger plan, and might inject that concern into the presidential election, and therefore make the completion of the Communist plan more difficult.

It doesn't take a military or diplomatic genius to see the broad outlines of the Soviet plan to dominate Latin and South America. With Castro supplying the soldiers and the Soviet Union supplying the hardware and leadership, the plan apparently calls for the communization of the Panama Canal, Puerto Rico, and from there the entirety of South and Central America.

The pattern is set — a small country pitted against the mighty United States of America — a U.S.A. who loves peace so much according to the master plan of the Kremlin — that we will permit the entire rest of this hemisphere to fall to Communism before we lift a military hand to stop it.

That would fulfill Lenin's prediction when he said: "Then the last bastion of capitalism, the United States of America, will fall like an overripe fruit into our hands without a shot being fired."

This is the plan of the Soviet Union for your future. But it doesn't have to be your plan.

Probation Is An Ideal Tool

Dear Editor:

Regarding your editorial entitled "Probation Works Here," I felt compelled to write. I support your views and have done so for many years. In reading it, I found out that Ulster County is making a humanitarian effort to curb future criminal activities by probation. Probation is the ideal tool for achieving rehabilitation because it is conducive to keeping family unity alive and growing in a healthy community. It provides specialized counseling to the individuals concerned, community support by its supervisors and personal attention by trained staff members.

You can not thrust a person into a penal institution that has yet to clean its own cesspools and expect that person to re-enter his community as a normal, well-adjusted person. If a person is sentenced to prison, he enters a world of misery that is programmed to incarcerate the individual by isolation. This is punitive to the inmate's family as well. By thus being imprisoned, everyone suffers because 95 per cent of these inmates are condemned to the "revolving-door" syndrome. Ulster County's percentage of re-arrest is 13 per cent.

If a community was aware of what imprisonment does, they would desist from sentencing their fellow men to an entombment that magnifies anti-social patterns. Psychology can be of help in eradicating the haunting memories of the atrocities that are enacted throughout his penal servitude. But can a psychologist heal the scars of a man's soul that has lived in a personal nightmare of long duration?

Cruel and unusual punishment as defined by the Federal Judicial Committee is anything that shocks the conscience of the public. One of the atrocities that fulfills that description is the emotional starvation of the inmate, his wife, and children. This results in family disruption by maintaining a paternal void that creates instability in his own children due to a prison's restrictions on normal family life. This leads to emotional, mental and economic hardships for the children as well as the wife because her husband is not physically present for the support they need. Therefore, a family's death can be very imminent.

I have to congratulate Ulster County for its success but let me caution you not to scrutinize too carefully your applicants to probationary status. Some courts go to the extreme in examining who should be awarded probation and therefore, because of its "tunnel-vision", they miss a few who should be saved from prison.

The answer to our failing criminal justice system lies within the community, and Ulster County has taken a step in that direction.

Moynihan Heads for the Middle

Daniel Patrick Moynihan opened his campaign against Senator James L. Buckley of New York with an appeal to Republican "moderates." His "strategy," -- to quote his aides as paraphrased by the New York Times -- is "to preempt the middle of the political spectrum." Accordingly, Mr. Moynihan has gambled about the state invoking the hallowed name of Dwight Eisenhower, as a "mainstream Republican," to be distinguished from his opponent. "I would welcome Republicans who want to save the parts from its extremes," Mr. Moynihan said.

And, what do you know, the very next day Senator Jacob Javits, who is a Republican, announced that he would not campaign for Senator Buckley. Senator Javits, hoisting his conscience up high and competing with the rays of the midday sun, appeared with "face grim" his "voice stern" as a mortician's. He was there not to praise the sainted junior senator from New York, but to bury him.

Senator Javits once referred to himself as the voice of the Republican Party which if it is true, perhaps suggests the difficulties the Party has. His long-time resentment of his colleague is probably the most dogged devotion to any principle, not counting Israel, ever practiced by Senator Javits, who six years ago, alone declined to vote to admit the freshly-arrived senator as a member of the Republican caucus.

It was a wonderful week for politics in New York, the culmination of primary races watched carefully throughout the country. Mr. Moynihan was lecturing to New York State Republicans about the inappropriateness of Senator Buckley as their representative exactly two days after Senator Buckley, running against a primary opponent, crushed his moderate opponent by winning 70 per cent of the Republican vote.

Who is the most popular Democrat in the United States? The polls inform us it is Senator Edward Kennedy. Well, on the very same day Senator Kennedy running in a primary contest against unknown opponents, got 70 per cent of the vote in Massachusetts. Perhaps Mr. Moynihan will intuit that Senator is not a representative Democrat? I would welcome any such demonstration.

And then on the very same day Patrick

Washington Hee-Haws

WASHINGTON—Hollywood has suddenly discovered Washington, D.C., as a source for situation comedy. Those of us who live here have known for years there was more situation comedy in the capital than in all the 50 states combined. But it was only after Watergate that the TV moguls realized how many laughs you could get out of this town.

A week doesn't go by that I don't receive a call from a television producer on the coast who is planning a situation comedy on Washington and asks for help in developing a series. I've been giving it a lot of thought, and here are just a few of the ideas that I think could work.

A CIA agent (hopefully we can get Dick Van Dyke) is having an affair with the wife of a congressman (Hope Lange?) who is miffed because she knows her husband (Don Adams?) is having an affair with his secretary (Mary Tyler Moore?)

One afternoon the congressman comes home and finds Dick in the congressman's bathrobe and Hope in her nightie. He is immediately suspicious and demands to know what Dick is doing in his bathrobe. Dick thinks fast and says, "I'm bugging your phone on orders of Henry Kissinger."

This infuriates the congressman who says he's going to call Dick before the House Ethics Committee. He hands Dick what he thinks is a subpoena, but it turns out to be a photograph of his secretary swimming nude in the Tidal Basin. This embarrasses the congressman and he begs Moynihan, engaged in a primary contest among Democrats, managed to get 36 per cent of the vote. Having gotten half as many of the Democrats who turned out to vote to designate him as their representative, he informs the Republicans, twice as many of whom voted for Buckley, that their candidate is unrepresentative of the party. Mr. Moynihan once wrote a book called Maximum Feasible Misunderstanding. He shows he has mastered the art.

And then when you take into account that Mr. Moynihan is a student of history, he manages to get terribly mixed up. He goes about the state saying that Senator Buckley should be a middle-of-the-roader while denouncing Senator Buckley for refusing to worship at the altar of Franklin Delano Roosevelt — who did not make his mark being a middle-of-the-road Democrat, ask Arthur Schlesinger.

Well, Senator Buckley is not middle-of-the-road for the sake of occupying the middle of the road. It is this that has permitted him to represent the people of New York with freshness and originality. In this respect he is indeed not like Eisenhower. More like Lincoln, who warned us at Cooper Union not to be "diverted by . . . those sophistical contrivances wherewith we are so industriously plied and belabored — contrivances such as groping for some middle ground between the right and the wrong."

Poor Mr. Moynihan. Yesterday he was the freshest voice in town. Today he's the guy who pledged to back Bella Abzug if she were nominated. Win or lose, he should apply to Senator Buckley for lessons in independence.

(William Buckley is Sen. Buckley's brother.)

Politicians Have Oilmen Pals

WASHINGTON — A mysterious group of Texas oilmen, bound by blood, marriage and the corporate bond, have quietly been funneling thousands of dollars to politicians who champion oil interests.

The Texans own and operate the Quintana Petroleum Corporation, although one would hardly know it since the oilmen, according to a company official, "don't like to have anything publicized about it."

This penchant for secrecy, apparently, is the reason the Quintana crowd failed to list their connections with the company on several federal campaign contribution forms. Such omissions raised the official curiosity of the Federal Election Commission.

The group works closely with ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally's Houston law firm. A member of the firm, William H. Drushel Jr., actually maintains an office at Quintana. In the past, Connally has distributed oil money to favored politicians.

The Quintana crowd has concentrated this year on rewarding members of Congress who support oil tax benefits. While the tax bill was being drafted this spring, the Quintana executives and their wives passed out $12,000 to five key members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

They were: James Jones, D.-Okla., $3,200; Donald Clancy, R.-Ohio, $2,700; Philip Crane, R.-Ill., $2,500; William Steiger, R.-Wis., $2,400, and Guy Vander Jagt, R.-Mich., $1,200.

Except for Clancy, all of these congressmen have received 100 per cent favorable ratings from the Independent Petroleum Association of America. Clancy's voting record was rated by the IPAA at a slightly less satisfactory 75 per cent.

The Quintana bunch delivered an additional $3,200 to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D.-Tex., another champion of the oil industry, with a 93 per cent IPAA rating. He also happens to be a power on the Senate Finance Committee, which handled the tax bill in the Senate. Sen. Lowell Weicker, R.-Ct, who has favored the oil interest, got at least $2,100.

Another darling of the oil industry, Rep. Bob Krueger, D.-Tex., collected $4,400 from the Quintana bunch. His fidelity to petroleum interests is measured at 93 per cent on the IPAA scale.

The money men from Quintana also appear to have an enemies list. One congressman on the list is Bob Eckhardt, D.-Tex., who holds a zero rating with IPAA. The Quintana crowd has pumped $4,400 into the campaign of his opponent, Nick Gerhardt.

Our reporters sometimes found the Quintana money difficult to trace. On May 14, for example, seven Quintana officials simultaneously donated $100 apiece to the aforementioned Clancy. Another Quintana executive and his wife coughed up $1,000 each. Still another executive gave $200.

Our reporters, Gary Cohn and Jim Grady, made repeated phone calls to Quintana's Houston headquarters during their attempt to put the jigsaw pieces together. Corporate spokesmen refused to provide the identities of the Quintana people or the correct spelling of their names.

One spokesman said that attorney William Drushel had passed the word to all Quintana officials that they were "not to confirm or deny any information to either Mr. Cohn or Mr. Grady." The attorney did not return any of our numerous calls. The most one spokesman finally would say was that Quintana was "a family business."

Footnote: This isn't the first time Quintana has been in hot water. Last year, a House subcommittee accused Quintana of "probably" violating federal laws by needlessly delaying development of a natural gas field. A drop in the anticipated production brought pressure on the Federal Power Commission to permit gas prices to go up.

POLITICAL REWARD: President Ford has replaced a distinguished career diplomat as Ambassador to the Bahamas with a political crony.

The appointee is Wisconsin's former lieutenant governor, Jack Olson, who is better known for his political connections than his diplomatic skills. He labored hard for Ford's nomination last month at the Republican convention.

LOCKHEED STORY: The giant Lockheed conglomerate must be considered a quasi-public institution. As the nation's largest defense contractor, Lockheed couldn't exist without government work. The company was also saved from being blown, headlong, down its own wind tunnel when Congress bailed it out with a quarter of a billion dollars.

Thus Lockheed is on the public dole, and its activities, therefore, deserve close public inspection. This is a report on one small activity.

In 1969, a corporation now known as EMMS-Biolex embarked on a joint venture with the California division of Lockheed to develop a purification process for fossil fuels. By treating oil as a microbiological compound rather than a mineral, several organic impurities could be removed.

The results, according to Lockheed's own data, were astonishing. For a fraction of a penny a gallon, a corrosive slime could be removed from jet fuel and gasoline. This improved the efficiency of the fuel and made auto exhaust emissions cleaner.

Now Lockheed has been slapped with a $10 billion lawsuit because the company has gone so little in seven years to develop the process. The reason, Biolex charges, is that Lockheed is trying to steal the process from Biolex before developing it.

A Lockheed spokesman minimized both Lockheed's involvement with the project and the lawsuit. The project has been shelved for some time, he said, because the company considered it not worth pursuing.

Foiled First Time by Parliamentary Maneuver

Saudi Arabia Missile Deal Still the Target of Senate Opponents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate opponents of the administration's proposed $30 million sale of missiles to Saudi Arabia are set to try again to kill the deal after their first effort was foiled by a parliamentary maneuver.

Heeding a phone call from Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., Monday secured unanimous consent to pull a resolution rejecting the Saudi missile sales off the Senate calendar and send it back to the Foreign Relations Committee he chairs.

Only a handful of senators were present at the time, and Sparkman's brash move surprised and angered the resolution's supporters including Sen. Clifford Case of New Jersey, ranking Republican on the panel.

The committee had voted, 8-6, last Friday to disapprove the proposed sale of 650 Maverick missiles to the Saudis, which will be permitted unless both the House and Senate pass disapproval resolutions by the end of the week.

The first order of business in the committee today will be discussion of the Saudi missile sales, and the panel will hear from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who favors the deal.

Meanwhile, the House International Affairs Committee debated the arms sales at length Monday but was unable to muster a quorum to vote on a disapproval resolution. The House vote, which could come today, is expected to be close.

If the House committee fails to disapprove the missile sale, the Senate is not likely to act on its disapproval resolution, Senate sources said.

There was intense lobbying under way to change the Senate committee vote, reportedly aimed at three senators — Gale McGee, D-Wyo., Charles Percy, R-Ill., and James Pearson, R-Kan. — who voted against the sales last Friday.

Sparkman's maneuver followed a telephone call from Rockefeller who said the administration was "greatly disturbed" over the resolution. Sparkman said Rockefeller also talked "of the tremendous power that country exercises over oil and that an embargo would likely be reinstated."

Case, who was not called by Rockefeller or told beforehand of Sparkman's move, was angered when he found out what had happened.

The usually mild-mannered Case took the Senate floor to criticize the extraordinary actions taken by Sparkman. He said the chairman engaged in "an inexcusable breach of courtesy" that conflicted with "the tradition of decency" in the Senate.

Patty Leadoff For Jury Panel

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Alameda County prosecutors used Patricia Hearst and her former boyfriend as opening witnesses in an effort to obtain grand jury indictments against Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris.

Miss Hearst spent 2½ hours behind closed doors Monday, telling the Alameda County Grand Jury how she was spirited from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment in February 1974 by the SLA. Steven Weed testified for 30 minutes.

There was no word on what they told the panel, but Miss Hearst was presumed to have given the same testimony she delivered during her San Francisco bank robbery trial.

District Attorney Lowell Jensen said he would call some 45 witnesses and seek an indictment charging the Harries with kidnap, false imprisonment and assault with a deadly weapon.

The Harries were held on a 19-count police complaint for the kidnaping. They were to appear in Municipal Court on Oct. 7 for a preliminary hearing on the complaint. However, an indictment would automatically move the case into Superior Court for trial without a preliminary hearing.

The first witness to appear before the grand jury was Peter Benenson, a mathematician at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, who testified about how he was taken prisoner by the SLA kidnap team and how his car was stolen from him for use in the getaway. Miss Hearst and Weed followed him.

Miss Hearst, 22, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst, presumably cooperated with prosecutors despite her sentencing last week to seven years in prison on bank robbery charges.

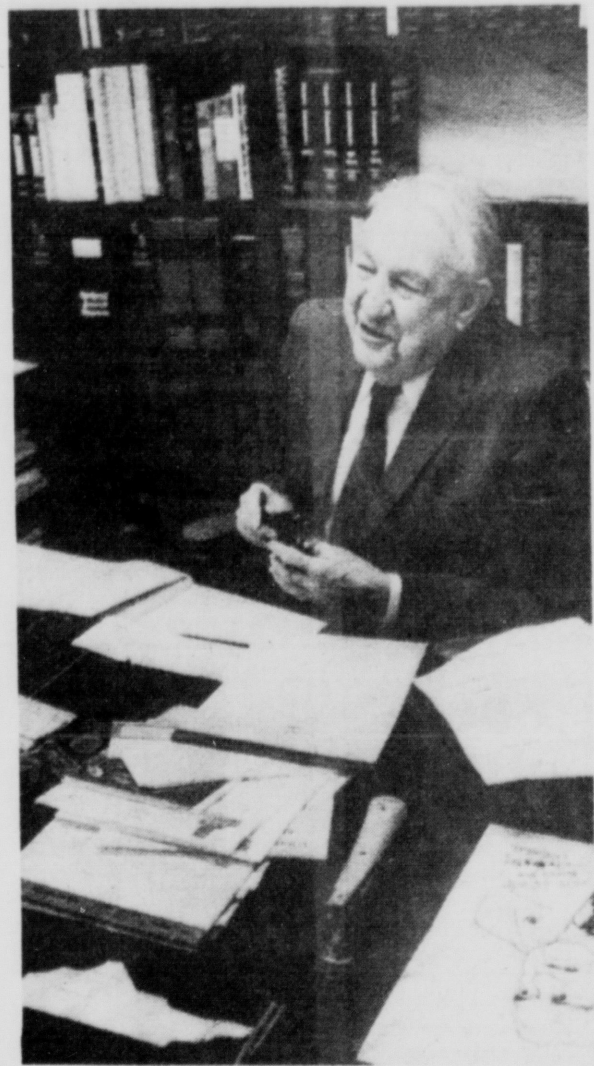

Her attorneys had said the sentence was too harsh and might convince their client to become a reluctant witness in any further criminal proceedings against SLA members or associates.

Miss Hearst told her bank robbery trial that two men and a woman burst into her apartment. She said she was knocked unconscious before being placed in the trunk of a getaway car.

She said Harris was one of the two men and his wife was the driver of one of two getaway cars.

Weed, who shared the apartment with Miss Hearst, himself was struck on the head with a bottle after he had been bound and gagged. Shortly after her kidnap Miss Hearst announced in a taped communication that she no longer loved him.

Sperm Isolation Could Help Childless Couples

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fertility specialists are awaiting the births of a special group of babies with up to a 90 per cent chance of being male because of use of a new sperm separation method, a population organization said today.

The Population Reference Bureau, a nonprofit educational institution, said the primary goal is to increase the chances of pregnancy for childless couples.

"However, associated with it is the possibility of increasing the likelihood of male offspring, which could have major implications for population planning, particularly in those countries where a strong preference for male children prevails," the organization said in its latest Intercom newsletter to be mailed this week.

"The technique holds no promise for parents of sons who long for a baby daughter, as only the male-producing Y sperm are isolated in the process," the newsletter said.

A bureau spokeswoman, asked about the new process, acknowledged "there will be people who will say it is tampering with nature."

Some clinics "have just begun to entertain requests for male selection," said the newsletter. It referred to the technique as a "male sex preselection method."

Clinics accepting applications for the procedure are asking couples to sign consent forms, which include an acknowledgment "that any baby that is conceived is likely to be male."

It said the process is being used by in this country by several clinicians, including Dr. Robert H. Glass, head of the University of San Francisco fertility clinic, and Dr. W. Paul Dmowski of the fertility clinic at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago.

Results of test pregnancies in Iran and Switzerland are expected soon, the bureau said.

The sperm separation method was developed and patented by Dr. Ronald J. Ericsson of Gametrics Limited in Sausalito, Calif.

The technique involves placing a sample of semen in a glass tube containing a solution that enables the "strongest swimmers" among the sperm — also the ones most likely to bear the male-producing Y chromosome — to make their way to the bottom of the tube, the article said.

"The concentrated, highly motile sperm that has been 'washed' and has become 65 to 90 per cent male-producing can then be placed directly into the uterus of a woman, who has been unable to conceive because of her husband's low sperm count, or because his sperm has been unable to penetrate the mucus covering the cervix," it said.

Ericsson estimates that one of every five couples has problems conceiving children and about half of these involve problems with the husband's sperm.

The bureau says Ericsson either has patents or patents pending for his sperm isolation processes in 20 countries and that the licensed methods are being used in clinics in North America and Europe.

British Pound Declines To New Record Low Levels

LONDON (UPI) — The British pound dropped to record low levels against the dollar and several other leading currencies Monday, reflecting continued lack of international confidence in the British economy.

The pound dropped two cents in London to close at a record low rate of $1.6810, four cents less than a week ago and 10 cents less than at the beginning of September.

In New York it closed even lower — $1.6715.

The pound's low value means that holidays in Britain are cheaper than ever for foreign tourists. It also means British goods are cheaper abroad but goods imported into Britain will be more expensive.

Measured against a group of 10 leading currencies, including the Japanese yen, the West German mark and the Swiss franc, the pound has lost 43.6 per cent of its value since December 1971 when new parties were fixed.

One year ago the pound was worth 5.45 West German marks or 9.20 French francs. Now it is worth 4.15 marks and 8.25 French francs.

Money dealers said the pound's decline appeared to be due to a combination of several factors, some of which continually plague sterling.

These include:

— The highest level of unemployment in 30 years, with 1.5 million persons jobless.

— The fact that inflation, although cut by half in the last year, is still high at 13.8 per cent a year.

— The agreement of a new pay deal for seamen last week that some unions argue breaches the government's wage ceiling.

But the fact that the money markets tend toward survival of the fittest probably may have had more to do with the latest slump than any one factor.

Several dealers explained there is a tendency at times of insecurity for weak currencies to get weaker and strong currencies to become stronger.

"Those who have the pound don't particularly want to keep it, while those who don't have it don't really need it," one said.

The fact that the Bank of England, on government instructions, has not intervened for three weeks to bolster the pound by converting some of Britain's depleted foreign currency reserves into sterling was another factor contributing to its decline.

Local Fans Invited to Join in $50 Million

International Campaign to Reunite the Beatles

By TIM SCHUSTER
Freeman staff

KINGSTON—Will die-hard Beatle fans mass together to offer $50 million in $1 contributions to get the British rock group back together again, at least temporarily?

Will the Beatles take the money even if they do? Ulster County resident Gary Lee Schwartz has joined the International Committee To Reunite The Beatles in a public relations capacity to try to bring about just such a reunification.

Schwartz, who describes himself as a "mobile disc jockey personality," outlined the plans to the Freeman recently and voiced his hope that bringing the four Beatles together through massive fan appeal could be accomplished by the middle of next summer.

Long an avid Beatles fan, the 31-year-old Schwartz was drawn into the affair through an ad that appeared in the Village Voice May 31 sponsored by the newly organized committee and headed by Alan Amron of Merrick, L.I.

The two met in New York City and joined forces, with Schwartz reportedly asked to represent the committee on the international level.

The Beatles have been offered $50 million before from private promoters to reunite their act in the United States, with projected tapes, records, and movie rights possibly a lucrative result, since the money could not possibly be made back solely on concert tickets.

They turned it down. Now, New York City promoter Sid

Bernstein has reportedly offered the four British rock stars $160 million for promotional rights.

Schwartz contends that Bernstein has "jumped on the bandwagon" started by the committee, and the two had a debate of sorts at a Sept. 25 convocation of Beatlemanics at the Beatles '76 Convention at the Statler Hilton Hotel in New York.

The committee to reunite has been accepted by Solter and Roskin public relations firm for representation, the same outfit that handles Frank Sinatra and Bette Midler, among others.

Schwartz said the goal is to have some answer from all of the Beatles by June 5, 1977, the tenth anniversary of the release of the Beatles' most popular (and some feel their best) album, "Sergeant Pepper."

The local DJ said he will appear for the cause in the near future on the nationally televised Tomorrow Show with host Tom Snyder and on the local NBC affiliate Channel 4 with Bruce Morrow, formerly of WABC radio fame. The Earth News radio network, with 125 national outlets, has reportedly taped an interview on the subject, also.

The committee is also making plans for a one week Beatles fest, to be held either at Madison Square Garden or Nassau Coliseum, to raise money through varied programs such as selling memorabilia and putting on shows.

The push for $50 million is young, and only about $5,000 has trickled into the coffers thus far, said Schwartz, but it is an international movement with money arriving from such diverse ports as Turkey, Brazil, and Australia.

"Sure, promoters can offer lots of money, but we united can offer more money and total support...we are the people and we together are stronger than any promoters," reads part of the Village Voice ad.

Fans are asked to send one dollar to the International Committee To Reunite The Beatles, Inc., P.O. Box 243, Merrick, N.Y. 11566 and they will receive a decal with the logo "Let It Be" and a pair of clasped hands emblazoned in red.

What happens to the money if the campaign doesn't work out? Schwartz was asked.

He guaranteed that all monies received would be donated to established charities, "probably the American Cancer Society."

Schwartz is a graduate of Yonkers High School and the RCA Institute School of Radio Programming in New York, attended the New School for Social Research and studied business management at Ulster Community College.

A resident of Ulster County for the past eight years, he currently appears and entertains at private parties, organization functions, night clubs, and discos, besides writing a music column for a local bi-weekly newspaper.

States the committee, "Music is a beautiful way of communicating, it's our international language, and no one communicates it better than the Beatles."

Panel Discussion to Focus On Alcohol Abuse at Fall Focus Program at UCCC

STONE RIDGE—Alcohol abuse and the treatment of alcoholics will be the focus of a panel discussion by authorities at Ulster Community College's Fall Focus program Oct. 2.

The first of a series of human problems, sponsored by the Office for Continuing Education at the college, it will focus on Sloan Wilson, author of "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," his problems and his perceptions of others attempting to cope with the stresses of growing up or growing older.

Eight panel members are: Dr. Ruth Fox, author and lecturer on alcoholism; Ralph Golding, director of mental health services in Ulster County; Emil Groth, alcohol abuse coordinator for Mental Health Services in Ulster County; Dr. Frederick W. Holcomb Jr., medical director for IBM in Kingston; Dr. Frank Seixas, a director of the National Council on Alcoholism; Dr. Marvin Block, an author and lecturer on alcoholism; Dr. Morris Chafetz, former medical director of the National Council on Alcoholism and an author; Dr. Susan B. Anthony, grand niece of women's rights crusader by the same name; and Mrs. Betty Wilson, wife of author Sloan Wilson.

Dr. Fox is co-author of the book "Alcoholism" published in 1973 and also co-authored "Alcoholism: Its Scope, Causes, and Treatment." She founded the New York City Medical Society on Alcoholism and is vice president of the National Council on Alcoholism.

Golding came to Ulster County from the Norfolk Mental Health Association in Norwood, Mass. where he served as executive director from 1972 to 1975.

Groth has held his present job since 1973 and was previously employed by the Department of Social Services in New York City where he worked with the disabled, blind, drug addicts, and alcoholics and was associated with the Cumberland Hospital Alcohol Clinic.

Dr. Holcomb joined IBM in 1956 at the Kingston plant, is secretary of the Ulster County Medical Society, and is former president of the Ulster County Association for Mental Health.

Dr. Seixas is a fellow in psychiatry at Mt. Sinai Hospital and is editor-in-chief of the Physicians Alcohol Newsletter of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Block is Professor Emeritus of Clinical Medicine at the Buffalo Medical School and is author of "Alcohol—Its Facets and Phases."

Dr. Chafetz is on the staff of John Hopkins University and was formerly director of the Alcohol Clinic at Massachusetts General Hospital. He is the author of several books on the subject of alcoholism.

Ms. Anthony is the author of a book "The Ghost In My Life" about herself and her famous ancestor. She was an alcoholic.

Mrs. Wilson, Sloan Wilson's second wife, feels uniquely qualified to serve on the panel since her father has been an alcoholic most of his adult life.

Chamber Music Concerts Set for Fall at Saugerties

SAUGERTIES—An old stone house in Saugerties is to be used for a new venture presenting chamber music concerts this fall under the heading Kammerpiel.

David and Beatrice Bright, owners of the 1740 stone house, will rent their facilities to the group. Mrs. Bright, a concert pianist, organist, lecturer, and conductor, will also serve as music director of the series and occasionally as a performer.

As outlined in the new group's newsletter, its basic goal is to present "small, intimate chamber music recitals where fine musicians of the Hudson Valley communicate not only musically but orally with their audience."

Discussions of music and composers is planned after each performance. Those persons who become members of the organization will have access to a lending library and monthly newsletter at the Kammerpiel house located on Route 32, opposite the south-bound entrance to the Thruway.

There will also be Saturday morning junior recitals for children, serious young students who have passed an audition.

The series of Sunday concerts planned, all for 3 p.m., are: Oct. 17, baroque selections by the Woodstock Chamber Players; Oct. 31, Brahms and Beethoven from a French horn, piano, violin trio; Nov. 21, music to be announced by a piano, oboe/English horn, and voice trio; Dec. 5, piano, flute and cello.

Speaker Named For NAACP Dinner

Malvin R. Goode, former ABC News United Nations Correspondent, is scheduled as the main speaker at the second annual appreciation dinner sponsored by the Ulster County Branch, NAACP, Oct. 1 at the Governor Clinton Hotel — Goode is a member of the NAACP's national board of directors. Peg Leg Bates of Kerhonkson and Ruth and Edwin Ford of Kingston will be honored at the dinner.

DEAR ABBY

Not All Animals Are as Smart as the Mink; She Owns Mink Coat for as Long as She Lives

DEAR ABBY: Can animals count? I used to see horses in the circus obey their trainers by picking up their feet and putting them down according to the number the trainer called out. My father said there was some kind of trick to it.

But listen to this. We raised a female mink on our farm last year and she had a litter of five. Every day at feeding time this mother mink would make five little patties from her scoop of ground meat, then call her offspring to eat.

She never made six, and she never made four. Always five. So wouldn't you say she could count?—TERRI

DEAR TERRI: I would say that your mother mink could indeed count. But not all animals are as smart as the mink. What other female owns a mink coat as long as she lives?

DEAR ABBY: My date and I were dining out, and as he was adding the tip to the credit card, the waiter said, "Don't bother adding the tip to that—I won't get it anyway." Then the waiter explained that after the restaurants are reimbursed by the credit card companies, the waiters rarely get their tips.

Abby, with so many diners paying with credit cards, I'll bet a lot of waiters get gyped this way.

You'd be doing waiters a tremendous service if you'd ask people who use credit cards to give the waiter his tip in cash. Thanks.—MARION

DEAR MARION: The top credit card companies and restaurants state that waiters are reimbursed immediately by their employers for their tips. Most waiters insure themselves against being gyped by keeping a record of tips due them.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him "Pat") is a musician, and he works evenings. We have a small child, but occasionally I like to see Pat work, so I get a sitter, and Pat's Uncle Joe and Aunt Mae take me. (They're about the age of my parents.)

One night Uncle Joe and his wife took me to hear Pat, and when they brought me home, Uncle Joe walked me to the door. It was quite dark, so he grabbed me and kissed me hard on the lips. I was so shocked I dropped my key!

The next day as soon as Pat left for work, Uncle Joe came over to see me. I didn't like the look in his eye, so I picked up the baby and went into the bathroom with her and locked the door behind me.

He kept calling to me to open the door, but I wouldn't do it. Finally he left.

Abby, I don't know whether to tell my husband or not. I don't want to put a strain on their relationship, but I really am afraid Uncle Joe will make a habit of coming over, and he frightens me.—BIG PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: Tell Uncle Joe if he comes over again while Pat is gone, you will tell Pat EVERYTHING. Then follow through.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is all the time bringing home nuts, candy and gooey pastry even though he knows how hard I'm trying to lose weight.

He's lucky. He can eat anything and not gain an ounce. If I just LOOK at a piece of candy, I gain a pound.

My husband has made dirty cracks about how fat I am, so why does he tempt me with all that fattening stuff? He knows I don't have any willpower.—NO HELP FROM HUBBY

DEAR NO HELP: He tempts you because: (1) Consciously or unconsciously he wants you to be fat. (2) He's unkind and inconsiderate. (3) He enjoys sweets and figures that your lack of willpower is your problem, not his.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

La Leche Series Begins Tonight

KINGSTON—La Leche League of Kingston will begin a new series of four monthly discussion groups tonight at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Kathleen Dittus, 12 Hillside Terrace. Mrs. Hildegard Pleva, a qualified La Leche League leader, will moderate a discussion of the physiological, psychological and practical advantages of breastfeeding.

As mothers search for more "natural" ways of caring for and nourishing their children, La Leche League meets the needs of women who have chosen to pursue "good mothering through breastfeeding." The League hopes to take the place of the proverbial grandmother or mother who in the past taught by example all that needed to be learned about nursing a baby. As part of an international organization of more than 2500 groups in 40 countries the Kingston group is celebrating its sixth year of service to the community.

Mrs. Pan Usticke, the second LLL leader, has announced the dates for the remaining meetings of the series: Oct. 26, "The Art of Breastfeeding and Overcoming Difficulties;" Nov. 30, "The Baby Arrives: The Family and the Breastfed Baby;" Dec. 28, "Nutrition and Weaning." The ideal time to attend a series is during pregnancy but all interested women are invited, along with nursing mothers and their infants. For information about the series, directions to the meeting or questions about nursing contact Hildegard Pleva.

Library Exhibit

TOWN OF ULSTER—Town of Ulster Library has as its artist this month, a local resident of Lake Katrine, Ralph G. Speer, an excellent photographer. He has been a member of the Marbletown Art Association for 20 years. Speer won second place in color and third place in black and white photography at the recent Ellenville Art in the Square Show.

Kingston Engineer Pens Book

Author's Ordeal as Patient Leads to Local Family Practice Residency Program

By TIM SCHUSTER
Freeman staff

KINGSTON—A privately published book entitled "Just What The Patient Ordered" by one Christopher Lauren describes the typical ordeal of a hospital patient.

It bears more than a passing resemblance to scenes in area hospitals, and small wonder as the author's real name is Kingston engineer Christus (Chris) Larios and the ordeal is his own.

Larios confided to the Freeman that he writes for relaxation every morning from 4:30 to 7 a.m. and this is his first completed work. It states on the book's flyleaf, "The events in this book actually occurred. The names of places and people have been eliminated to protect the guilty. God will protect the innocent."

As Larios explained it, he has been a member of the board of directors of Kingston Hospital for 12 years but had developed some definite ideas about the value of some medical practices through his extensive dealings with specialists and teams of specialists during the lengthy procedure of diagnosis and ultimate operation of a pinched nerve in his cervical vertebrae.

Daily Freeman for Kingston Hospital by that hospital's board of trustees.

The program, scheduled to begin July 1, 1978, will make Kingston Hospital the first such teaching facility in the Mid-Hudson Valley by bringing qualified medical school graduates into the county for three year residency training for general practice.

In that article, Dr. E.H.Reppert, director of educational services at the hospital, noted that both Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals together have only between 12 and 14 attending physicians in general practice. Their average age is 58 years. He then stated, "We haven't had a new practitioner in the area in 10 years, and 30 to 40 per cent of the population doesn't have a family physician and probably doesn't know how to find one." And he noted that two local family doctors have retired in the 2 1/2 years it took to develop the residency program.

The book by Larios, published this year, applauds a residency program and goes one step further. He said, "I found that our medical schools are crowded and that even straight A students that are qualified to become doctors are denied admission. There simply must be a way to turn out a greater

"The events in this book actually occurred. The names of places and people have been eliminated to protect the guilty. God will protect the innocent."

As it states in the book's epilogue, "It is very difficult to generalize about any group of men. Doctors are human beings. There are good and bad ones. There are selfish ones and generous ones. The point where I feel some generalization is obvious is their lack of broad range thinking. The more restrictive the doctor's special specialty, the narrower his thinking. It appears to me that the research man is so involved with his one project that he believes the solar system revolves about that project....The more the doctor has to do with a broad range of people, the more understanding he appears to be about a wider range of problems."

His solution is "to have a sufficient number of physicians engaged in family practice who would know the patient, his family, his children and provide proper treatment for them all; this would be just what the patient ordered."

He advocates a family practice residency program in the book, something that was announced in the July 12, 1976 issue of the number of physicians and hopefully steer them toward family practice."

He thinks the creation of a "clinical campus" might work, whereby students would attend a regular medical school for their first and second year then be transferred to a state university or other colleges in the state for their third and fourth years. During these third and fourth years they would take actual classes at the university and obtain clinical experience at local hospitals.

Interviewed on the phone, Larios said he would use the word "weird" to describe the attitudes of many specialists, who "work with blinders on" and seem to resent any conflicting opinions on their diagnoses.

His next project is a novel based on fact about the problems of Greek and other immigrants to the United States in the early 1900s.

"No more first person writing, though," he asserted. "It was much too hard on myself."

Applications Being Accepted for AFS 1977-78 Programs

KINGSTON—Living abroad with a family is the opportunity awaiting any junior or senior student attending Kingston High School through the Kingston Chapter of the American Field Service International Scholarship program. Applications are now being received by Kenneth Evans at high school for either the summer 1977 program or the school year program for 1977-78.

Dean Brown of Elmendorf Heights is currently spending the year in Belgium. Luisa Granitto spent the summer of 1975 in Germany.

Initial applications must be submitted to Evans by Oct. 1. After filing the application form, the student appears before a selection committee, The Americans Abroad Committee, and is interviewed by four adults and two high school young people who discuss with the candidate qualifications and motivation for this experience. One student from Kingston High School is selected each year to go abroad. The family of the student selected is expected to participate in the financial underwriting of the program.

AFS programs have been providing international learning experiences to young people of all backgrounds for 30 years. Host families are screened by local A.F.S. committees in more than 50 countries. Further information may be secured by contacting Evans at the high school or the Rev. Randall Bosch, pastor of the Fair Street Church, who serves as chairman of the Americans Abroad Selection Committee.

Dean Brown, left, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Brown of Elmendorf Heights, is spending this school year with a family in Belgium as part of the American Field Service international scholarship program.

Adoptive Families Needed for Children of All Ages

KINGSTON—On any given day in New York State, more than 50,000 children are in public care shelters, institutions, "schools" and foster homes. Approximately 16,000 have no home left to go back to and are destined to face a "life-in-limbo" as part of the foster care system.

Foster children, numbering 2,000, are now legally free, adoptable and waiting. Adoptive families are needed for children of all ages but the majority are over seven years of age. Some are handicapped and have special needs. A very high percentage are Black, Hispanic and interracial. They all need a permanent family of their own where they are loved and wanted, where they can plant roots in a community where they can grow to know and love others.

Pictures and descriptions of more than 600 children are now contained in the New York State Adoption Listing Service available through PACT, Parents and Children Together, a citizen parent group in Kingston.

Information may be obtained from Mrs. John A. Locke III, 28 Tietjen Ave., Kingston, or Mrs. Earl Reeder, 6 Cherry Lane, Saugerties.

PACT notes that adoption requirements are changing. It is now recognized that people with varied lifestyles can be good adoptive parents; the qualifications for prospective parents have also changed. New York State has adoption subsidies to help with the extra costs of adding a son or daughter. Adoption agencies, public or voluntary, look for steady adults who really want a child. The goal is the adjustment of the entire adoptive family and the emphasis is on the parents' ability to create an atmosphere of love and security.

Poems about High Woods Will Be Read at Arts Council

HIGH WOODS—Jean Wrolsen, a resident of High Woods, will read from her nature poems at the meeting of Saugerties Arts Council, Wednesday, Sept. 29, at the community room of the Sawyer Savings Bank, Market Street, Saugerties, 8 p.m. This event to which the public is invited is a continuation of a series of readings by local authors.

Born in Cumberland, Md., Jean Wrolsen is the daughter of the late Armour Curry Anderson, an amateur painter, who first taught her to draw and write verses. Dedication to these pastimes, and later formal training, have resulted in a considerable body of work. Studies were at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, the Art Students League of New York and with the late Harvey Fite.

The poems to be read at Wednesday's meeting were written in and about High Woods. Some of her writings are contained in a booklet, "Lambs of the Catskills," published in 1974. They originated in the High Woods column of the Catskill Mountain Star in the 1960's under the name Bluestone Bard, and have since been seen in the Hudson River Anthology (Vassar College), The War Cry and Tempo (Sunday Freeman). One is to appear, by invitation, in the next issue of The Catskills magazine.

Reading Council To Meet Tonight

NEW PALTZ—Ulster County Reading Council will hold its first meeting of the school year with mini-session workshops at the vanden Berg Learning Center, SUNY at New Paltz. Carolyn Kuhlmann, council president, announces that this meeting and membership is open to all those in the area who are interested in the teaching and improvement of reading. The council meets four times a year.

A business meeting and refreshments will open the program at 7:30 p.m. Workshops will begin at 8 p.m.

The program and leaders will include "A Newspaper as a Teaching Tool," Paul Kenik;

"Comprehension," Mrz. L. Patch; "Video Taping, a Teaching Tool," Karen Hochberg; "Teachin g Reading to the Educationally Handicapped, Title I," Thomas Saunderm; "SPARK-Special Parents Aid in Reading with Kids," Ann Chase; "Utilizing Puppets in Language Art," Bette Archard and Barbara Mainetti.

Ali-Norton: The Early Rounds May Tell It All

Many Questions To Be Answered

NEW YORK (UPI) — They are three years older, three years wiser, three years more mature and will have to fight three rounds longer. Those are just some of the reasons neither Muhammad Ali nor Ken Norton expects tonight's title fight to be anything like their two previous ring encounters.

The bout, scheduled to begin at 10:30 p.m. EDT under clear skies and chilly mid-50 degree temperatures in recently-refurbished Yankee Stadium, should answer many questions, most of which center around the deterioration of Ali's physical condition and Norton's history of freezing in important fights.

Nearly a half-billion people are expected to watch the proceedings via "live" closed circuit or satellite-relayed television and in delayed showings. Promoters anticipate at least 40,000 people paying a record gate of more than $3.5 million, shattering by almost one million dollars the previous record established by the second Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney "Long Count" fight at Chicago's Soldiers' Field in 1927.

Ali, beginning to feel the natural physical consequences associated with a 34-year-old man, has trained harder for Norton than any fight since regaining the title from George Foreman in Zaire in October 1974.

After undergoing a stiff six-week training regimen which began in the desert isolation of Show Low, Ariz., continued in the mountains of upstate New York and concluded with a 4 a.m. run in New York's Central Park, Ali expects to weigh about 222 pounds, four or five more than Norton.

Both fighters are in superb physical condition for the scheduled 15-rounder — Norton having sparred 225 rounds and Ali, a 2-1 betting favorite man-to-man, nearly 100.

"I have never suffered for a fight like I have suffered for this fight," Ali said of his 17th title defense and fourth this year. "I never left the public before, I never watched what I ate before. I am at the end of my career. I don't want to go out and lose it."

In order to win it, Ali feels he will have to take advantage of Norton's reputation as a slow starter.

"I don't have to run, dance, slap him, use that patty-pat stuff and win on points," Ali says. "Norton don't know how to run backwards. I'll stand there and slug it out with him."

"But if I don't knock him out before the fifth round, then after that I'm in trouble and Norton will win the fight."

It is a puzzle to many why the 31-year-old Norton is a solid underdog to a man he decided, breaking Ali's jaw in their first bout, and was outpointed by in a controversial decision in their second bout.

That's because no one really knows whether it will be the Norton who whipped Ali the first time and later stopped Jerry Quarry in five rounds, or the Norton who was knocked out in two rounds by George Foreman in their championship bout, floundered for five rounds against a helpless Ron Stander and took 10 rounds to stop Larry Middleton in his most recent bout.

"If he prepared for everyone like he prepares for Ali," trainer Bill Slattery says of Norton, "he would have been the champion a long time ago."

After losing their first fight, Ali said he underestimated Norton, had partied all night and fought when he was barely able to walk. After rallying in the 12th round to win the second fight, but not in fashionable style, Ali said his hands hurt, that he was shot full of novacaine before the fight and couldn't feel his punches registering, thus throwing off the inborn mechanism which allows a fighter to instinctively follow up a good punch with a series of combinations.

"I think before this fight we should have a complete physical so there's no excuses," says Norton. "It's gonna be a hectic fight. Ali's gonna come out punching early. I won't start slow this time. I will be there earlier."

"If he's gonna be a stationary target now, I can hit him twice as much and twice as hard and I plan to punish him quite a bit. I'm gonna do all I can to win the fight and if I run out of gas, I'm gonna lose."

For their efforts, Ali has been guaranteed $6 million and $100,000 in expenses plus 50 percent of all income over $9 million, while Norton is guaranteed $1.1 million plus 5 percent of all income over $9 million.

Sawyers, KHS In Thick of DCSL Race

SAUGERTIES — The DCSL soccer race got a little more scrambled Monday as a couple of upsets elsewhere inflated the significance of victories by both Saugerties and Kingston High.

The Sawyers contained John Jay, 3-0, and the Tigers stopped Poughkeepsie, 2-0. While those battles were in progress, Rhinebeck assumed first place with a 4-1 upset over Arlington, and Spackenkill knocked off heavily favored Roosevelt by the same score.

"It looks like it's a pretty even league," said Sawyer coach Tony Elia. "Eight or ten teams could win it," echoed Tiger coach Ron Chaisson.

Both local squads played like contenders Monday. Saugerties continued to play a strong defensive game while Bob Benzenhoefer shot all three goals to boost his five game total to eight.

"I guess you could say we dominated," said Elia. "We expected to in a way, but we're still taking the teams as they come."

Benzenhoefer fired his first marker at the ninth minute of the contest with an assist from Tom Carr. He doubled the margin at the 21 minute mark with Dave Martin setting up the shot.

John Jay, outshot 31-9 for the game, never had a chance after that, and Benzenhoefer padded the issue with a successful penalty kick in the second half.

Elia, whose team improved to 3-1-1, remained slightly surprised with the Sawyers' success. "We've been fortunate," he said. "We don't have the depth, and we're small in stature." But Saugerties has played defense. Elia counts only one legitimate goal against his troops in the campaign to date.

Kingston handled Poughkeepsie just as easily on the Pioneer field, bouncing several shots off the posts that would have made the final score higher.

"The team is definitely improving," said Chaisson who was particularly pleased with the progress shown in his young fullback line. "Yesterday was our best game, no doubt about it."

Fred Muller, Jimmy Brown and Jim Carroll are the three junior KHS fullbacks, and they along with senior Bill Glennon and keeper Malcolm Schick, combined for the shutout.

The Jordan brothers, Emil and David, took care of the offense. Emil hit ten minutes into the first half off Eric ten Broeke's assist, and David drilled one unassisted at 20:00 of the second half. The Jordan act has now accounted for the Tigers' last six goals.

Kingston had a 28-11 shots-on-goal edge, and Schick squashed the Pioneers' best effort when he stopped a penalty kick attempt.

A's Throw Everything at KC, Including Fists

By UPI

The Oakland A's, scrapping to avert a Kansas City heist of their American League West crown, can never be accused of malingering.

They threw everything at the Royals Monday night, including their fists, in taking an 8-3 victory in a contest interrupted for 45 minutes by a sixth-inning free-for-all.

Vida Blue (18-12), who pitched the second-place A's to a fourth win in their last five games and to within 3½ games of the leaders, summed it up:

"We're down to our last breath and everything goes. If it means winning, you've got to try."

Blue, whom manager Chuck Tanner calls "the Koufax of this era," said he had control problems and the long fight didn't help. He gave up 10 hits.

The fistcuffs erupted after Oakland took a 5-3 lead in the sixth on Sal Bando's homer. Losing pitcher Dennis Leonard (17-10) hit Don Baylor with a pitch and Baylor stormed toward the mound. Both benches immediately emptied and, in the fighting which followed, A's outfielder Claudell Washington decked Leonard. He left the game, as did Leonard.

Haller added, "It's the heat of the pennant race."

A's first baseman Ron Fairly said Baylor had been hit five times in the last three games.

"I guess he's a little tired of it," he said. "I don't like to see fights but that's baseball."

Fairly paced Oakland at the plate with a solo homer and a double. He also turned in the game's key defensive play when he scooped up John Mayberry's grounder and threw out Al Cowens at home plate in the sixth. Cowens had tripled.

"That's the finest play I've ever seen by a first baseman in my 30 years in the game," said Tanner, describing his 38-year-old veteran as "a little short fat kid who can do everything."

Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog was asked if he was getting tired of carting victory champagne around from city to city — the Royals have dropped five of their last six games and their magic number to clinch a tie for the division crown is still three.

"I don't think we have any with us," he answered. "We don't drink anyway."

Oakland hosts the Royals tonight and Wednesday night.

The only other scheduled AL game, Detroit at Cleveland, was rained out.

In National League action, Los Angeles blanked Houston 2-0, Philadelphia whipped St. Louis 9-1, San Diego edged Cincinnati 5-3 and New York routed Montreal 10-3 in a rain-shortened contest. A second game between the Mets and the Expos was rained out.

Dodgers 2, Astros 0

Don Sutton tossed a four-hitter for his 21st victory and Bill Russell broke up a scoreless pitching duel in the seventh inning when he singled home Steve Garvey to lead the Dodgers to victory over the Astros. Sutton, who has lost nine, notched his fourth shutout and 14th complete game.

Phillies 9, Cardinals 1

Jim Kaat broke a personal six-game losing streak and Greg Luzinski, Ollie Brown and Larry Bowa knocked in two runs apiece to spark the Phillies' rout of the Cardinals. Kaat, whose last win was Aug. 21, held St. Louis to five hits before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

Padres 5, Reds 3

Doug Rader's two-out pop fly single drove in Mike Champion and Mike Ivie with a pair of runs in the bottom of the eighth to give the Padres a triumph over the Reds. Tom Griffin scattered seven hits in going the distance to gain his eighth win against six losses.

Mets 10, Expos 3

John Milner hit two homers, including a grand slam, and pitcher Jon Matlack went 3-for-4 with two RBI to highlight the Mets' victory over the Expos. Milner's club-record third grand slam this season was the big blow in a five-run sixth inning and helped Matlack to his 17th win.

Will LaSorda Get the Job?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Walter Alston, by his own choice, will step down as manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers at the end of this season after 23 years at the reins.

Alston, 64, will stay with the club in another executive capacity and will not seek a job as manager elsewhere.

With eyes glistening, Alston made it clear at a clubhouse news conference Monday that he will be a Dodger to the end.

Dodger President Peter O'Malley preceded Alston with the announcement of his retirement and then the grizzled manager said:

"I've been in baseball for 41 years and it's been awfully good to me. This has been a pretty big day. I had three birdies playing golf for the first time in my life and now I'm announcing that I'm stepping down as manager. I told Peter this afternoon to give somebody else a chance to manage the club."

"I'm going to stay in the Dodger organization."

Tom LaSorda, Dodger third base coach who once said he "bleeds Dodger blue," has been waiting in the wings to succeed Alston. LaSorda, 49, a high spirited guy who is liked and trusted by the Dodger players, helped develop many of the current stars while he was a manager in the minors.

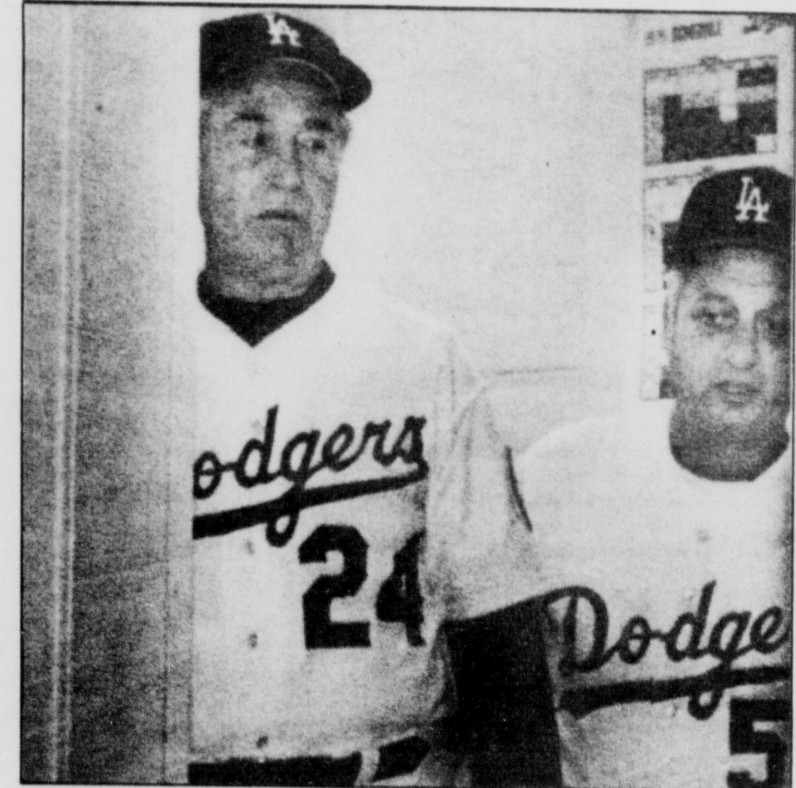

Second baseman Dave Lopes was one of the first players to make it clear he feels LaSorda should get the job.

"In my opinion, Tom LaSorda is the most qualified to manage. If somebody else gets the job, it would be an injustice to Tommy."

Peter O'Malley and his father Walter, the board chairman, perhaps did not want to announce a successor immediately because that would detract from the story of Alston's retirement.

Peter said he tried to get Alston to change his mind but could not do so.

"Walter told me this afternoon of his decision to retire as manager," the Dodger president said. "Walter has made great contributions to the Dodger organization and we want him to remain with us to assist in our baseball opera-

Alston said he decided to retire as manager when he came to the realization that the 1976 Dodger team would not overtake Cincinnati this year in the National League West.

The Dodgers are in second place with an 89-67 record 10 games back of the Reds.

Alston made no mention of newspaper criticism of his handling of the team. Recently in an unusual outburst for this quiet man, he challenged a sports writer to a fist fight for asking what Alston thought was an unfair question.

Alston has been criticized for his conservative strategy but has never budged in his philosophy of the game.

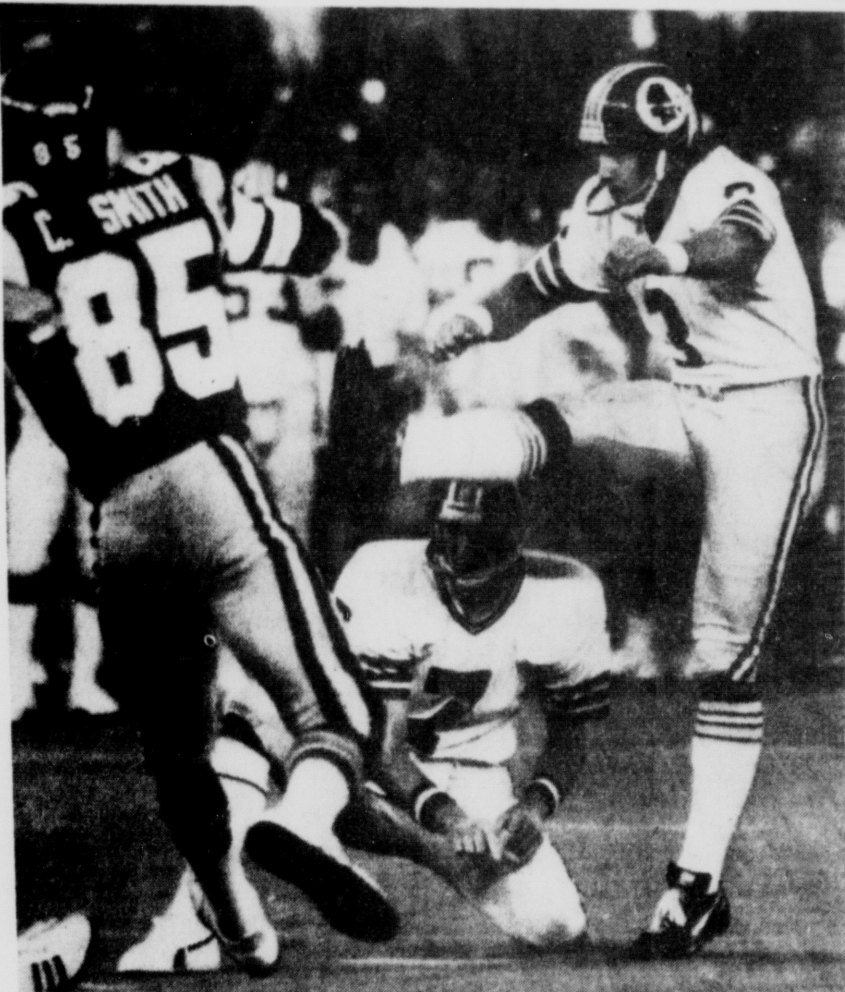

Alston customarily has been frank and honest and unemotional.

Typical was one of his statements at the news conference evaluating the current club.

"We have an excellent team, strong in the infield with good pitching but we didn't have the punch in the outfield."

The unknown from Darrrtown, Ohio, where he still lives on a farm in the off-season, goes down in baseball history as one of the great managers.

He was never much as a player though. A first baseman, he had one at-bat with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1936 and struck out.

Mike Moseley boots winner

Moseley Earns Keep With Pressure Kick

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Washington Redskins Coach George Allen doesn't believe in keeping late hours, but he'll make an exception if he gets the results he got early today.

The Redskins and the Philadelphia Eagles kept 60,131 fans on a Monday night national television audience up to the wee hours of the morning in a 20-17 sudden-death overtime thriller that Washington won on a 29-yard field goal by Mark Moseley at 12:49 of the overtime period.

The overtime was made necessary after Eagles' quarterback Mike Boryla threw a 41-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Smith with 1:07 remaining in regulation time and Washington seemingly on the way to a 17-10 win.

Moseley's winning field goal was set up by an interception late in sudden death by the Redskins' Eddie Brown, which gave Washington the ball on the Eagles' 22. It was Boryla's fifth interception of the game.

After four running plays took Washington to the Eagles' 12, Moseley, who played for Philadelphia in 1970 before being traded, booted the ball through to give Washington a 3-0 season record and a first place tie with Dallas in the Eastern Division of the National Football Conference.

"There's pressure," Moseley said after his game-winning. "But I'm getting paid for pressure, just like a businessman. A businessman has to be successful and if I don't perform I can lose my job."

"I get paid for pressure."

The Redskins were in three sudden death games last year, two of which they lost. And Allen lamented about "too many overtimes" in the locker room.

"But it's good to win," he said. "I thought our defense was outstanding."

He said he was not surprised at the tough game the Eagles (1-2), trying to rebuild, gave his club.

Three of the Redskins' interceptions were made by another former Eagle, cornerback Joe Lavender, who was traded to Washington in the preseason by Coach Dick Vermeil after failing to report to camp on time because of a contract dispute.

"I'm a Redskin now," a happy Lavender said the obvious in the locker room, where he received the game ball.

Vermeil, who saw his Eagles squander a 10-0 lead in 62 seconds late in the second quarter, said, "We did a good job of beating ourselves."

"The Skins played well enough to beat us, but you can't beat many teams the way we played. We turned it over bad at the end."

"We can talk about what could have been, and should have been, but look at the score."

Vermeil said there was "no good news when you lose" but Eagles linebacker Frank Lemaster saw something positive in the heart-breaking loss.

"We grew up a little more," he said.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's 15 rounds at Yankee Stadium tonight if it goes the limit, and if it does, Muhammad Ali says Ken Norton's going to be the new champion, but you know Ali, he likes to talk a lot, so don't go betting all your money on everything he says.

He predicts he'll flatten Norton by the fifth round, otherwise he'll lose the title on a decision, the implication being Norton is in better physical shape than him.

That could be true. Ali has a little roll around his middle, Norton does not, and I'm a devout believer that the better conditioned man generally prevails all other things being equal, but right there's the catch because I don't think Norton is the equal of Ali in so many other departments.

A week or so ago, Ali was troubled by some stiffness around the neck, but that's completely gone now. He's in good enough condition so that there is no earthly reason for him to say Norton will win if the fight goes the limit other than the fact he always enjoys injecting an element of suspense or mystery in everything he does. It helps him alleviate some of the boredom.

Ali has never had much trouble going 15 rounds. He has done so seven times, losing only once, to Joe Frazier five years ago. Norton has never gone 15 rounds in his 40 professional fights, and if you'd like to get some kind of line on how he looked to a neutral observer preparing for this one, Joe Louis changed his mind after watching him work and picked Ali to beat him after originally saying he thought Norton would win.

Maybe you've noticed where Ali isn't talking about retiring so much anymore. There's a reason for it. His manager, Herbert Muhammad, told him to knock it off because his constant talk about quitting wasn't serving any useful purpose and people were growing tired of hearing it.

"If you're going to quit, quit; if not, don't talk about it until you do," his manager told him.

Ali is 34 but isn't about to quit. "I can't quit," he says. "I got too many things I wanna do yet."

Some years after he finally did quit, Joe Louis talked about how difficult it is to hang up the gloves for good, and speaking about it, he said there comes a time where every fighter realizes he should retire but goes on fighting anyway.

"You know you gotta quit sometime and if you don't someone's finally gonna beat you, but you always say to yourself, 'it's not gonna be tonight, and it ain't gonna be this bum,'" was the way Joe Louis put it.

Ali doesn't call Norton a bum. Still there is little doubt in his mind he can beat him even though Norton has three years on him and is responsible for one of the two losses he has suffered in his 54 fights.

Man-to-man, Ali is a 2 to 1 favorite and should be more than that, which isn't to say I think Ali is invincible. It's simply that he's an excellent boxer, considerably better than Norton, he's much more imaginative, more experienced and more resourceful when it comes to working his way out trouble or coping with any emergency. I've seen Norton when he's having trouble and he's something less than inspiring handling it. Ali finds ways to win even when there seems to be none.

He's Houdini, Hairbreath Harry and Superman all rolled into one, and even though he makes my ears tired whenever he goes around hollering he's the greatest, I certainly give him this—there's nobody better than him around today.

Norton broke Ali's jaw when he beat him in their first fight at San Diego in March, 1973, and although that could happen again, I don't think it's likely. Six months after their first fight, Ali won a controversial decision in their second one at Los Angeles even though he went into that fight with bad hands, which are okay now.

I have heard Ken Norton say he has everything to gain and nothing to lose, and that could be true as far as it goes. I don't think, however, that's enough to make him the new world heavyweight champion.

If Ali keeps fighting long enough, I have every confidence somebody will come along eventually and beat him. I don't see Ken Norton doing it tonight.

The way I see it, Muhammad Ali will keep his title tonight, even if the fight does go the full distance, and I wouldn't be at all surprised if it does.

There Will Be Baseball at UCCC

Dear Sports Editor:

Is it possibly true that Ulster County Community College will not have a baseball team in 1977 due to monetary problems and lack of a coach?

The reason I ask is that my son is attending UCCC for the next two years and was looking forward to trying out for the team. Also, several local top baseball players from the Legion teams and a couple of the Kingston Braves are attending UCCC.

With all the interest in baseball in the area, it would be a shame if there was not any baseball at UCCC.

I am wondering if you could look into this and report it in your daily column in the Freeman.

RAYMOND A. MATHISEN
Red Hook

Your fears are unjustified, according to Ulster AD Al DiBernardo. There will be a baseball season at UCCC this spring, he says, and the team will play a relatively large schedule of 23 or 24 games. Ulster still is without a coach, but the college is studying applications and should make an announcement before long.—Sports Editor.

Conversations With a Coach

Now, many of you out there probably think that being a high school coach can be a nerve-racking job — physically tiring, emotionally draining, vocally exhausting. Well, you're all wrong, each and every one of you. Coaching is EASY.

Forget all that stuff about coaches being under pressure to win, about losing sleep over officials' calls or upcoming games — propaganda! All a coach has to do is be able to understand different types of logic and conversation — a piece of cake.

However, since not many people are aware of the talent that coaches possess, I've decided to give you some snatches of actual conversations involving high school coaches. I'll call our coach "Knutte," although that's not his real name.

***
PRINCIPAL: Fred, I want to talk to you about the team. You know, we're not doing all that well.

KNUTE: Yes, I know, but the kids are really trying. We'll win some games. After all, we've played the top two teams in the nation, plus the Oakland Raiders' final cuts.

PRINCIPAL: I realize that, but we do want to bring home a winner to Diddleysvale, don't we? What was it that Vince Lombardi said, "Defeat is worse than death, because you have to live with it."?

KNUTE: I don't think...
PRINCIPAL: Well, you know what I mean. Get tough with these kids, they'll come around. Knock some heads together if you have to. And another thing, we've been getting some lousy calls against us. Don't be afraid to jump on these officials. We're behind you 1,000 percent!

KNUTE: I see.

***
PARENT: Listen, what's the idea of kicking my son off the team?

KNUTE: He was disrespectful, missed practices, and violated our training rules. Plus, he wasn't putting out on the field.

PARENT: Listen, my kid can run rings around the other guys ymu have. He says the problem with the team is you! You don't know how to coach!

KNUTE: We've won more games under me than with any other coach, and please stop poking me with your finger.

PARENT: I won't you to reinstate my boy!

KNUTE: I won't do that, and stop poking me.

PARENT: I want you to resign for the good of the team!

KNUTE: I won't do that either, and if you poke me with that finger once more, you're gonna lose it.

PARENT: I'm going to the school board about this!

KNUTE: That's nice...

BOARD MEMBER: Knute, Mr. Bleat called me up after the game on Saturday and told me about your kicking his son off the team for no apparent reason.

KNUTE: His son missed half his practices with no excuse, showed up drunk three times, and swore at me in front of the team. I mean, a coach has to maintain the rules. Otherwise, there'd be chaos.

MEMBER: Yes, but remember the primary purpose of high school athletics is to have fun! Don't be so hard on the boys; this isn't the pros, you know. Ease up a little.

KNUTE: I see.

MEMBER: And what's this about your threatening to break Mr. Bleat's arm if he disagreed with you?

KNUTE: Did he say that?

KNUTE: But I didn't...

MEMBER: Let's forget it, shall we? You were probably just upset over losing the game. But there is one other thing — about this arguing with the referee's calls. I wish you wouldn't do that. It creates a bad impression for the boys. I mean, they have to learn to respect authority.

KNUTE: I see.

MEMBER: Good. Well, I'll see you at the game this Saturday. Give 'em hell, and let's see if we can't bring home a victory this time. Remember, we're all behind you!

KNUTE: That's nice to know...

***

Masters' Sponsor Sues Insurance Co.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The sponsor of the Masters Golf Tournament has filed a lawsuit charging an insurance company with "deceiving and misleading the public" by naming a golf tournament the Ladies Masters.

Augusta National Golf Club Inc. filed suit in federal court Monday against the against the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

The suit said the firm planned to sponsor he Ladies Masters at Moss Creek Plantation near Hilton Head, S.C., next spring.

It alleged the defendant was "seeking to trade on the good will and public acceptance developed by the plaintiffs over many years" by using name "Masters" in the tournament.

The lawsuit asked that the court to permanently enjoin the insurance firm from using the name in connection with the Hilton Head tournament or any other tournament.

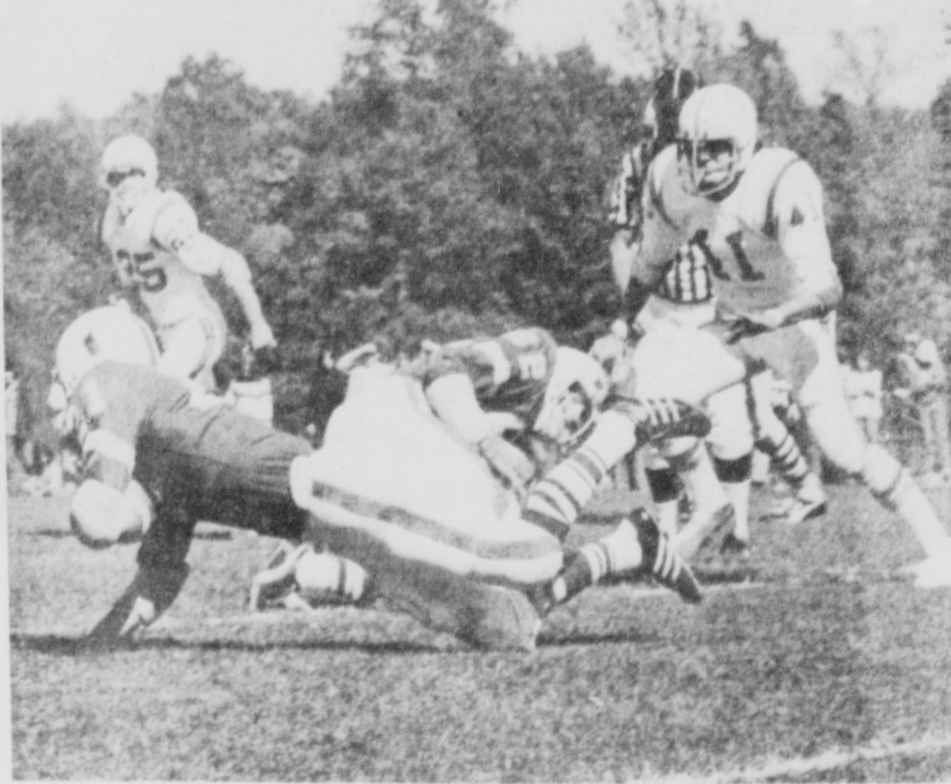

The Augusta club contended the defendants' actions "constitute an infringement upon the plaintiffs' exclusive right to the use of the term 'Masters' and also constitutes unfair competition."

"The use of the name 'Masters' by the defendant is an attempt to encroach on the business and good will of the plaintiff with the intention of deceiving and misleading the public."

The suit charged the insurance firm's motive was to "enhance and bolster the image of the defendants' annual golf tournament and to promote real estate sales."

It said in last February, the defendants notified the Augusta club that the name of the Hilton Head tournament would be changed to the Womens International, but the defendant announced in August the event would be called the "Ladies Masters at Moss Creek Plantation for April, 1977."

Michigan Takes Command

NEW YORK (UPI) — Michigan's Wolverines, their arch rival Ohio State stung by defeat, walked off with a lion's share of the first place votes Monday to take a commanding lead in the third week of college football ratings by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The top-rated Wolverines, who out-rated Ohio State by 80 points last week, took advantage of the Buckeyes' narrow 22-21 home defeat by Missouri to pick off 39 of the 42 first place votes — eight more than last week — and outpoint second-rated UCLA by over 100 points, 417-309. The remaining three first place votes all went to Pittsburgh, which was third with 292 points.

Ohio State, meanwhile, which will have a chance to regain some of its lost ranking this week when it entertains second-rated UCLA, dropped from second to eighth. For the Buckeyes, it was their lowest rating in five years.

Defending champion Oklahoma similarly moved up a notch to fourth place in the wake of the Ohio State plunge and the Sooners came within a point of overtaking Pittsburgh as well, finishing with 291. Nebraska, which crushed TCU 64-10, was fifth, while Georgia, a 20-12 victor over highly-regarded South Carolina, improved a notch to sixth.

Maryland was seventh and Alabama and Missouri completed the top 10.

Unbeaten Kansas, one of the many surprise teams of this early season, headed the second ten, followed by Southern California, LSU, North Carolina and Notre Dame. For Southern California, it was an improvement of three places, while LSU, 31-0 winner over Rice, jumped two notches. Notre Dame was not ranked last week, but apparently, off two straight victories, is ready to assume the national rating which has always been part of its tradition.

Boston College, Florida, Houston, Tulsa and Texas completed the second ten.

Dropping out of the top 20

this week for the first time in two years were Penn State and Texas A&M — both upset victims last week.

WOULD YOU PAY HIS FINE?

Chances are you would not be willing to pay the fine incurred by a bad driver. But you may be paying for his insurance. To avoid this, see if you can qualify for Auto-Rite—the policy that offers safe drivers quality insurance at lower rates.

Curfew Imposed In Beacon

BEACON, N.Y. (UPI) — The city council voted unanimously Monday night to impose a seven-day-a-week, 11 p.m. curfew on youths under 17 in this Dutchess County city.

The action was taken, officials said, at the request of downtown area businessmen and was aimed at cutting down vandalism in the section.

Youths going to or from "sanctioned" events, such as school dances or jobs, would be exempted as long as they carried a note from an adult showing why they were on the street, the council decided.

Under the law, parents of youths caught violating the curfew would be subject to a fine.

Beacon became the second Dutchess community to pass a youth curfew in recent weeks, joining the town of Pine Plains.

ANONYMOUS

By Steve Prince and Jim Fiebig

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 29
Your Birthday Today: You're off to a running start on a three-adventure experience. First you take on more than feasible on short resources; next you struggle to bring your efforts into balance, experimentally switch back and forth; then late in your year you hit on a stable, productive marketing formula, move on to prosperity. Relationships suffer interruption. Today's natives are children of fate, encounter strange phenomena. Those born this year will enjoy last-minute "luck," talk themselves out of any predicament.
Aries (March 21-April 19): Choose your companions carefully. Don't react to moods. People with inner conflicts try to make them your fault. Good news arrives tonight.
Taurus (April 20-May 20): Believe very little of what you hear. You may pick up a bargain. But it's a real buy only if it's within your budget and pertinent to plans coming up soon.
Gemini (May 21-June 20): Today is a hiatus in heavy duty. Relax, let your sense of the absurd wait you through. Be content to do odd jobs. Nothing is productive before evening.
Cancer (June 21-July 22): Do the minimum until you're sure the road is clear, it's time for action. Adventurous escapades are favored for the young. Pursue a romantic notion.
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Be wildly optimistic if you wish as long as you realize that you are. Allow for inflated figures and expectations. Something inspires you to reorganize.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You've no copyright on criticism, as shown by remarks making the rounds. Take none of it seriously. Tonight there's opportunity for personal success.
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check for security, insurance coverage, general welfare of your establishment. Faulty information comes in from all sides. Prefer your intuition as a guide.
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The morning's bubble bursts by afternoon, with no bad after effects. Delay fielding questions on incomplete news. Enjoy social progress tonight.
Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Only discretion succeeds. Details are easily misunderstood, associates bring in contrary proposals. Make a sound financial move. Celebrate tonight!
Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Work already done falls apart due to mishandling by others. Repeat what is needed. Personal affairs take on more importance, love life appears happier.
Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Even if matters seem to be rapidly deteriorating, keep your hands off. Carry your responsibilities, and let others shoulder theirs. Save arguments for later.
Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Get with today's beat. Treat current experience as rehearsal, nothing signed as final. Make no promises before evening, then you'll be too busy socializing.

TRICKED: (Q.) I just started going out with boys. Last week was the second date I had. It was with a boy named Don.
 He asked me to come in to meet his parents, so I did. But when we got inside, I found out that his parents were not there. He had lied to me.
 He turned into a crazy person and attacked me. It was awful. I don't know what made him do such a thing.
 I'm only 13 years old and I am afraid to tell my parents, or even go out with another boy. — Helpless in Connecticut.
(A.) We all sometimes have to do things we are afraid to do. As you realize, you need help. You must tell your parents what happened — exactly what happened, all that happened.
 Telling them will make you feel much better. And they can give or get you the help you need.
 Your experience is an example of why I say that 13-year-olds are not ready for regular dating. If you and Don had been chaperoned, this ugly event would not have happened.
STARTING: (Q.) There is this boy, Larry, who lives on my street. I like him very much. In fact, I can't get him out of my mind. I think he likes me too, because every time he rides by in his car, he looks at me. A few days ago, he winked at me.

 There is one problem. How do I get him to talk to me? I'm 16 and very speechless when it comes time for me to do the talking.
 Just please don't tell me to go up to him and say, "Hi, my name is Ginny. What's yours?", or something like that. I want him to come to me and say something like that. How do I get him to? — Ginny in Connecticut.
(A.) Any girl who is 16 can talk to a boy. You can. So do what you tell me not to tell you to do — go up to Larry and talk to him.
 You can also invite him to call you, and give him your telephone number, so that he will remember to do so.
 (Have a problem? Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received, Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

 South ruffed the third club, led a diamond to dummy's king and returned dummy's jack of hearts for a finesse.
 West won the third defensive trick with the king of hearts and returned a trump, content to let declarer develop the hand by himself. To put it another way, West knew how to sit still.
 We can't say as much for East. That busy fellow had to discard on the second round of trumps, and he decided to play a clever nine of spades.
NO OTHER PLAY
 The idea was to talk South out of the spade finesse. As it happened, South had no other

World In Brief

WEEK AND PATTY TESTIFY — Patricia Hearst spent 2½ hours Monday telling the Alameda County Grand Jury about her kidnapping February 1974 by the S.L.A. Her former boyfriend, Steven Wood, with whom she was living in an apartment in Berkeley, Calif., at the time, also testified for 30 minutes. There was no word on what they told the panel. District Attorney Lowell Jensen said he would call about 45 witnesses and seek an indictment charging William and Emily Harris with kidnap, false imprisonment and assault with a deadly weapon. ## Process Invented To Make Boy Babies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new process of washing semen to separate the stronger sperm from the weaker to increase the chances of pregnancy for childless couples has been developed and patented by Dr. Ronald J. Ericsson of Gemetrics Limited of Sausalito, Calif.

The Population Reference Bureau, a nonprofit educational institution, said, "However, associated with it (the new process) is the possibility of increasing the likelihood of male offspring." Clinics accepting applications for the procedure are asking couples to sign consent forms, which include an acknowledgement "that any baby that is conceived is likely to be male."

The British Pound Continues Its Plunge

LONDON (UPI) — The British pound dropped two cents in London Monday to close at a record low rate of $1.6810, four cents less than a week ago and 10 cents less than at the beginning of September. In New York it closed even lower — $1.6715.

The pound's low value means that holidays in Britain are cheaper than ever for foreign tourists. It also means British goods are cheaper abroad but goods imported into Britain will be more expensive. Money dealers said the pound's decline appeared to be due to a combination of several factors, including the fact that the Bank of England, on government instructions, has not intervened for three weeks to bolster the pound.

Sen. Sparkman Foils Missile Sale Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., after a phone call from Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, got unanimous consent to pull a resolution rejecting missile sales to Saudi Arabia off the Senate calendar and send it back to the Foreign Relations Committee.

Sparkman's move angered supporters of the resolution, who did not know about it until after it was done. Further discussion by the committee will be the first order of business today. In the House the International Affairs Committee Monday was unable to muster a quorum to vote on a disapproval resolution. The House vote could come today.

United Way Tightens Its Accounting for Spending

(United Way of Ulster County needs to raise $481,000 between now and November to help operate its 17 member agencies during the coming year. This is the first in a series of stories about United Way, its members and their services to citizens of Ulster County. — Editor.)

With 17 member agencies each providing much needed help in the community, United Way of Ulster County is faced with the task of deciding what share of the donations it raises each member will receive.

The final allocations are made by the United Way's Board of Directors, but the groundwork for that decision is done by the organization's budget and allocations committee, chaired by Kingston accountant C. Lester Legg. Legg's committee, composed of five members, reviews the budgets of each agency and then presents the information to the board.

"One thing to remember," says Legg, "is that none of the agencies is entirely funded by the United Way. Some agencies, like the Association for Retarded Children, receive federal money. Others get money from the state and some from Ulster County. What we provide is the money they need above what is raised from outside sources."

By way of example, an agency with a budget of $100,000 may raise as much as $75,000 from grants, membership, and fundraising events. The United Way would provide the agency with the $25,000 it needs to carry out its programs.

In order to become a member of United Way the agency must submit a list of programs for approval. Any programs that are not approved are not eligible for funding. This can cause problems.

"What we do," said Legg referring to his committee, "is review the agency's budget and determine if they have expanded any programs to encompass areas not previously approved. If they have, we present the information to the board who must then determine if the programs are viable and eligible for approval."

Legg notes that by their very nature the organizations tend to expand programs. Then the situation tends to get complex.

"If an agency has a program entitled recreation for children, they may have been providing baseball, football, and basketball. This year they may want to add soccer to the program. It's still recreation for children, but they need approval for additional funding."

The budgets of the agencies are reviewed annually and in 1975 the by-laws of the United Way were amended to provide greater accountability. The amendment is based on guidelines drawn up by a task force of representatives of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the National Health Council, the National Assembly of National Volunteer Health Organizations and the United Way of America. In addition, the United Way of America has issued a new set of standards for accounting and financial reporting.

"What we've done," says Legg, "is condense the new guidelines for local use. What may be useful to a national organization in New York City may not be appropriate for the local Boys Club. The basic difference is that the agencies must now itemize expenditures in each of their programs as opposed to the old system of listing program expenses in bulk."

Legg, who attends about 20 meetings each fall as chairman of the budget and allocations committee, has held seminars to familiarize the agencies with the new guidelines. He says it's too soon to tell what problems the new system may give rise to.

Property Owners Told HUD Help Is Coming Soon

Low Cost Loans On Way Downtown

MARKETBASKET Cost Of Food Down Again

KINGSTON — Food prices in the city dropped .7 per cent for the seven day period ending September 24, marking the second consecutive decline in as many weeks.

The Ulster County Consumer Information Service branch of the District Attorney's office has released figures indicating the 41-item market basket cost $65.53 for the week. The same foods were priced at $65.97 for the week ending September 17.

The market basket index is based on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Moderate Cost Family Food Plan and includes the various amounts of foods which should be consumed to provide a nutritious diet for a family of four.

The only products which showed price increases were fresh fruits and vegetables, up 8.7 per cent and beverages, up 2.4 per cent. The largest single category decrease in price was grain products, down 4.1 per cent over the previous week.

Market basket information is based on a survey of at least three Kingston chain supermarkets.

KINGSTON — Property owners in the downtown Broadway West area were told last night they should be eligible for low-interest rehabilitation loans within weeks. The rest of a $470,000 public improvement program for the area should be underway by springtime, officials said.

Countering doubts among residents about the long-discussed program for the long-deteriorating neighborhood, Community Development Director Ralph A. Marallo said federal money is finally ready.

Just this week, Marallo said, federal HUD officials released the remaining $260,000 for the Broadway West program. That money comes from the city's second-year entitlement under the federal community development program, and the first $210,000 comes from first-year funds.

Of the $470,000, some $40,000 would go into an "up front" loan pool that would encourage local banks to loan money for private rehabilitation in the Rondout and Broadway West area. With federal help, property owners would pay 3 per cent interest on 10-year loans, Marallo said.

Some of the two dozen area residents and businessmen were skeptical about the loans, but Marallo said arrangements have been made with one bank and are being made with two others.

Loans could average $5,000 per dwelling unit — for example, a two-family house would qualify for $10,000 — and no property owner would be refused because of low personal income, Marallo said.

Frank H. Simpson Jr., owner of a commercial and residential building on West Strand, said he resented asking property owners to go into debt to improve their properties before most of the public improvements begin on Broadway West.

Simpson also doubted the commercial wisdom of rehabilitating property in that neighborhood: "I could have a mansion there, but I still couldn't get any income from my building because the whole area is a dump," he said.

Richard M. Kalish, chairman of the neighborhood advisory committee which called the meeting, asked the property owners "not to be pessimistic. The only way we're going to succeed is to have everybody cooperate with us."

Broadway West rehabilitation is seen as a possible catalyst to private reinvestment in the nearby Broadway East area, where major commercial redevelopment has failed to follow a $15 million urban renewal program that demolished most of the old neighborhoods.

Real estate broker Helen R. Quigley, recalling negotiations with one prospective Broadway East developer, said if brokers "could have done something with Broadway West, we could have consummated that deal."

"I look on the positive side," Marallo said. "If we do something positive here (in Broadway West), there may be a reaction over there."

Annie Jackson, longtime East Strand resident, wasn't as optimistic: "I was at the first meeting that was held. I am still here. I hope I live long enough to see (Broadway East) restored," she said.

Still a major hangup in the Broadway West plan, as it was when details were announced this past spring, is finding an engineer to handle final designs and get

Dutchess Buys Part of Spada Garbage Routes Sold

KINGSTON — Dutchess Sanitation, currently in a legal dispute with Plattekill officials over dumping non-local garbage at its landfill in that town, has bought out the commercial routes of Spada Sanitation of Kingston.

The sale, completed last week for an

At the same time it sold its several hundred commercial pickups to Dutchess, Spada also sold its residential routes in Kingston and Ulster, serving about 1,000 homes, to Ulster Sanitation Co.

Dutchess Sanitation, a large and growing Poughkeepsie-based firm, will give its new Kingston and Ulster customers "much better service than I was able to give," said Michael G. Spada, owner of Spada Sanitation.

Spada, who for years has run a local construction and trucking firm, got into the garbage business in mid-1975 when he bought out Elliott Refuse Co., an Ulster-based firm, and it was basically these customers who have been resold to Dutchess and Ulster Sanitation, Spada said.

Spada said he decided to get out of the commercial and residential side of the business this year "because there are too many headaches. You've gotta be nuts to be in that business."

Spada said his company still definitely intends to go through with its contract with the city after the new municipal transfer station is completed, probably sometime next year.

Under that setup, the city will take over all refuse collection, garbage and trash, and deliver it to the transfer station. After compaction, the combined refuse will be taken from the transfer station by Spada to a private landfill.

As yet, Spada said, he was "not at liberty" to announce at what landfill the municipal refuse would be dumped — but it wouldn't be at Dutchess' Plattekill

Caution Greets Catskill Plan

NEW PALTZ — Local officials are taking a wait and see attitude toward State Environmental Conservation Commissioner Peter Berle's latest proposal for a commission to study land use planning in the Catskill region.

Berle was to release today a 15-volume report urging the creation of a Catskill Regional Land Resources Management Commission.

To help defuse local opposition, which in the past has centered around the loss of home rule, Berle said he would seek the appointment of an advisory panel made up of local tax experts to study the relationship between land use controls and local property tax values.

Peter Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature said he would have to see the proposal before offering comment.

However, he did leave the door open to the possibility that such a plan could benefit the local area.

Similar reaction was expressed by Denning Supervisor Harold Van Aken and Hardenburgh Supervisor Lester Bourke.

"Perhaps there should be some land use planning," said Bourke, "but any proposals I've seen up to this point have indicated a loss of personal control by the individuals who own the property in question."

According to Berle's plan, the new commission — which would need approval by the State Legislature — would be a seven-member panel appointed by the governor. At least five of the members would be representatives of the counties of Ulster, Green, Sullivan, Delaware and Schoharie.

Although the issue surrounding regional planning in the Catskill area has been debated for years, Berle said, "The problems of land use in the Catskills have not diminished. Rather they have intensified. If further deterioration of the resources and economic base is to be avoided, prompt and purposeful state and local action is required to redefine the arrangement for air, land and water resource management."

The new study reportedly includes data compiled by the now defunct Temporary State Commission to Study the Catskills.

Mona Had Eating Troubles, Too

Dr. Naruo Nakamura, a heart specialist at Tokyo's Keio University, points to yellowing in the corner of Mona Lisa's left eye which he says is an indication the Florentine matron suffered from high cholesterol. Nakamura made this diagnosis after studying prints of the famous Da Vinci portrait and confirming that the yellow was not a discoloration but part of the original painting. Nakamura suggested that she over indulged in fatty foods and probably "ate her way to an early grave."

Ivan Accepts an Offer

MOSCOW (UPI) — Baku, the capital of Soviet Azerbaijan and an oil center, has accepted an invitation to become a "twin city" to Houston, Texas.

The Tass news agency said Monday city officials have invited a delegation from Houston to visit the Caspian Sea city to work out a program.

Baku traces its history to the 10th century. With a population of 1.4 million, it is the fifth largest city in the Soviet Union.

It's a Bloomin' Change

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Trees along northeast coastal shorelines are in bloom again, confused by Tropical Storm Belle into thinking it is springtime.

Salt spray kicked up by gale force winds on Aug. 9 burned tree leaves, turning them brown. Residents and experts now report new leaves emerging from the seared brown branches.

Tree specialists said tropical storms and hurricanes bring in the salt spray but it is usually washed off by the heavy rain that follows. When Belle struck Aug. 9, she brought no rain.

The salt injury stretches east as far as New Bedford, Mass., and southwest along the Connecticut coast and onto Long Island.

Tom Correll, a county extension agent on Long Island, said the trees there took the brunt of the storm and their confusion was dramatic.

Schuler Names 25 For MTA Study

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State Transportation Commissioner Raymond Schuler has named 25 persons to help him in studying the Metropolitan Transportation Authority. The group, appointed Monday, will constitute a Citizens Advisory Committee. Schuler is directing the management study of the MTA at the request of Gov. Hugh Carey.

A spokesman for the department said the study, begun earlier this year, would take

"18 or 20 more months."

Thus far, he said, the department team had "defined the parameters of the study," which centers on the management, finances and operations of the MTA.

The commissioner said Theodore Halperin of the Bronx, an attorney and chairman of the transportation committee of the city Bar Association, would head the advisory panel.

The other members were named from the education, transportation, social sciences and related fields.

He stressed that there would be a "definite work program carried out by the committee," including the holding of public forums in the MTA's service area and independent examinations of the authority's structure, operations and responsiveness to the public. The advisory committee will also review the work of the staff of the management study and will prepare a final report, Schuler said.

"When we undertook this study, I pledged that it would be an open one, with broad participation by the public," Schuler said.

"This committee will be an important means of doing that," he said, by providing the study with the "independent thoughts of the public."

Jimmy Carter Labels Ford Worst President Than Richard Nixon

(By UPI)
Jimmy Carter, defending his sw-epiced Playboy interview for several days, is on the attack this week, calling President Ford a worse president than Richard Nixon and questioning administration motives in Africa.

While Carter cut a campaign swath from the Pacific Northwest through the Midwest and on home to Plains today, Ford was busy Monday in his challenger's Southern homeland, courting Cuban-Americans among others in a visit to Florida before returning to Washington.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the President's three-day Southern swing, including a joint appearance with Democratic Gov. George Wallace of Alabama Sunday, was "just terrific," and that Ford benefited from a "warm reception."

Ford's main theme Monday was crime, and his plans to combat it over the next four years. Speaking to a National Police Chiefs convention, he said, "It is time to give the streets back to law-abiding citizens, and to put the criminals behind bars."

As Ford was envisioning his future to audiences and preparing for briefings on Rhodesia today, Carter, who spent much of last week explaining his "adultery in my heart" statement, concentrated Monday on the administration record to date.

"Richard Nixon was bad enough," the Democratic presidential candidate told an Evansville, Ind., audience, "It's been worse the past two years.

Turning to foreign affairs, Carter said the administration initiative on the Rhodesian question "has been a tardy thing, and whether or not it was brought about by the election-year considerations, I don't know."

After an embarrassingly small turnout for his appearance in a southern California Latin community Sunday, Carter campaign officials said Hispanic adviser, Alex Aguiar, will be replaced by a new committee, but they insisted the decision was made before Sunday's snafu. The turnout for Carter was several thousand below expectations.

The League of Women Voters announced Monday the Oct. 6 Ford-Carter debate in San Francisco will be held at 9:30 p.m. EDT at the Palace of Fine Arts.

GOP vice presidential candidate Bob Dole mentioned Williamsburg, Va. to an interviewer asking about the site of the third Ford-Carter debate Oct. 22. Later, Dole said he only spoke of the historic city as a possible site.

While Dole wooed farm belt support for the Republicans Monday, his Democratic counterpart, Walter Mondale took a day off from the campaign trail to return to Washington where the Senate is nearing completion of business before adjournment.

Tremper House Goes Begging

KINGSTON — It's back to the think tank on the future of the Tremper House now that no private bidders have come forth to buy the historic building at 3 North Front St. for a minimum $75,000.

Friday's deadline for receiving "proposals of interest" on private purchase of the building came and went without a single bid, said James G. Connors, executive director of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency.

Connors didn't rule out the possibility that the KURA might now consider private bids lower than the $75,000 minimum: "We can listen," he said.

"We will still continue to investigate all possible uses of the building, both private and public," Connors said.

The 175-year-old house, the last of nine Stockade Area buildings saved from urban renewal whose future is still undecided, once was considered for restoration as a public museum or cultural center.

A $40,000 IBM grant was used to restore the exterior of the three-story house. A 1973 agreement between KURA and the Kingston Landmark Preservation Commission to raise funds for interior restoration failed to bring any sizeable private donations, Connors said.

"We don't have a deadline on this matter. It would be impractical to have one," he said.

Connors said the KURA would continue to confer with the commission and other city agencies about final disposition of the property.

Green Light for Revenue Sharing With Extra Rights Protection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Weary House-Senate negotiators agreed early today to give state and local governments $25.6 billion in revenue sharing over nearly four years and to strengthen the program's civil rights protections.

The agreement, which now goes to the House and Senate for final approval, would extend the revenue sharing, due to expire at the end of December, through September 1980.

States and localities have received $30 billion under the program since 1972.

The extension was a hard-fought compromise between a House bill providing $25 billion over 3 1/2 years and a Senate bill, backed by the administration, providing $41 billion over 5 1/2 years.

A conference committee of eight senators and 10 representatives argued for 10 1/2 hours and wearily reached agreement at 12:30 a.m. EDT.

The conference bill:

revenue sharing funds. The current law bars discrimination only as to race, national origin or sex. Critics have charged it is not enforced.

— Adds new procedures under which an administrative law judge, after a hearing, could suspend funds to a locality he finds is discriminating. The locality could appeal to the courts. The federal government could initiate civil rights suits against localities.

— Allows citizens to file suits charging discrimination or other violations of the revenue sharing law and try to have funds suspended, terminated or even refunded to Washington. If the citizens win, courts could make localities pay their attorneys' fees.

— Gives citizens more say in how revenue sharing funds will be used by providing for two separate public hearings.

— Removes a requirement in the present law that they be used in several broad priorities such as public safety, environment and health.

The bill also promises all the money in advance with no annual appropriations by Congress.

Syrians, Christians Launch Battle To Liberate the Lebanon Mountains

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrians and Christians launched a major attack against Palestinian guerrillas in the mountains northeast of Beirut today in what appeared to be the start of a long-expected thrust to rout them from their strategic positions.

Christian forces brought reinforcements from the east and the north and said the "most decisive battle" of Lebanon's 17-month civil war had begun.

"It's started," said a Christian spokesman. "The battle to liberate our mountains has begun."

Palestinian spokesmen said the Syrians launched a "massive, all-out attack" at dawn with armored thrusts from two directions on the main Palestinian positions at Aintouras and Metein, 20 miles northeast of Beirut. The Christians opened a separate front against the Palestinians from the northwest.

The Palestinians said the Syrians and Christians had thrown heavy artillery, rockets and tanks into the "full-scale" battle. Syrian MIG jetfighters were reported flying over the battle lines but there were conflicting reports as to whether they actually were being used in the attack.

Palestinians said Syrian forces massed at Sofar, 15 miles southeast of Beirut, thrust north to cut the main Palestinian supply line leading into the mountains while other Syrian troops in the eastern Bekaa Valley pushed westward toward Aintouras.

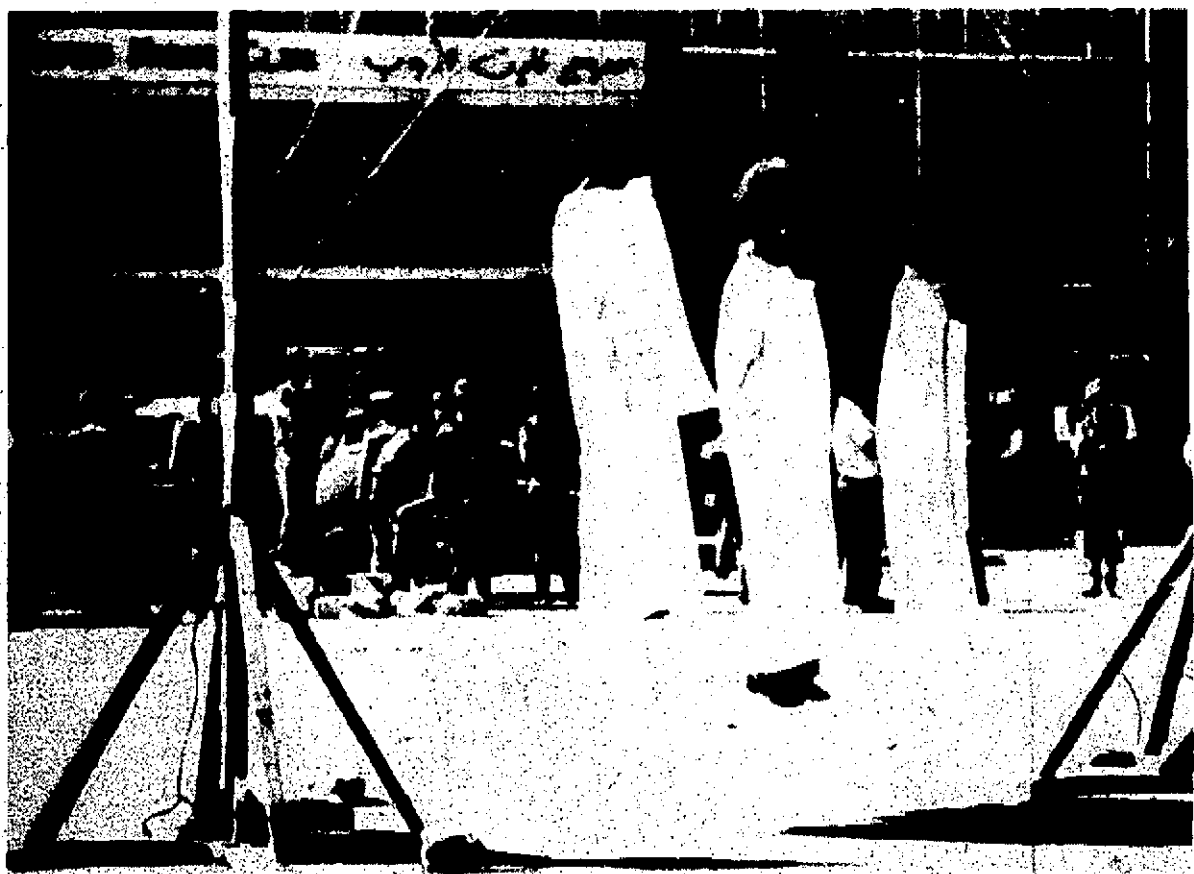

Palestinian reports indicated that Hamana, the first major town along their supply route a few miles north of Sofar, had been captured.

Syrian forces opened heavy artillery and rocket fire on the mountain village of Alei, the stronghold of Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt, a leftist-Palestinian military communique said.

The Palestinian-leftist leadership met in emergency session under Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and a leftist broadcast said they sent an urgent message to the Arab League in Cairo, where Jumblatt is meeting with Egyptian officials.

The attack had been expected ever since the collapse of Syrian-Palestinian peace talks nine days ago that ended in what both sides described as "complete failure" to agree over the terms of mountain withdrawals.

—SWIFT JUSTICE

Bodies, wearing placards, hang from the gallows in downtown Damascus outside the Hotel Semiran. The three men and an accomplice, who was killed, had seized the hotel Sept. 26 and held hostages before they were captured by Syrian troops. Thousands of persons crowded to within 50 yards of the hanging, the first held publicly in Damascus since the execution 11 years ago of an accused Israeli spy.

ZAND UNDER FIRE

Logan Says He Didn't Follow Board's Orders

NEW PALTZ— New Palts Village Trustee John Logan last night berated Village Attorney J. Phillip Zand for failing to follow a directive issued by the board at its August meeting.

At that time the board adopted a resolution which directed Zand to see to it that 12 apartments on Pencil Hill Road were evacuated because the owner did not have a certificate of occupancy.

"Mr. Zand is not elected by the people," said Logan, the board is elected and therefore he is supposed to follow our directions."

Logan's outburst was brought about when Mayor John Vett read a letter from Zand in which the attorney explained why he didn't think action should be taken at this time. According to Zand, attorneys for Pencil Hill Properties' principle owner Vincent Germano are asking that they be supplied with all material relevant to the 1968 adoption of the village zoning ordinance in order to determine if the village took all the proper steps in its adoption. Logan saw this as merely a delaying tactic in order to reach an out of court settlement.

"This man is renting those apartments without a certificate of occupancy and that seems to be the issue as far as I'm concerned," said Logan. "I'd like to see the law enforced on everybody, including the rich and powerful who seem to be able to get to our public officials."

According to Mayor Vett, the situation dates back to the spring of 1975 when Germano brought suit against the village for overassessment. The village hired a Syracuse assessor to examine the complex and make the necessary recommendations. The assessor reportedly found that Germano was under-assessed since he claimed to have only 80 apartments when he was renting 72. A check of village records indicated that Germano had submitted to the New Palts Planning Board a plan for 60 apartmentz with 12 additional units listed as utility rooms. He was never granted a certificate of occupancy for the 12 units as apartments.

Logan offered a resolution last night that would have redirected Zand to see to it that the apartments were evacuated, but the motion failed to receive support from a majority on the five member board.

Trustee George Ackert abstained, saying he would like to meet with Zand before any further action was taken. Citing similar reasons Trustee O. Lincoln Igou and Vett voted against the measure. Trustee Judith Fractenburg supported Logan.

Outraged that the board did not support the resolution, Logan noted that it was Igou who introduced the same resolution last month.

"We directed Zand to take action and he took none," said Logan.

"It seems to me that his action was to take no action," said Igou.

"I give up," said Logan, throwing his hands in the air.

The board agreed to meet with Zand in executive session on Wednesday night to discuss the matter.

In other action the board approved a measure that authorizes the Village Planning Board to submit an application for money from the federal government's Local Public Works Capital Development and Investment Program. The village is seeking $102,000 to complete their Main St. sewer system. Vett noted that the money was in addition to the $95,000 being sought from the Community Development Program.

The board meeting was preceded by a public hearing on the village's pending adoption of the New York State Fire Prevention Code. Former New Palts Fire Chief Bruce Ashton said the measure was long overdue and he supported its adoption. The board did not take any action on the measure during the regular meeting.

AARP Plans Dinner, Bus Trips

At the chapter's next meeting on Monday, Oct. 4, Dr. Edward Quinn, a New Palts rheumatologist, will show an film on arthritis and answer questions from the audience. A blood pressure clinic will precede the 1 p.m. meeting at the VFW Building, Route 208, New Palts.

AARP state director Arthur

Burgess will be the guest speaker at the chapter's fifth anniversary dinner at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 26, at Dominic's Restaurant, New Palts. A cocktail hour will precede the dinner, which is under the direction of Frances Brooks.

The following bus trips are planned, all leaving from Simmons Plaza, New Palts: Oct. 6,

New Hampshire-Vermont tour, bus leaves at 9 a.m. (a few seats still available); Oct. 21, Belmont Race Track, Long Island; Nov. 14, dog races,

Green Mountain Track, Pownal, Vermont; Dec. 3, Radio City Music Hall to see Elisabeth Taylor in "The Bluebird."

Payroll Met, No Debt

HIGHLAND — The Highland Central School District has met payrolls without having to borrow money, business manager Robert Demarest said Monday.

Taxes received from the Town of Lloyd, normally paid Sept. 1, were delayed this year by a dispute between assessor

Robert Kerwick and the assessment board of review. Tax bills to the residents of the school district were mailed out Monday, and Demarest said he anticipated no trouble in meeting the next payroll Oct. 13.

The district was able to meet the two September payrolls because it had a surplus from the 1975-76 school year of $250,000.

"We really had to scrape the bottom of this barrel for the last one," Demarest said.

The deadline for late filing without penalty will be extended to Oct. 27, Demarest said

Blood Pressure Clinic

SAUGERTIES — The Saugerties Jaycees, in conjunction with the Paramont Pharmacy, will sponsor a blood pressure clinic Wednesday at the pharmacy from 1 to 3 p.m.

The clinic will be conducted under the auspices of the MidHudson Heart Association Inc. To make the clinic run smoother, two persons will be present to take pressure readings

Jaycees say it is important to have blood pressure checked periodically. More than 23 million persons have high blood pressure, and since it has no symptoms, half of them do not know it. High blood pressure increases the risk of stroke, heart failure, kidney failure and heart attack. Saugerties residents are urged to attend the clinic.

Dems To Open HQ

SAUGERTIES — Saugerties Democrats will formally open their headquarters at 92 Partition Street Friday, Sept. 24, at 7 p.m.

Democratic candidates for the Senate, House of Representatives, State Assembly, county treasurer, county coroner, and Saugerties Town

Justice have been invited. All Town of Saugerties voters are invited to attend and join the candidates, party officials, present- and past-elected officials at the event. Refreshments will be served.

Further information may be obtained from Chairman Milton Sommers or Vice Chairmen Jane Chodaba.

Second Trial Ends in No Verdict

KINGSTON—For the second time in a year, an Ulster County jury failed to bring in a verdict in the case against 21-year-old Corey Bell, of Ellenville, who was charged with felony sale of drugs.

Bell was arrested in a 1975 drug raid involving five Ellenville residents who were allegedly found to be in possession of 80 decks of heroin, 40 "hits" of cocaine and a quantity of marijuana.

Corey went on trial in September of 1975 and again earlier this month. After six hours of deliberation the jury announced that it could not reach a decision.

Barry Lippman represented Bell and Assistant District Attorney Robert Francello prosecuted the case. Judge Raymond J. Mino presided.

A Brief Escape

A Rochester man, who escaped briefly from police custody Monday night in Woodstock, is in Ulster County Jail today in lieu of $500 bail.

George Wasserman, 22, is charged with criminal mischief in the fourth degree and resisting arrest.

It is alleged that he broke a public bench on the Village Green in Woodstock and was proceeding to remove flags from a monument on the green when he was arrested.

Wasserman fought off state troopers and Woodstock Police Department officers when they attempted to arrest him and fought them again while being taken into custody at Woodstock Police Department. He escaped into the street and was apprehended not far from the police station.

Burglary Solved

Another Town of Ulster burglary was solved with the arrest of James McDonough, North Drive, Glenesie about 2 p.m. Monday.

Ulster County Sheriff Department Burglary Division arrested the 19-year-old youth who allegedly took property from a private residence on Sept. 16.

McDonough was arraigned before Ulster Justice John Gotelli and committed to Ulster County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail pending a court appearance Oct. 7.

Area Thefts

• Two parking meters from Green Street, Kingston, one of which was later found in an excavation on Hurley Avenue. The meters are valued at $110 each.

• An eight-track tape player worth $70, taken from a car parked outside the home of Mrs. J. J. Loeffler, 87 Bruyn.

• Four hanging plants valued at $50, from the porch of Mrs. Charles Millman, 41 Wurte St., Kingston.

• A $25 hanging plant from the porch of Mrs. Louis F. Berardi, 142 Hooker St., Kingston.

• A hanging plant from the home of Thomas Rizzi, 113 Cedar St., Kingston.

HUD

all the jobs out to contract by next spring, Marallo said.

Engineering for community development's entire $2 million, three-neighborhood rehabilitation program — covering the Ponchockie and Midtown East areas as well as Rondout-Broadway West — has been done by the city engineer, but that arrangement has "run into a snag," Marallo said.

On the brighter side, Marallo hoped to sign up an architecture student and save part of the $21,000 set aside for architectural services on facade restoration along West Strand and Broadway.

Another optimistic note was the hope that cruise ships like the one that visited the Rondout docks last week may make Kingston a permanent part of their schedule, Marallo said.

In connection with that, Marallo asked for and received no objections to moving playground equipment from the dock area to Cornell Park, where improvements already are underway.

A summary of the $470,000 program includes:

• For Entire Rondout Area
• Rehabilitation loan pool, $40,000.
• Miscellaneous improvements outside Broadway West (defined as the area bounded by Spring, Wurte, Broadway and West Strand), $80,000.

• For Broadway West
• Emergency repair program to preserve structures worthy of rehabilitation, $20,000.

• Public improvements, including Cornell Park renovation, as well as new streets, sidewalks and utilities for Post, Hunter, Abeel and West Union Streets, $110,000.

• Facade renovation, $75,000.

• Related architectural services, $21,000.

• Acquisition and removal of three sub-standard properties, $25,000.

• Development of "Interim West Strand Plaza," $60,000.

The latter project has been snagged because the manufacturers who now own the old Freeman building can't give a long-term lease on the parking lot, Marallo said.

Homeowners who apply for loans may be permitted to do the work themselves. Otherwise, the community development office will set up a contractors pool, put work out to bid, and award jobs to low bidders, Marallo said.

outdoor recreational space. It is expected that any standards with major structural ramifications will be fully studied within the next few months prior to implementation, Wasserman explained.

While contact visits are temporarily deferred, the commissioner reaffirmed the commission's commitment to the provision for such visits. He suggested that other facilities which are already in the process of installing open visiting areas should continue to do so for their own long-term benefit.

Contact visits were but one of six minimum standards to be implemented by Oct. 1, according to State directives.

Mayone said he can "live with" the others, which include increasing, by one, the number of letters an inmate may send out each week at county expense. Prisoners may now send one letter per week at no cost and as many as they wish at their own expense.

Minimum standards were also to be increased to allow news media visits to inmates which, Mayone pointed out, have been permitted since he has been in office.

Mayone sees the contact visit mandate as costly and cumbersome. He estimates that construction costs would amount to about $5,000 to dispense with a wall and install a table and benches. But he envisions the need for 12 men to maintain security under the new setup— at a cost of $200,000.

SPADA

landfill, he said.

Joseph A. Fiorello, a principal in Dutchess Sanitation, said he couldn't comment on the sale or on the landfill dispute other than to say his company would serve Kingston and Ulster customers "to the best of our ability."

Dutchess was enjoined by the State Supreme Court in April from dumping anything but "dry construction materials" at its 74-acre Plattekill landfill until the courts rule on a recent town ordinance forbidding the disposal of any non-local garbage (food and other contaminable wastes) within the community.

"It's all up to the judge," Fiorello said.

The Spada deal won't be Dutchess' first entry into the Kingston area, Fiorello said. The company has had "some contracts" here in the past, he said.

Dutchess bought out Hertel Enterprises, a refuse company in southern Ulster County, last year at about the same time Spada was buying out Elliott.

Dutchess began operations in New York City in 1905 and has been operating in the Poughkeepsie area for the past 22 years, Fiorello said.

Spada's deal with the City of Kingston will be based on tonnage carried and should come to roughly $250,000 a year, Mayor Francis R. Koenig said.

That deal will bring to an end a contract the city has had in recent years with Kingston Area Sanitation Service for pickup and disposal of contaminable garbage.

Non-contaminable trash had been picked up by municipal trucks and dumped at the Kingston Point landfill until this month when the city made a temporary deal to dump trash at the Town of Ulster landfill until the Kingston transfer station can be built, probably at a cost of $300,000 to $400,000, Koenig said.

FLU

vaccine shot beginning October 18, but program co-ordinator Helen Geneis P.H.N. wasn't sure how the 55 per cent cut-back announcement would affect the local program.

The state office had not yet informed regional and local agencies of the change in availability.

"I'll just be glad if we get the 64,000 shots we were promised," commented Ms. Geneis who explained that the county had estimated that about 70 per cent of the over 18 population would want the vaccine. Roughly estimating that would mean about 80,000 people.

Ms. Geneis was not sure if the 64,000 dose figure initially promised by the state already reflected the percentage cut or if the state would now only provide a little more than half of about 35,000 vaccinations.

"Well we're just going to bone up for the maximum number and then we'll be prepared for whatever comes along," she said.

According to Wysecup traditional flu season runs from about December through March, but he was unsure of how this new strain would act.

"It's also a possibility that we will be receiving more of the vaccine in December...the government has not been specific on that point, but it is a possibility. That would mean enough vaccine to immunize every one in the state."

The state health official also commented that the wide spread publicity both for and against the program has added another dimension to the nation-wide vaccination scheme.

he said.

Unofficial surveys reported to the department indicate that at least 70 per cent of urban populations want the vaccine. Rural and farming areas have indicated that they were more undecided about whether or not to participate in the program.

An information brochure being circulated by the Health Department urges all adults to "get your shot!" and states that the possibility of adverse reactions from the inoculation are less than 2 in every 100.

The flyer also says that the vaccine is safe for pregnant women and will provide some protection against a Victoria (last year's) strain of influenza as well as swine flu.

Hooker Chemical Pollution Probe

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — A three-day probe aimed at determining what pollutants the giant Hooker Chemical Corp. plant may be dumping into the Niagara River continued today.

A team of 20 federal and state scientists arrived at the plant Monday and began taking samples from 14 sites within the industrial complex. The investigation was also trying to determine the source of Mirex pollution of Lake Ontario, one of the scientists said.

The group, which included experts from the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the state Department of Environmental Conservation, was headed by John Cincia, of the EPA's Edison, N.J., Surveillance and Monitoring Division.

"This is a 3-day study to continually sample outflow to determine whether Mirex is still entering the Niagara River," Cincia said. "This will be done by taking samples in specially prepared bottles every four hours at all sanitary, sewer and internal discharge points."

He said one set of sample bottles would then be analyzed by Hooker, another by the EPA and the third by an independent New Orleans laboratory.

Mirex, a highly toxic pesticide which has been linked to cancer, has been found in high concentrations in Lake Ontario fish and water samples recently. A ban has been issued on taking several species of fish from the lake because of the chemical's presence.

Pre-planning a funeral costs you nothing.

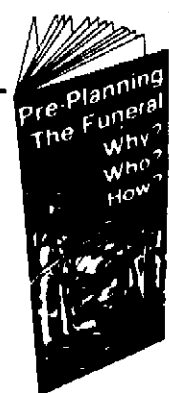

Yet the savings can go beyond money.

Pre-planning a funeral does not necessarily mean even signing a commitment. It simply means making your wishes, or those of a relative, a matter of record before the need arises.

By this thoughtful act, you eliminate the pressures of last-minute, discomfiting decisions and make a difficult time less trying.

National Selected Morticians has prepared an impartial booklet that tells the hows and whys of pre planning and shows what you can do today to ease some of the burdens that must be faced by someone, someday.

Marriage Encounter Great

Dear Editor:

We read with much interest the article, "Marriage Encounter" written by Tim Schuster in your Sept. 22 edition.

Super Sunday, Oct. 3 at Coleman High School at 7:30 p.m. will be the beginning of a wonderful and love filled experience that will be with people for the rest of their lives.

We can say this because we were privileged to attend an informational meeting and then a weekend of marriage encounter.

We at first resisted the idea strongly because on Oct. 16, we will be married 33 years. We could not imagine what any one could add to our marriage — in fact, the question was raised that maybe the weekend would end the marriage. If it involved sex or anything like that we were not interested. Believe me we raised every conceivable objection until finally your friend who introduced us to the idea said to trust him. On that basis we agreed to take a weekend.

Marriage Encounter Weekend was so new and exciting an idea. It offered such a simple tool to enhance a married couple's relationship that upon returning we induced a friend to get involved and I am happy to say they will be weekendng on Oct. 8 to 10.

Mr. Schuster's article was well written and informative but we were puzzled by the use of the word "proselytize". If he meant the word to mean convert, there is nothing to convert to. What Married Encounter people are trying to do is share the experience they had with the hope that it may give good marriages a new tool to enhance an already good marriage. An encounter weekend is so personal that only the couple really knows what it means to them and what they get from it. It is not a religion or even a religious experience, at least not to us. We can best sum it up by saying it is a technique that we can use if we feel a need to get closer in our relationship. We would urge any one who asked to get the experience.

Peace and Love,

Bernie Singer Comments Unfair

Dear Editor:

There recently appeared in the Freeman a letter to the Editor from Bernie Singer, the Conservative Party Chairman for the City of Kingston, in which Mr. Singer attacked the qualifications of Harold Finkle for County Treasurer. I do not vote in Ulster County, but I found the letter so outrageous that I could not resist writing you. If you will be good enough to print my letter perhaps fewer Kingston voters will be misled by Mr. Singer.

Mr. Singer suggests that the opinion of people working with Mr. Finkle on other commissions was that Mr. Finkle was slow to comprehend and hampered the activities of the group. I have worked closely with Mr. Finkle for several years on the Temporary State Commission for the Catskills and can state categorically that this is not the case. Mr. Finkle was one of our most valuable members. He was always in attendance at meeting, attentive and prepared, and made a major contribution to the work of the commission.

It should also be noted that Mr. Finkle has for many years been with the First Albany Corporation, a member firm of the New York Stock Exchange, and has extensive experience in investments and handling money. I do not understand that Mr. Kirschner has any such experience and I am curious as to what are his qualifications that Mr. Singer so highly regards. From all accounts Mr. Kirschner has some difficulty handling his own money. One wonders what he would do with the county's.

Quiet is Ominous in Panama

Dear Editor:

What has happened to the Panama Canal? Suddenly those demanding a new treaty giving away the Panama Canal have become strangely silent. The State Department likewise is totally quiet. This has implications. Has the State Department changed its mind about the new treaty? Has the left-leaning dictator of Panama, General Torrijos, backed down on his threat to wage war against the United States unless we give him the canal territory under terms of a new treaty? Has the Soviet Union ordered him to stop rattling his saber? Has Fidel Castro who reportedly already sent some of his troops to Panama, decided this is not the right time to twiddle the nose of Uncle Sam?

Was it the public opinion poll which showed 85 per cent of the American people were opposed to the Kissinger giveaway? Was it the resolution of 36 United States senators promising to vote against such a treaty? I don't think so.

It is becoming more and more evident every passing week that none of the above reasons are the real cause for the silence on the treaty. The Panama Canal is only one very small part of the total Soviet plan of the western hemisphere. Should the American people become too much disturbed about the Panama Canal they might suddenly become alarmed about the much bigger plan, and might inject that concern into the presidential election, and therefore make the completion of the Communist plan more difficult.

It doesn't take a military or diplomatic genius to see the broad outlines of the Soviet plan to dominate Latin and South America. With Castro supplying the soldiers and the Soviet Union supplying the hardware and leadership, the plan apparently calls for the communization of the Panama Canal, Puerto Rico, and from there the entirety of South and Central America.

The pattern is set — a small country pitted against the mighty United States of America — a U.S.A. who loves peace so much according to the master plan of the Kremlin — that we will permit the entire rest of this hemisphere to fall to Communism before we lift a military hand to stop it.

That would fulfill Lenin's prediction when he said: "Then the last bastion of capitalism, the United States of America, will fall like an overripe fruit into our hands without a shot being fired."

This is the plan of the Soviet Union for your future. But it doesn't have to be your plan.

Probation Is An Ideal Tool

Dear Editor:

Regarding your editorial entitled "Probation Works Here," I felt compelled to write. I support your views and have done so for many years. In reading it, I found out that Ulster County is making a humanitarian effort to curb future criminal activities by probation. Probation is the ideal tool for achieving rehabilitation because it is conducive to keeping family unity alive and growing in a healthy community. It provides specialized counseling to the individuals concerned, community support by its supervisors and personal attention by trained staff members.

You can not thrust a person into a penal institution that has yet to clean its own cesspools and expect that person to re-enter his community as a normal, well-adjusted person. If a person is sentenced to prison, he enters a world of misery that is programmed to incarcerate the individual by isolation. This is punitive to the inmate's family as well. By thus being imprisoned, everyone suffers because 95 per cent of these inmates are condemned to the "revolving-door" syndrome. Ulster County's percentage of re-arrest is 13 per cent.

If a community was aware of what imprisonment does, they would desist from sentencing their fellow men to an entombment that magnifies anti-social patterns. Psychology can be of help in eradicating the haunting memories of the atrocities that are enacted throughout his penal servitude. But can a psychologist heal the scars of a man's soul that has lived in a personal nightmare of long duration?

Cruel and unusual punishment as defined by the Federal Judicial Committee is anything that shocks the conscience of the public. One of the atrocities that fulfills that description is the emotional starvation of the inmate, his wife, and children. This results in family disruption by maintaining a paternal void that creates instability in his own children due to a prison's restrictions on normal family life. This leads to emotional, mental and economic hardships for the children as well as the wife because her husband is not physically present for the support they need. Therefore, a family's death can be very imminent.

I have to congratulate Ulster County for its success but let me caution you not to scrutinize too carefully your applicants to probationary status. Some courts go to the extreme in examining who should be awarded probation and therefore, because of its "tunnel-vision", they miss a few who should be saved from prison.

The answer to our failing criminal justice system lies within the community, and Ulster County has taken a step in that direction.

Moynihan Heads for the Middle

Daniel Patrick Moynihan opened his campaign against Senator James L. Buckley of New York with an appeal to Republican "moderates." His "strategy," -- to quote his aides as paraphrased by the New York Times -- is "to preempt the middle of the political spectrum." Accordingly, Mr. Moynihan has gambled about the state invoking the hallowed name of Dwight Eisenhower, as a "mainstream Republican," to be distinguished from his opponent. "I would welcome Republicans who want to save the parts from its extremes," Mr. Moynihan said.

And, what do you know, the very next day Senator Jacob Javits, who is a Republican, announced that he would not campaign for Senator Buckley. Senator Javits, hoisting his conscience up high and competing with the rays of the midday sun, appeared with "face grim" his "voice stern" as a mortician's. He was there not to praise the sainted junior senator from New York, but to bury him.

Senator Javits once referred to himself as the voice of the Republican Party which if it is true, perhaps suggests the difficulties the Party has. His long-time resentment of his colleague is probably the most dogged devotion to any principle, not counting Israel, ever practiced by Senator Javits, who six years ago, alone declined to vote to admit the freshly-arrived senator as a member of the Republican caucus.

It was a wonderful week for politics in New York, the culmination of primary races watched carefully throughout the country. Mr. Moynihan was lecturing to New York State Republicans about the inappropriateness of Senator Buckley as their representative exactly two days after Senator Buckley, running against a primary opponent, crushed his moderate opponent by winning 70 per cent of the Republican vote.

Who is the most popular Democrat in the United States? The polls inform us it is Senator Edward Kennedy. Well, on the very same day Senator Kennedy running in a primary contest against unknown opponents, got 70 per cent of the vote in Massachusetts. Perhaps Mr. Moynihan will intuit that Senator is not a representative Democrat? I would welcome any such demonstration.

And then on the very same day Patrick

Washington Hee-Haws

WASHINGTON—Hollywood has suddenly discovered Washington, D.C., as a source for situation comedy. Those of us who live here have known for years there was more situation comedy in the capital than in all the 50 states combined. But it was only after Watergate that the TV moguls realized how many laughs you could get out of this town.

A week doesn't go by that I don't receive a call from a television producer on the coast who is planning a situation comedy on Washington and asks for help in developing a series. I've been giving it a lot of thought, and here are just a few of the ideas that I think could work.

A CIA agent (hopefully we can get Dick Van Dyke) is having an affair with the wife of a congressman (Hope Lange?) who is miffed because she knows her husband (Don Adams?) is having an affair with his secretary (Mary Tyler Moore?).

One afternoon the congressman comes home and finds Dick in the congressman's bathrobe and Hope in her nightie. He is immediately suspicious and demands to know what Dick is doing in his bathrobe. Dick thinks fast and says, "I'm bugging your phone on orders of Henry Kissinger."

This infuriates the congressman who says he's going to call Dick before the House Ethics Committee. He hands Dick what he thinks is a subpoena, but it turns out to be a photograph of his secretary swimming nude in the Tidal Basin. This embarrasses the congressman and he begs Moynihan, engaged in a primary contest among Democrats, managed to get 36 per cent of the vote. Having gotten half as many of the Democrats who turned out to vote to designate him as their representative, he informs the Republicans, twice as many of whom voted for Buckley, that their candidate is unrepresentative of the party. Mr. Moynihan once wrote a book called Maximum Feasible Misunderstanding. He shows he has mastered the art.

And then when you take into account that Mr. Moynihan is a student of history, he manages to get terribly mixed up. He goes about the state saying that Senator Buckley should be a middle-of-the-roader while denouncing Senator Buckley for refusing to worship at the altar of Franklin Delano Roosevelt — who did not make his mark being a middle-

inger. Well, Senator Buckley is not middle-of-the-road for the sake of occupying the middle of the road. It is this that has permitted him to represent the people of New York with freshness and originality. In this respect he is indeed not like Eisenhower. More like Lincoln, who warned us at Cooper Union not to be "diverted by . . . those sophistical contrivances wherewith we are so industriously plied and belabored — contrivances such as groping for some middle ground between the right and the wrong."

Poor Mr. Moynihan. Yesterday he was the freshest voice in town. Today he's the guy who pledged to back Bella Abzug if she were nominated. Win or lose, he should apply to Senator Buckley for lessons in independence.

(William Buckley is Sen. Buckley's brother.)

DOONESBURY

by Garry Trudeau

Just then the noxy neighbor from next door (Nancy Walker?) comes in to borrow Hope's hair dryer. She reveals that the CIA agent has been at the house every afternoon for two months.

"Them you didn't come to bug my phone?" the congressman says.

"No," replies Dick, "I've been having an affair with your wife."

"Wow," says the congressman, "what a relief! I thought the bathrobe was just a cover."

Everyone laughs at the congressman's stupid mistake. He drives off to vote on a tax bill, with Dick and Hope waving goodbye to him from the door.

Another situation comedy that could work because it has an adult theme has to do with a show about a presidential candidate's daughter. She's 8 years old and she's always getting in some kind of trouble. One day she's out selling Girl Scout cookies and happens to walk into an abortion clinic.

One of Jack Anderson's people spots her and leaks the story that the President's daughter is going to have an abortion. When the presidential candidate hears about this, he immediately goes on television and announces he's changed his mind on abortion from his previous position which, as everyone knows, was much clearer than that of his opponent.

Then he comes home and discovers that his daughter not only wasn't going to have an abortion, but sold all her Girl Scout cookies to women who were.

"Most of them were famished," his daughter tells him.

The candidate then goes back on television and says he is reversing himself on the abortion issue and going back to his original position which was that, while he personally was against abortion, he didn't think people who wanted them should be deprived of Girl Scout cookies while they sat in the waiting room, unless Congress voted against it.

A widowed general (Tony Randall) stationed at the Pentagon accidentally stuffs his 12-year-old son's homework assignment into his briefcase and takes it to the office. The composition concerns a death ray the son has written about that can kill people from outer space.

The general's aide, a dumb colonel (Jack Klugman), submits the homework assignment to the Joint Chiefs of Staff who vote to spend $100 million developing the new weapon.

When the general realizes his mistake he tries to get his kid's composition back, but it's been marked TOP SECRET.

In desperation the general gives his son a report written by the Rand Corporation on the cruise missile. The kid gets F from his teacher, because the assignment wasn't handed in on time.

To make it up to him the general takes the kid to the Super Bowl on a Lockheed private jet, provided by the company because it got the contract to build the death ray.

Politicians Have Oilmen Pals

WASHINGTON — A mysterious group of Texas oilmen, bound by blood, marriage and the corporate bond, have quietly been funneling thousands of dollars to politicians who champion oil interests.

The Texans own and operate the Quintana Petroleum Corporation, although one would hardly know it since the oilmen, according to a company official, "don't like to have anything publicized about it."

This penchant for secrecy, apparently, is the reason the Quintana crowd failed to list their connections with the company on several federal campaign contribution forms. Such omissions raised the official curiosity of the Federal Election Commission.

The group works closely with ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally's Houston law firm. A member of the firm, William H. Druebel Jr., actually maintains an office at Quintana. In the past, Connally has distributed oil money to favored politicians.

The Quintana crowd has concentrated this year on rewarding members of Congress who support oil tax benefits. While the tax bill was being drafted this spring, the Quintana executives and their wives passed out $12,000 to five key members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

They were: James Jones, D.-Okla., $3,200; Donald Clancy, R.-Ohio, $2,700; Philip Crane, R.-Ill., $2,500; William Steiger, R.-Wis., $2,400, and Guy Vander Jagt, R.-Mich., $1,200.

Except for Clancy, all of these congressmen have received 100 per cent favorable ratings from the Independent Petroleum Association of America. Clancy's voting record was rated by the IPAA at a slightly less satisfactory 75 per cent.

The Quintana bunch delivered an additional $3,200 to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D.-Tex., another champion of the oil industry, with a 93 per cent IPAA rating. He also happens to be a power on the Senate Finance Committee, which handled the tax bill in the Senate. Sen. Lowell Weicker, R.-Conn., who has favored the oil interest, got at least $2,100.

Another darling of the oil industry, Rep. Bob Krueger, D.-Tex., collected $4,400 from the Quintana bunch. His fidelity to petroleum interests is measured at 93 per cent on the IPAA scale.

The money men from Quintana also appear to have an enemies list. One congressman on the list is Bob Eckhardt, D.-Tex., who holds a zero rating with IPAA. The Quintana crowd has pumped $4,400 into the campaign of his opponent, Nick Gerhardt.

Our reporters sometimes found the Quintana money difficult to trace. On May 14, for example, seven Quintana officials simultaneously donated $100 apiece to the aforementioned Clancy. Another Quintana executive and his wife coughed up $1,000 each. Still another executive gave $200.

Our reporters, Gary Cohn and Jim Grady, made repeated phone calls to Quintana's Houston headquarters during their attempt to put the jigsaw pieces together. Corporate spokesmen refused to provide the identities of the Quintana people or the correct spelling of their names.

One spokesman said that attorney William Druebel had passed the word to all Quintana officials that they were "not to confirm or deny any information to either Mr. Cohn or Mr. Grady." The attorney did not return any of our numerous calls.

The most one spokesman finally would say was that Quintana was "a family business."

Footnote: This isn't the first time Quintana has been in hot water. Last year, a House subcommittee accused Quintana of "probably" violating federal laws by needlessly delaying development of a natural gas field. A drop in the anticipated production brought pressure on the Federal Power Commission to permit gas prices to go up.

POLITICAL REWARD: President Ford has replaced a distinguished career diplomat as Ambassador to the Bahamas with a political crony.

The appointee is Wisconsin's former lieutenant governor, Jack Olson, who is better known for his political connections than his diplomatic skills. He labored hard for Ford's nomination last month at the Republican convention.

LOCKHEED STORY: The giant Lockheed conglomerate must be considered a quasi-public institution. As the nation's largest defense contractor, Lockheed couldn't exist without government work. The company was also saved from being blown, headlong, down its own wind tunnel when Congress bailed it out with a quarter of a billion dollars.

Thus Lockheed is on the public dole, and its activities, therefore, deserve close public inspection. This is a report on one small activity.

In 1969, a corporation now known as EMMS-Biolex embarked on a joint venture with the California division of Lockheed to develop a purification process for fossil fuels. By treating oil as a microbiological compound, rather than a mineral, several organic impurities could be removed.

The results, according to Lockheed's own data, were astonishing. For a fraction of a penny a gallon, a corrosive sludge could be removed from jet fuel and gasoline. This improved the efficiency of the fuel and made auto exhaust emissions cleaner.

Now Lockheed has been slapped with a $10 billion lawsuit because the company has gone so little in seven years to develop the process. The reason, Blizz charges, is that Lockheed is trying to steal the process from Biolex before developing it.

A Lockheed spokesman minimized both Lockheed's involvement with the project and the lawsuit. The project has been shelved for some time, he said, because the company considered it not worth pursuing.

Foiled First Time by Parliamentary Maneuver

Saudi Arabia Missile Deal Still the Target of Senate Opponents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate opponents of the administration's proposed $30 million sale of missiles to Saudi Arabia are set to try again to kill the deal after their first effort was foiled by a parliamentary maneuver.

Heading a phone call from Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., Monday secured unanimous consent to pull a resolution rejecting the Saudi missile sales off the Senate calendar and send it back to the Foreign Relations Committee.

Only a handful of senators were present at the time, and Sparkman's brush move surprised and angered the resolution's supporters including Sen. Clifford Case of New Jersey, ranking Republican on the panel.

The committee had voted, 8-6, last Friday to disapprove the proposed sale of 650 Maverick missiles to the Saudis, which will be permitted unless both the House and Senate pass disapproval resolutions by the end of the week.

The first order of business in the committee today will be discussion of the Saudi missile sales, and the panel will hear from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who favors the deal.

Meanwhile, the House International Affairs Committee debated the arms sales at length Monday but was unable to muster a quorum to vote on a disapproval resolution. The House vote, which could come today, is expected to be close.

If the House committee fails to disapprove the missile sale, the Senate is not likely to act on its disapproval resolution, Senate sources said.

There was intense lobbying under way to change the Senate committee vote, reportedly aimed at three senators — Gale McGee, D-Wyo., Charles

Percy, R-Ill., and James Pearson, R-Kan. — who voted against the sales last Friday. Sparkman's maneuver followed a telephone call from Rockefeller who said the administration was "greatly disturbed" over the resolution. Sparkman said Rockefeller also talked "of the tremendous power that country exercises over oil and that an embargo would likely be reinstated." Case, who was not called by Rockefeller or told beforehand of Sparkman's move, was angered when he found out what had happened.

The usually mild-mannered Case took the Senate floor to criticize the extraordinary actions taken by Sparkman. He said the chairman engaged in "an inexcusable breach of courtesy" that conflicted with "the tradition of decency" in the Senate.

Patty Leadoff For Jury Panel

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Alameda County prosecutors used Patricia Hearst and her former boyfriend as opening witnesses in an effort to obtain grand jury indictments against Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris.

Miss Hearst spent 2½ hours behind closed doors Monday, telling the Alameda County Grand Jury how she was spirited from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment in February 1974 by the SLA. Steven Weed testified for 30 minutes.

There was no word on what they told the panel, but Miss Hearst was presumed to have given the same testimony she delivered during her San Francisco bank robbery trial.

District Attorney Lowell Jensen said he would call some 45 witnesses and seek an indictment charging the Harris with kidnap, false imprisonment and assault with a deadly weapon.

The Harris were held on a 19-count police complaint for the kidnapping. They were to appear in Municipal Court on Oct. 7 for a preliminary hearing on the complaint. However, an indictment would automatically move the case into Superior Court for trial without a preliminary hearing.

The first witness to appear before the grand jury was Peter Benenson, a mathematcian at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, who testified about how he was taken prisoner by the SLA kidnap team and how his car was stolen from him for use in the getaway. Miss Hearst and Weed followed him.

Miss Hearst, 22, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst, presumably cooperated with prosecutors despite her sentencing last week to seven years in prison on bank robbery charges.

Her attorneys had said the sentence was too harsh and might convince their client to become a reluctant witness in any further criminal proceedings against SLA members or associates.

Miss Hearst told her bank robbery trial that two men and a woman burst into her apartment. She said she was knocked unconscious before being placed in the trunk of a getaway car.

She said Harris was one of the two men and his wife was the driver of one of two getaway cars.

Weed, who shared the apartment with Miss Hearst, himself was struck on the head with a bottle after he had been bound and gagged. Shortly after her kidnap Miss Hearst announced in a taped communique that she no longer loved him.

Sperm Isolation Could Help Childless Couples

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fertility specialists are awaiting the births of a special group of babies with up to a 90 per cent chance of being male because of use of a new sperm separation method, a population organization said today.

The Population Reference Bureau, a nonprofit educational institution, said the primary goal is to increase the chances of pregnancy for childless couples.

"However, associated with it is the possibility of increasing the likelihood of male offspring, which could have major implications for population planning, particularly in those countries where a strong preference for male children prevails," the organization said in its latest Intercom newsletter to be mailed this week.

"The technique holds no promise for parents of sons who long for a baby daughter, as only the male-producing Y sperm are isolated in the process," the newsletter said.

A bureau spokeswoman, asked about the new process, acknowledged "there will be

people who will say it is tampering with nature."

It said the process is being used by in this country by several clinicians, including Dr. Robert H. Glass, head of the University of San Francisco fertility clinic, and Dr. W. Paul Dmowski of the fertility clinic at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago.

Results of test pregnancies in Iran and Switzerland are expected soon, the bureau said.

The sperm separation method was developed and patented by Dr. Ronald J. Ericsson of Gametrics Limited in Sausalito, Calif.

The technique involves placing a sample of semen in a glass tube containing a solution that enables the "strongest swimmers" among the sperm — also the ones most likely to bear the male-producing Y chromosome — to make their way to the bottom of the tube, the article said.

"The concentrated, highly motile sperm that has been 'washed' and has become 65 to 90 per cent male-producing can then be placed directly into the uterus of a woman, who has been unable to conceive because of her husband's low sperm count, or because his sperm has been unable to penetrate the mucus covering the cervix," it said.

Ericsson estimates that one of every five couples has problems conceiving children and about half of these involve problems with the husband's sperm.

The bureau says Ericsson either has patents or patents pending for his sperm isolation processes in 20 countries and that the licensed methods are being used in clinics in North America and Europe.

British Pound Declines To New Record Low Levels

LONDON (UPI) — The British pound dropped to record low levels against the dollar and several other leading currencies Monday, reflecting continued lack of international confidence in the British economy.

The pound dropped two cents in London to close at a record low rate of $1.6810, four cents less than a week ago and 10 cents less than at the beginning of September.

In New York it closed even lower — $1.6715.

The pound's low value means that holidays in Britain are cheaper than ever for foreign tourists. It also means British goods are cheaper abroad but goods imported into Britain will be more expensive.

Measured against a group of 10 leading currencies, including the Japanese yen, the West German mark and the Swiss franc, the pound has lost 43.6 per cent of its value since December 1971 when new parities were fixed.

One year ago the pound was worth 5.45 West German marks or 9.20 French francs. Now it is worth 4.15 marks and 8.25 French francs.

Money dealers said the pound's decline appeared to be due to a combination of several factors, some of which continually plague sterling.

These include:

— The highest level of unemployment in 30 years, with 1.5 million persons jobless.

— The fact that inflation, although cut by half in the last year, is still high at 13.8 per cent a year.

— The agreement of a new pay deal for seamen last week that some unions argue breaches the government's wage ceiling.

But the fact that the money markets tend toward survival of the fittest probably may have had more to do with the latest slump than any one factor.

Several dealers explained there is a tendency at times of insecurity for weak currencies to get weaker and strong currencies to become stronger.

"Those who have the pound don't particularly want to keep it, while those who don't have it don't really need it," one said.

The fact that the Bank of England, on government instructions, has not intervened for three weeks to bolster the pound by converting some of Britain's depleted foreign currency reserves into sterling was another factor contributing to its decline.

Porpoise Kill Estimate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. fishermen seeking yellowfin tuna will kill about 66,000 porpoises this year, according to a government expert.

William W. Fox Jr., chief of the Oceanic Fisheries Resources Division Southwest Fisheries Center, part of the Commerce Department, testified Monday in hearings before a House fish and wildlife subcommittee that the estimated porpoise kill will be down from 134,000 in 1975.

Because the tuna for unknown reasons follow schools of porpoises in the Pacific Ocean, fishermen in recent years have been scooping up the porpoises in huge purse seines to catch the tuna.

Local Fans Invited to Join in $50 Million

International Campaign to Reunite the Beatles

By TIM SCHUSTER
Freeman staff

KINGSTON—Will die-hard Beatle fans mass together to offer $50 million in $1 contributions to get the British rock group back together again, at least temporarily?

Will the Beatles take the money even if they do? Ulster County resident Gary Lee Schwartz has joined the International Committee To Reunite The Beatles in a public relations capacity to try to bring about just such a reunification.

Schwartz, who describes himself as a "mobile disc jockey personality," outlined the plans to the Freeman recently and voiced his hope that bringing the four Beatles together through massive fan appeal could be accomplished by the middle of next summer.

Long an avid Beatles fan, the 31-year-old Schwartz was drawn into the affair through an ad that appeared in the Village Voice May 31 sponsored by the newly organized committee and headed by Alan Amron of Merrick, L.I. The two met in New York City and joined forces, with Schwartz reportedly asked to represent the committee on the international level.

The Beatles have been offered $50 million before from private promoters to reunite their act in the United States, with projected tapes, records, and movie rights possibly a lucrative result, since the money could not possibly be made back solely on concert tickets.

They turned it down. Now, New York City promoter Sid

Bernstein has reportedly offered the four British rock stars $160 million for promotional rights.

Schwartz contends that Bernstein has "jumped on the bandwagon" started by the committee, and the two had a debate of sorts at a Sept. 25 convocation of Beatlemanics at the Beatles '76 Convention at the Statler Hilton Hotel in New York.

The committee to reunite has been accepted by Solter and Roskin public relations firm for representation, the same outfit that handles Frank Sinatra and Bette Midler, among others.

Schwartz said the goal is to have some answer from all of the Beatles by June 5, 1977, the tenth anniversary of the release of the Beatles' most popular (and some feel their best) album, "Sergeant Pepper."

The local DJ said he will appear for the cause in the near future on the nationally televised Tomorrow Show with host Tom Snyder and on the local NBC affiliate Channel 4 with Bruce Morrow, formerly of WABC radio fame. The Earth News radio network, with 125 national outlets, has reportedly taped an interview on the subject, also.

The committee is also making plans for a one week Beatles fest, to be held either at Madison Square Garden or Nassau Coliseum, to raise money through varied programs such as selling memorabilia and putting on shows. The push for $50 million is young, and only about $5,000 has trickled into the coffers thus far, said Schwartz, but it is an international movement with money arriving from such diverse ports as Turkey, Brazil, and Australia.

"Sure, promoters can offer lots of money, but we united can offer more money and total support...we are the people and we together are stronger than any promoters," reads part of the Village Voice ad.

Fans are asked to send one dollar to the International Committee To Reunite The Beatles, Inc., P.O. Box 243, Merrick, N.Y. 11566 and they will receive a decal with the logo "Let It Be" and a pair of clasped hands emblazoned in red.

What happens to the money if the campaign doesn't work out? Schwartz was asked.

He guaranteed that all monies received would be donated to established charities, "probably the American Cancer Society."

Schwartz is a graduate of Yonkers High School and the RCA Institute School of Radio Programming in New York, attended the New School for Social Research and studied business management at Ulster Community College.

A resident of Ulster County for the past eight years, he currently appears and entertains at private parties, organization functions, night clubs, and discos, besides writing a music column for a local bi-weekly newspaper. States the committee, "Music is a beautiful way of communicating, it's our international language, and no one communicates it better than the Beatles."

Panel Discussion to Focus On Alcohol Abuse at Fall Focus Program at UCCC

STONE RIDGE—Alcohol abuse and the treatment of alcoholics will be the focus of a panel discussion by authorities at Ulster Community College's Fall Focus program Oct. 2.

The first of a series of human problems, sponsored by the Office for Continuing Education at the college, it will focus on Sloan Wilson, author of "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," his problems and his perceptions of others attempting to cope with the stresses of growing up or growing older.

Eight panel members are: Dr. Ruth Fox, author and lecturer on alcoholism; Ralph Golding, director of mental health services in Ulster County; Emil Groth, alcohol abuse coordinator for Mental Health Services in Ulster County; Dr. Frederick W. Holcomb Jr., medical director for IBM in Kingston; Dr. Frank Seixas, a director of the National Council on Alcoholism; Dr. Marvin Block, an author and lecturer on alcoholism; Dr. Morris Chafetz, former medical director of the National Council on Alcoholism and an author; Dr. Susan B. Anthony, grand niece of women's rights crusader by the same name; and Mrs. Betty Wilson, wife of author Sloan Wilson.

Dr. Fox is co-author of the book "Alcoholism" published in 1973 and also co-authored "Alcoholism: Its Scope, Causes, and Treatment." She founded the New York City Medical Society on Alcoholism and is vice president of the National Council on Alcoholism.

Golding came to Ulster County from the Norfolk Mental Health Association in Norwood, Mass. where he served as executive director from 1972 to 1975.

Groth has held his present job since 1973 and was previously employed by the Department of Social Services in New York City where he worked with the disabled, blind, drug addicts, and alcoholics and was associated with the Cumberland Hospital, Alcoholism Clinic.

Dr. Holcomb joined IBM in 1956 at the Kingston plant, is secretary of the Ulster County Medical Society, and is former president of the Ulster County Association for Mental Health.

Dr. Seixas is a fellow in psychiatry at Mt. Sinai Hospital and is editor-in-chief of the Physicians Alcohol Newsletter of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Block is Professor Emeritus of Clinical Medicine at the Buffalo Medical School and is author of "Alcohol—Its Facets and Phases."

Dr. Chafetz is on the staff of John Hopkins University and was formerly director of the Alcohol Clinic at Massachusetts General Hospital. He is the author of several books on the subject of alcoholism.

Ms. Anthony is the author of a book "The Ghost In My Life" about herself and her famous ancestor. She was an alcoholic.

Mrs. Wilson, Sloan Wilson's second wife, feels uniquely qualified to serve on the panel since her father has been an alcoholic most of his adult life.

Chamber Music Concerts Set for Fall at Saugerties

SAUGERTIES—An old stone house in Saugerties is to be used for a new venture presenting chamber music concerts this fall under the heading Kammerspiel.

David and Beatrice Bright, owners of the 1740 stone house, will rent their facilities to the group. Mrs. Bright, a concert pianist, organist, lecturer, and conductor, will also serve as music director of the series and occasionally as a performer.

As outlined in the new group's newsletter, its basic goal is to present "small, intimate chamber music recitals where fine musicians of the Hudson Valley communicate not only musically but orally with their audience."

Discussions of music and composers is planned after each performance. Those persons who become members of the organization will have access to a lending library and monthly newsletter at the Kammerspiel house located on Route 32, opposite the south-bound entrance to the Thruway.

There will also be Saturday morning junior recitals for children, serious young students who have passed an audition. The series of Sunday concerts planned, all for 3 p.m. are: Oct. 17, baroque selections by the Woodstock Chamber Players; Oct. 31, Brahms and Beethoven from a French horn, piano, violin trio; Nov. 21, music to be announced by a piano, oboe/English horn, and voice trio; Dec. 5, piano, flute and cello.

Speaker Named For NAACP Dinner

Malvin R. Goode, former ABC News United Nations Correspondent, is scheduled as the main speaker at the second annual appreciation dinner sponsored by the Ulster County Branch, NAACP, Oct. 1 at the Governor Clinton Hotel — Goode is a member of the NAACP's national board of directors. Peg, Leg Bates of Kernhook and Ruth and Edwin Ford of Kingston will be honored at the dinner.

DEAR ABBY

Not All Animals Are as Smart as the Mink; She Owns Mink Coat for as Long as She Lives

DEAR ABBY: Can animals count? I used to see horses in the circus obey their trainers by picking up their feet and putting them down according to the number the trainer called out. My father said there was some kind of trick to it.

But listen to this. We raised a female mink on our farm last year and she had a litter of five. Every day at feeding time this mother mink would make five little patties from her scoop of ground meat, then call her offspring to eat.

She never made six, and she never made four. Always five. So wouldn't you say she could count?—TERRI

DEAR TERRI: I would say that your mother mink could indeed count. But not all animals are as smart as the mink. What other female owns a mink coat as long as she lives?

DEAR ABBY: My date and I were dining out, and as he was adding the tip to the credit card, the waiter said, "Don't bother adding the tip to that—I won't get it anyway." Then the waiter explained that after the restaurants are reimbursed by the credit card companies, the waiters rarely get their tips.

Abby, with so many diners paying with credit cards, I'll bet a lot of waiters get gypped this way.

You'd be doing waiters a tremendous service if you'd ask people who use credit cards to give the waiter his tip in cash. Thanks.—MARION

DEAR MARION: The top credit card companies and restaurants state that waiters are reimbursed immediately by their employers for their tips. Most waiters insure themselves against being gypped by keeping a record of tips due them.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him "Pat") is a musician, and he works evenings. We have a small child, but occasionally I like to see Pat work, so I get a sitter, and Pat's Uncle Joe and Aunt Mae take me. (They're about the age of my parents.)

One night Uncle Joe and his wife took me to hear Pat, and when they brought me home, Uncle Joe walked me to the door. It was quite dark, so he grabbed me and kissed me hard on the lips. I was so shocked I dropped my key!

The next day as soon as Pat left for work, Uncle Joe came over to see me. I didn't like the look in his eye, so I picked up the baby and went into the bathroom with her and locked the door behind me.

He kept calling to me to open the door, but I wouldn't do it. Finally he left.

Abby, I don't know whether to tell my husband or not. I don't want to put a strain on their relationship, but I really am afraid Uncle Joe will make a habit of coming over, and he frightens me.—BIG PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: Tell Uncle Joe if he comes over again while Pat is gone, you will tell Pat EVERYTHING. Then follow through.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is all the time bringing home nuts, candy and gooey pastry even though he knows how hard I'm trying to lose weight.

He's lucky. He can eat anything and not gain an ounce. If I just LOOK at a piece of candy, I gain a pound.

My husband has made dirty cracks about how fat I am, so why does he tempt me with all that fattening stuff? He knows I don't have any willpower—NO HELP FROM HUBBY

DEAR NO HELP: He tempts you because: (1) Consciously or unconsciously he wants you to be fat. (2) He's unkind and inconsiderate. (3) He enjoys sweets and figures that your lack of willpower is your problem, not his.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

La Leche Series Begins Tonight

KINGSTON—La Leche League of Kingston will begin a new series of four monthly discussion groups tonight at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Kathleen Dittus, 12 Hillside Terrace. Mrs. Hildegard Pleva, a qualified La Leche League leader, will moderate a discussion of the physiological, psychological and practical advantages of breastfeeding.

As mothers search for more "natural" ways of caring for and nourishing their children, La Leche League meets the needs of women who have chosen to pursue "good mothering" through breastfeeding. The League hopes to take the place of the proverbial grandmother or mother who in the past taught by example all that needed to be learned about nursing a baby. As part of an international organization of more than 2500 groups in 40 countries the Kingston group is celebrating its sixth year of service to the community.

Mrs. Pan Usticke, the second LLL leader, has announced the dates for the remaining meetings of the series: Oct. 26, "The Art of Breastfeeding and Overcoming Difficulties," Nov. 30, "The Baby Arrives: The Family and the Breastfed Baby," Dec. 28, "Nutrition and Weaning."

The ideal time to attend a series is during pregnancy but all interested women are invited, along with nursing mothers and their infants. For information about the series, directions to the meeting or questions about nursing contact Hildegard Pleva.

Library Exhibit

TOWN OF ULSTER—Town of Ulster Library has as its artist this month, a local resident of Lake Katrine, Ralph G. Speer, an excellent photographer. He has been a member of the Marbletown Art Association for 20 years. Speer won second place in color and third place in black and white photography at the recent Ellenville Art in the Square Show.

Kingston Engineer Pens Book

Author's Ordeal as Patient Leads to Local Family Practice Residency Program

By TIM SCHUSTER
Freeman staff

KINGSTON—A privately published book entitled "Just What The Patient Ordered" by one Christopher Lauren describes the typical ordeal of a hospital patient.

It bears more than a passing resemblance to scenes in area hospitals, and small wonder as the author's real name is Kingston engineer Christus (Chris) Larion and the ordeal is his own.

Larion confided to the Freeman that he writes for relaxation every morning from 4:30 to 7 a.m. and this is his first completed work. It states on the book's flyleaf, "The events in this book actually occurred. The names of places and people have been eliminated to protect the guilty. God will protect the innocent."

As Larion explained it, he has been a member of the board of directors of Kingston Hospital for 12 years but had developed some definite ideas about the value of some medical practices through his extensive dealings with specialists and teams of specialists during the lengthy procedure of diagnosis and ultimate operation of a pinched nerve in his cervical vertebrae.

Daily Freeman for Kingston Hospital by that hospital's board of trustees.

The program, scheduled to begin July 1, 1978, will make Kingston Hospital the first such teaching facility in the Mid-Hudson Valley by bringing qualified medical school graduates into the county for three year residency training for general practice.

In that article, Dr. E.H. Reppert, director of educational services at the hospital, noted that both Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals together have only between 12 and 14 attending physicians in general practice. Their average age is 58 years. He then stated, "We haven't had a new practitioner in the area in 10 years, and 30 to 40 per cent of the population doesn't have a family physician and probably doesn't know how to find one." And he noted that two local family doctors have retired in the 2 1/2 years it took to develop the residency program.

The book by Larion, published this year, applauds a residency program and goes one step further. He said, "I found that our medical schools are crowded and that even straight A students that are qualified to become doctors are denied admission. There simply must be a way to turn out a greater

"The events in this book actually occurred. The names of places and people have been eliminated to protect the guilty. God will protect the innocent."

As it states in the book's epilogue, "It is very difficult to generalize about any group of men. Doctors are human beings. There are good and bad ones. There are selfish ones and generous ones. The point where I feel some generalization is obvious is their lack of broad range thinking. The more restrictive the doctor's special specialty, the narrower his thinking. It appears to me that the research man is so involved with his one project that he believes the solar system revolves about that project....The more the doctor has to do with a broad range of people, the more understanding he appears to be about a wider range of problems."

His solution is "to have a sufficient number of physicians engaged in family practice who would know the patient, his family, his children and provide proper treatment for them all; this would be just what the patient ordered."

He advocates a family practice residency program in the book, something that was announced in the July 12, 1976 issue of the number of physicians and hopefully steer them toward family practice."

He thinks the creation of a "clinical campus" might work, whereby students would attend a regular medical school for their first and second year then be transferred to a state university or other colleges in the state for their third and fourth years. During these third and fourth years they would take actual classes at the university and obtain clinical experience at local hospitals.

Interviewed on the phone, Larion said he would use the word "weird" to describe the attitudes of many specialists, who "work with blinders on" and seem to resent any conflicting opinions on their diagnoses.

His next project is a novel based on fact about the problems of Greek and other immigrants to the United States in the early 1900s.

"No more first person writing, though," he asserted "It was much too hard on myself."

Applications Being Accepted for AFS 1977-78 Programs

KINGSTON—Living abroad with a family is the opportunity awaiting any junior or senior student attending Kingston High School through the Kingston Chapter of the American Field Service International Scholarship program. Applications are now being received by Kenneth Evans at high school for either the summer 1977 program or the school year program for 1977-78.

Dean Brown of Elmendorf Heights is currently spending the year in Belgium. Luisa Granitto spent the summer of 1975 in Germany.

Initial applications must be submitted to Evans by Oct. 1. After filling the application form, the student appears before a selection committee, The Americans Abroad Committee, and is interviewed by four adults and two high school young people who discuss with the candidate qualifications and motivation for this experience. One student from Kingston High School is selected each year to go abroad. The family of the student selected is expected to participate in the financial underwriting of the program.

AFS programs have been providing international learning experiences to young people of all backgrounds for 30 years. Host families are screened by local A.F.S. committees in more than 50 countries. Further information may be secured by contacting Evans at the high school or the Rev. Randall Bosch, pastor of the Fair Street Church, who serves as chairman of the Americans Abroad Selection Committee.

Dean Brown, left, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Brown of Elmendorf Heights, is spending this school year with a family in Belgium as part of the American Field Service international scholarship program.

Adoptive Families Needed for Children of All Ages

KINGSTON—On any given day in New York State, more than 50,000 children are in public care shelters, institutions, "schools" and foster homes. Approximately 16,000 have no home left to go back to and are destined to face a "life-in-limbo" as part of the foster care system.

Foster children, numbering 2,000, are now legally free, adoptable and waiting. Adoptive families are needed for children of all ages but the majority are over seven years of age. Some are handicapped and have special needs. A very high percentage are Black, Hispanic and interracial. They all need a permanent family of their own where they are loved and wanted, where they can plant roots in a community where they can grow to know and love others.

Pictures and descriptions of more than 800 children are now contained in the New York State Adoption Listing Service available through PACT, Parents and Children Together, a citizen parent group in Kingston.

Information may be obtained from Mrs. John A. Locke III, 28 Tietjen Ave., Kingston, or Mrs. Earl Reeder, 6 Cherry Lane, Saugerties.

PACT notes that adoption requirements are changing. It is now recognized that people with varied lifestyles can be good adoptive parents; the qualifications for prospective parents have also changed. New York State has adoption subsidies to help with the extra costs of adding a son or daughter. Adoption agencies, public or voluntary, look for steady adults who really want a child. The goal is the adjustment of the entire adoptive family and the emphasis is on the parents' ability to create an atmosphere of love and security.

4-H Will Observe Anniversary; Resource Fair Set for Friday

KINGSTON—Ulster County 4-H, the Head, Heart, Hands and Health program for youth 8 to 19 years, will be celebrating almost 50 years in Ulster County this season. To kick-off the new year a special 4-H Resource Fair will be held Friday, Oct. 1, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Esopus Town Hall in Port Ewen, Rte. 9-W.

One of the highlights of the evening will be the annual 4-H apple pie bake-off which will begin at 7 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. Steven Clarke, Milton. The best apple pie baker will be chosen to represent Ulster County at the regional Horticultural Fruit Show.

A preview of new 4-H project materials and information available through Cooperative Extension will be on display. Program areas to be highlighted will include embryology, fire safety, Stanley the Talking Bike, automotive, home economics and many more.

More than 25 4-H leaders and their clubs will be at the fair to share successful projects and secrets which they have "learned by doing," in such areas as tanning leather, patching an apple pie, trapunto, handyman. Mrs. Harold Schnatter is chairman. A fun educational evening has been planned for the entire family and friends. The public is invited.

Poems about High Woods Will Be Read at Arts Council

HIGH WOODS—Jean Wrolsen, a resident of High Woods, will read from her nature poems at the meeting of Saugerties Arts Council, Wednesday, Sept. 29, at the community room of the Sawyer Savings Bank, Market Street, Saugerties, 8 p.m. This event to which the public is invited is a continuation of a series of readings by local authors.

Born in Cumberland, Md., Jean Wrolsen is the daughter of the late Armour Curry Anderson, an amateur painter, who first taught her to draw and write verses. Dedication to these pastimes, and later formal training, have resulted in a considerable body of work. Studies were at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, the Art Students League of New York and with the late Harvey Fite.

The poems to be read at Wednesday's meeting were written in and about High Woods. Some of her writings are contained in a booklet, "Lambs of the Catskills," published in 1974. They originated in the High Woods column of the Catskill Mountain Star in the 1960's under the name Bluestone Bard, and have since been seen in the Hudson River Anthology (Vassar College), The War Cry and Tempo (Sunday Freeman). One is to appear, by invitation, in the next issue of The Catskills magazine.

Reading Council To Meet Tonight

NEW PALTZ—Ulster County Reading Council will hold its first meeting of the school year with mini-session workshops at the vanden Berg Learning Center, SUNY at New Paltz. Carolyn Kuhlmann, council president, announces that this meeting and membership is open to all those in the area who are interested in the teaching and improvement of reading. The council meets four times a year.

"Comprehension," Mrs. L. Patch; "Video Taping, a Teaching Tool," Karen Hochberg; "Teaching Reading to the Educationally Handicapped, Title I," Thomas Saunders; "SPARK-Special Parents Aid in Reading with Kids," Ann Chase; "Utilizing Puppets in Language Arts," Bette Archard and Barbara Mainetti.

A business meeting and refreshments will open the program at 7:30 p.m. Workshops will begin at 8 p.m.

The program and leaders will include "A Newspaper as a Teaching Tool," Paul Kenik;

Ali-Norton: The Early Rounds May Tell It All

Many Questions To Be Answered

NEW YORK (UPI) — They are three years older, three years wiser, three years more mature and will have to fight three rounds longer. Those are just some of the reasons neither Muhammad Ali nor Ken Norton expects tonight's title fight to be anything like their two previous ring encounters.

The bout, scheduled to begin at 10:30 p.m. EDT under clear skies and chilly mid-50 degree temperatures in recently-refurbished Yankee Stadium, should answer many questions, most of which center around the deterioration of Ali's physical condition and Norton's history of freezing in important fights.

Nearly a half-billion people are expected to watch the proceedings via "live" closed circuit or satellite-relayed television and in delayed showings. Promoters anticipate at least 40,000 people paying a record gate of more than $3.5 million, shattering by almost one million dollars the previous record established by the second Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney "Long Count" fight at Chicago's Soldiers' Field in 1927.

Ali, beginning to feel the natural physical consequences associated with a 34-year-old man, has trained harder for Norton than any fight since regaining the title from George Foreman in Zaire in October 1974.

After undergoing a stiff six-week training regimen which began in the desert isolation of Show Low, Ariz., continued in the mountains of upstate New York and concluded with a 4 m run in New York's Central Park, Ali expects to weigh about 222 pounds, four or five more than Norton.

Both fighters are in superb physical condition for the scheduled 15-round — Norton having sparred 225 rounds and Ali, a 2-1 betting favorite man-to-man, nearly 100.

"I have never suffered for a fight like I have suffered for this fight," Ali said of his 17th title defense and fourth this year. "I never left the public before, I never watched what I ate before I am at the end of my career. I don't want to go out and lose it."

In order to win it, Ali feels he will have to take advantage of Norton's reputation as a slow starter.

"I don't have to run, dance, slap him, use that pitty-pat stuff and win on points," Ali says. "Norton don't know how to run backwards. I'll stand there and slug it out with him."

It is a puzzle to many why the 31-year-old Norton is a solid underdog to a man he decimated, breaking Ali's jaw in their first bout, and was outpointed by in a controversial decision in their second bout.

That's because no one really knows whether it will be the Norton who whipped Ali the first time and later stopped Jerry Quarry in five rounds, or the Norton who was knocked out in two rounds by George Foreman in their championship bout, floundered for five rounds against a helpless Ron Stander and took 10 rounds to stop Larry Middleton in his most recent bout.

"If he prepared for everyone like he prepares for Ali," trainer Bill Slayton says of Norton, "he would have been the champion a long time ago."

After losing their first fight, Ali said he underestimated Norton, had parted all night and fought when he was barely able to walk. After rallying in the 12th round to win the second fight, but not in fashionable style, Ali said his hands hurt, that he was shot full of novocaine before the fight and couldn't feel his punches registering, thus throwing off the inborn mechanism which allows a fighter to instinctively follow up a good punch with a series of combinations.

"I think before this fight we should have a complete physical so there's no excuses," says Norton. "It's gonna be a hectic fight. Ali's gonna come out punching early. I won't start slow this time. I will be there earlier."

"If he's gonna be a stationary target now, I can hit him twice as much and twice as hard and I plan to punish him quite a bit. I'm gonna do all I can to win the fight and if I run out of gas, I'm gonna lose."

For their efforts, Ali has been guaranteed $6 million and $100,000 in expenses plus 50 percent of all income over $9 million, while Norton is guaranteed $1 million plus 5 percent of all income over $9 million.

Sawyers, KHS In Thick of DCSL Race

SAUGERTIES — The DCSL soccer race got a little more scrambled Monday as a couple of upsets elsewhere inflated the significance of victories by both Saugerties and Kingston High.

The Sawyers contained John Jay, 3-0, and the Tigers stopped Poughkeepsie, 2-0. While those battles were in progress, Rhinebeck assumed first place with a 4-1 upset over Arlington, and Spackenkill knocked off heavily favored Roosevelt by the same score.

"It looks like it's a pretty even league," said Sawyer coach Tony Elia. "Eight or ten teams could win it," echoed Tiger coach Ron Chaisson.

Both local squads played like contenders Monday. Saugerties continued to play a strong defensive game while Bob Benzenhoefer shot all three goals to boost his five game total to eight.

"I guess you could say we dominated," said Elia. "We expected to in a way, but we're still taking the teams as they come."

Benzenhoefer fired his first marker at the ninth minute of the contest with an assist from Tom Carr. He doubled the margin at the 21 minute mark with Dave Martin setting up the shot.

John Jay, outshot 31-9 for the game, never had a chance after that, and Benzenhoefer padded the issue with a successful penalty kick in the second half.

Elia, whose team improved to 3-1-1, remained slightly surprised with the Sawyers' success. "We've been fortunate," he said. "We don't have the depth, and we're small in stature." But Saugerties has played defense. Elia counts only one legitimate goal against his troops in the campaign to date.

Kingston handled Poughkeepsie just as easily on the Pioneer field, bouncing several shots off the posts that would have made the final score higher.

"The team is definitely improving," said Chaisson who was particularly pleased with the progress shown in his young fullback line. "Yesterday was our best game, no doubt about it."

Fred Muller, Jimmy Brown and Jim Carroll are the three junior KHS fullbacks, and they along with senior Bill Glennon and keeper Malcolm Schick, combined for the shutout.

The Jordan brothers, Emil and David, took care of the offense. Emil hit ten minutes into the first half off Eric ten Broeke's assist, and David drilled one unassisted at 20:00 of the second half. The Jordan act has now accounted for the Tigers' last six goals.

Kingston had a 28-11 shots-on-goal edge, and Schick squashed the Pioneers' best effort when he stopped a penalty kick attempt.

The summaries:

John Jay	3	0-0
Saugerties	2	1-3
Scoring: Benzenhoefer (Carr), 9:00, Benzenhoefer (Martin), 21:00, Benzenhoefer (penalty kick), 79:00

A's Throw Everything at KC, Including Fists

By UPI

The Oakland A's, scrapping to avert a Kansas City heat of their American League West crown, can never be accused of malingering.

They threw everything at the Royals Monday night, including their fists, in taking an 8-3 victory in a contest interrupted for 45 minutes by a sixth-inning free-for-all.

Vida Blue (18-12), who pitched the second-place A's to a fourth win in their last five games and to within 3½ games of the leaders, summed it up:

"We're down to our last breath and everything goes. If it means winning, you've got to try."

Blue, whom manager Chuck Tanner calls "the Koufax of this era," said he had control problems and the long fight didn't help. He gave up 10 hits.

The fistcuffs erupted after Oakland took a 5-3 lead in the sixth on Sal Bando's homer. Losing pitcher Dennis Leonard (17-10) hit Don Baylor with a pitch and Baylor stormed toward the mound. Both benches immediately emptied and, in the fighting which followed, A's outfielder Claudell Washington decked Leonard. He left the game, as did Leonard.

pennant race."

A's first baseman Ron Fairly said Baylor had been hit five times in the last three games.

Fairly paced Oakland at the plate with a solo homer and a double. He also turned in the game's key defensive play when he scooped up John Mayberry's grounder and threw out Al Cowens at home plate in the sixth. Cowens had tripled.

"That's the finest play I've ever seen by a first baseman in my 30 years in the game," said Tanner, describing his 38-year-old veteran as "a little short fat kid who can do everything."

Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog was asked if he was getting tired of carting victory champagne around from city to city — the Royals have dropped five of their last six games and their magic number to clinch a tie for the division crown is still three.

"I don't think we have any with us," he answered. "We don't drink anyway."

Oakland hosts the Royals tonight and Wednesday night.

The only other scheduled AL game, Detroit at Cleveland, was rained out.

In National League action, Los Angeles blanked Houston 2-0, Philadelphia whipped St. Louis 9-1, San Diego edged Cincinnati 5-3 and New York routed Montreal 10-3 in a rain-shortened contest. A second game between the Mets and the Expos was rained out.

Dodgers 2, Astros 0

Don Sutton tossed a four-hitter for his 21st victory and Bill Russell broke up a scoreless pitching duel in the seventh inning when he singled home Steve Garvey to lead the Dodgers to victory over the Astros. Sutton, who has lost nine, notched his fourth shutout and 14th complete game.

Phillies 9, Cardinals 1

Jim Kaat broke a personal six-game losing streak and Greg Luzinski, Ollie Brown and Larry Bowa knocked in two runs apiece to spark the Phillies' rout of the Cardinals. Kaat, whose last win was Aug. 21, held St. Louis to five hits before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

Padres 5, Reds 3

Doug Rader's two-out pop fly single drove in Mike Champion and Mike Ivie with a pair of runs in the bottom of the eighth to give the Padres a triumph over the Reds. Tom Griffin scattered seven hits in going the distance to gain his eighth win against six losses.

Mets 10, Expos 3

John Milner hit two homers, including a grand slam, and pitcher Jon Matlack went 3-for-4 with two RBI to highlight the Mets' victory over the Expos. Milner's club-record third grand slam this season was the big blow in a five-run sixth inning and helped Matlack to his 17th win.

Will LaSorda Get the Job?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Walter Alston, by his own choice, will step down as manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers at the end of this season after 23 years at the reins.

Alston, 64, will stay with the club in another executive capacity and will not seek a job as manager elsewhere.

With eyes glistening, Alston made it clear at a clubhouse news conference Monday that he will be a Dodger to the end.

Dodger President Peter O'Malley preceded Alston with the announcement of his retirement and then the grizzled manager said:

"I've been in baseball for 41 years and it's been awfully good to me. This has been a pretty big day. I had three birdies playing golf for the first time in my life and now I'm announcing that I'm stepping down as manager. I told Peter this afternoon to give somebody else a chance to manage the club."

"I'm going to stay in the Dodger organization."

Tom LaSorda, Dodger third base coach who once said he "bleeds Dodger blue," has been waiting in the wings to succeed Alston. LaSorda, 49, a high spirited guy who is liked and trusted by the Dodger players, helped develop many of the current stars while he was a manager in the minors.

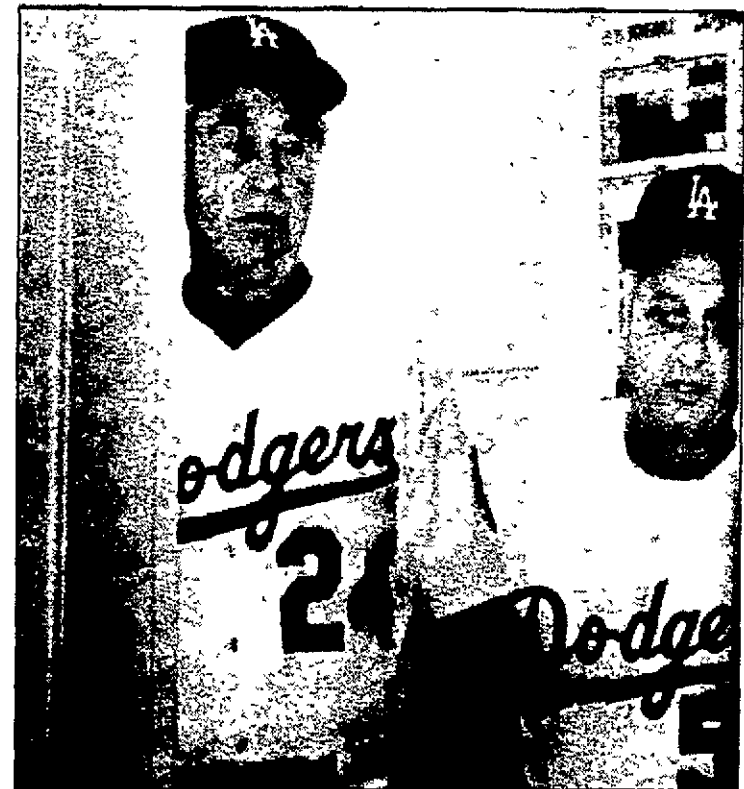

Second baseman Dave Lopes was one of the first players to make it clear he feels LaSorda should get the job.

"In my opinion, Tom LaSorda is the most qualified to manage. If somebody else gets the job, it would be an injustice to Tommy."

Peter O'Malley and his father Walter, the board chairman, perhaps did not want to announce a successor immediately because that would detract from the story of Alston's retirement.

Peter said he tried to get Alston to change his mind but could not do so.

"Walter told me this afternoon of his decision to retire as manager," the Dodger president said. "Walter has made great contributions to the Dodger organization and we want him to remain with us to assist in our baseball opera-

Alston said he decided to retire as manager when he came to the realization that the 1976 Dodger team would not overtake Cincinnati this year in the National League West.

The Dodgers are in second place with an 89-67 record 10 games back of the Reds.

Alston made no mention of newspaper criticism of his handling of the team. Recently in an unusual outburst for this quiet man, he challenged a sports writer to a fist fight for asking what Alston thought was an unfair question.

Alston has been criticized for his conservative strategy but has never budged in his philosophy of the game.

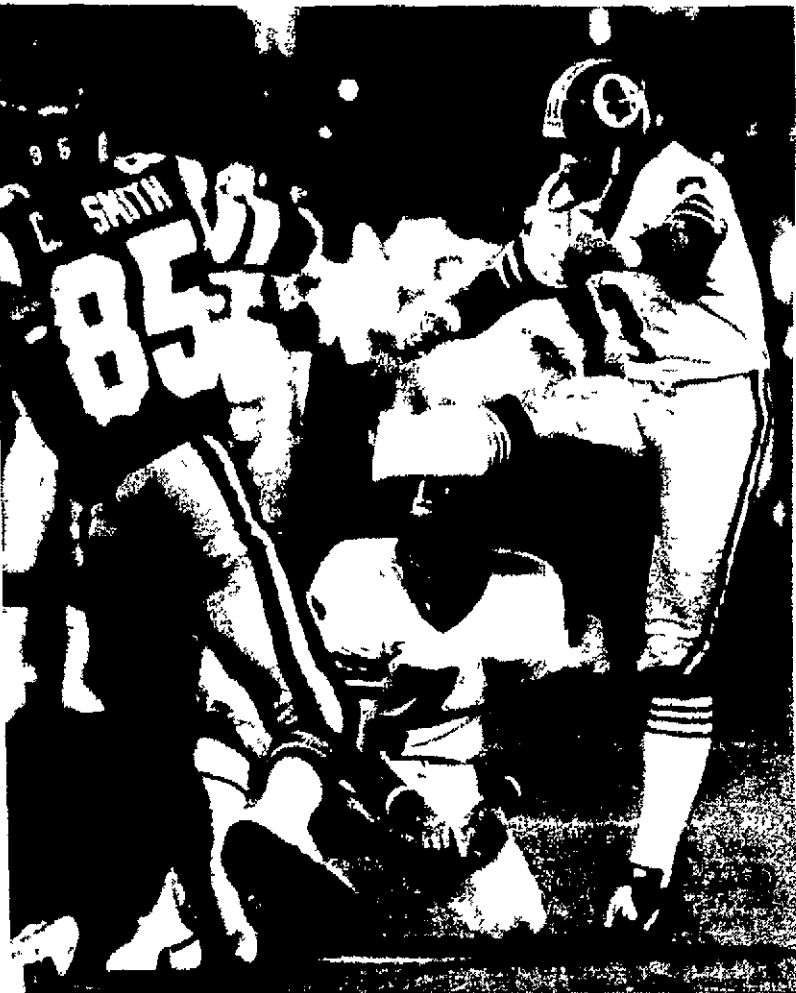

Alston customarily has been frank and honest and unemotional.

Typical was one of his statements at the news conference evaluating the current club.

"We have an excellent team, strong in the infield with good pitching but we didn't have the punch in the outfield."

The unknown from Darrrtown, Ohio, where he still lives on a farm in the off-season, goes down in baseball history as one of the great managers.

He was never much as a player though. A first baseman, he had one at-bat with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1936 and struck out.

Mike Moseley boots winner

Moseley Earns Keep With Pressure Kick

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Washington Redskins Coach George Allen doesn't believe in keeping late hours, but he'll make an exception if he gets the results he got early today.

The Redskins and the Philadelphia Eagles kept 60,131 fans and a Monday night national television audience up to the wee hours of the morning in a 20-17 sudden-death overtime thriller that Washington won on a 29-yard field goal by Mark Moseley at 12:49 of the overtime period.

The overtime was made necessary after Eagles' quarterback Mike Boryla threw a 41-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Smith with 1:07 remaining in regulation time and Washington seemingly on the way to a 17-10 win.

Moseley's winning field goal was set up by an interception late in sudden death by the Redskins' Eddie Brown, which gave Washington the ball on the Eagles' 22. It was Boryla's fifth interception of the game.

After four running plays took Washington to the Eagles' 12, Moseley, who played for Philadelphia in 1970 before being traded, booted the ball through to give Washington a 3-0 season record and a first place tie with Dallas in the Eastern Division of the National Football Conference.

"There's pressure," Moseley said after his game-winning. "But I'm getting paid for pressure, just like a businessman. A businessman has to be successful and if I don't perform I can lose my job.

"I get paid for pressure."

The Redskins were in three sudden death games last year, two of which they lost. And Allen lamented about "too many overtimes" in the locker room.

"But it's good to win," he said. "I thought our defense was outstanding."

He said he was not surprised at the tough game the Eagles (1-2), trying to rebuild, gave him.

Three of the Redskins' interceptions were made by another former Eagle, cornerback Joe Lavender, who was traded to Washington in the preseason by Coach Dick Vermeil after failing to report to camp on time because of a contract dispute.

"I'm a Redskin now," a happy Lavender said the obvious in the locker room, where he received the game ball.

Vermeil, who saw his Eagles squander a 10-0 lead in 62 seconds late in the second quarter, said, "We did a good job of beating ourselves."

"The Skins played well enough to beat us, but you can't beat many teams the way we played. We turned it over bad at the end."

"We can talk about what could have been, and should have been, but look at the score."

Vermeil said there was "no good news when you lose" but Eagles linebacker Frank Lemaster saw something positive in the heart-breaking loss.

"We grew up a little more," he said.

Pelham Raps 658 In Mid-City 4-Man

KINGSTON — Ed Pelham and Dave Ferraro dueling for the top spot in the Mid City 4-Man loop. Neither man slipped under 200 all night, but it was Pelham's 263 final that gave him a 658 total and an 18 pin margin over Ferraro.

Ferraro hit 234-640, while Bob Burgher produced another big slam with 226-619.

In top performances elsewhere, Ben Sanford drilled 231-609 in the Husband and Wife with Gloria Nagele's 204-570 leading the distaff side. Bill Haley popped 255-601 in the Friday Commercial, Rich Brocco cracked 223-621 in the Booster Mixed and Vince Schrader rolled 222-614 in Mannie's Barber Shop League.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's 15 rounds at Yankee Stadium tonight if it goes the limit, and if it does, Muhammad Ali says Ken Norton's going to be the new champion, but you know Ali, he likes to talk a lot, so don't go betting all your money on everything he says.

He predicts he'll flatten Norton by the fifth round, otherwise he'll lose the title on a decision, the implication being Norton is in better physical shape than him.

That could be true. Ali has a little roll around his middle, Norton does not, and I'm a devout believer that the better conditioned man generally prevails all other things being equal, but right there's the catch because I don't think Norton is the equal of Ali in so many other departments.

A week or so ago, Ali was troubled by some stiffness around the neck, but that's completely gone now. He's in good enough condition so that there is no earthly reason for him to say Norton will win if the fight goes the limit other than the fact he always enjoys injecting an element of suspense or mystery in everything he does. It helps him alleviate some of the boredom.

Ali has never had much trouble going 15 rounds. He has done so seven times, losing only once, to Joe Frazier five years ago. Norton has never gone 15 rounds in his 40 professional fights, and if you'd like to get some kind of line on how he looked to a neutral observer preparing for this one, Joe Louis changed his mind after watching him work and picked Ali to beat him after originally saying he thought Norton would win.

Maybe you've noticed where Ali isn't talking about retiring so much anymore. There's a reason for it. His manager, Herbert Muhammad, told him to knock it off because his constant talk about quitting wasn't serving any useful purpose and people were growing tired of hearing it.

"If you're going to quit, quit; if not, don't talk about it until you do," his manager told him.

Ali is 34 but isn't about to quit. "I can't quit," he says. "I got too many things I wanna do yet."

Some years after he finally did quit, Joe Louis talked about how difficult it is to hang up the gloves for good, and speaking about it, he said there comes a time where every fighter realizes he should retire but goes on fighting anyway.

"You know you gotta quit sometime and if you don't someone's finally gonna beat you, but you always say to yourself, 'it's not gonna be tonight, and it ain't gonna be this bum,'" was the way Joe Louis put it.

Ali doesn't call Norton a bum. Still there is little doubt in his mind he can beat him even though Norton has three years on him and is responsible for one of the two losses he has suffered in his 54 fights.

Man-to-man, Ali is a 2 to 1 favorite and should be more than that, which isn't to say I think Ali is invincible. It's simply that he's an excellent boxer, considerably better than Norton, he's much more imaginative, more experienced and more resourceful when it comes to working his way out trouble or coping with any emergency. I've seen Norton when he's having trouble and he's something less than inspiring handling it. Ali finds ways to win even when there seems to be none.

He's Houdini, Hairbreath Harry and Superman all rolled into one, and even though he makes my ears tired whenever he goes around hollering he's the greatest, I certainly give him this—there's nobody better than him around today.

Norton broke Ali's jaw when he beat him in their first fight at San Diego in March, 1973, and although that could happen again, I don't think it's likely. Six months after their first fight, Ali won a controversial decision in their second one at Los Angeles even though he went into that fight with bad hands, which are okay now.

I have heard Ken Norton say he has everything to gain and nothing to lose, and that could be true as far as it goes. I don't think, however, that's enough to make him the new world heavyweight champion.

If Ali keeps fighting long enough, I have every confidence somebody will come along eventually and beat him. I don't see Ken Norton doing it tonight.

The way I see it, Muhammad Ali will keep his title tonight, even if the fight does go the full distance, and I wouldn't be at all surprised if it does.

CENTREVILLE, MASS. (UPI) — Two Ivy League standouts, Jim Kubecki of Harvard and Ed Backus were named Players of the Week in the third weekly ECAC Division I All Star Team.

Kubecki, a senior quarterback, rushed for 140 yards, two touchdowns and a two-point conversion in route to Harvard's 24-13 win over Massachusetts.

Sports Mailbag

There Will Be Baseball at UCCC

Dear Sports Editor:

Is it possibly true that Ulster County Community College will not have a baseball team in 1977 due to monetary problems and lack of a coach?

The reason I ask is that my son is attending UCCC for the next two years and was looking forward to trying out for the team. Also, several local top baseball players from the Legion teams and a couple of the Kingston Braves are attending UCCC.

With all the interest in baseball in the area, it would be a shame if there was not any

baseball at UCCC.

I am wondering if you could look into this and report it in your daily column in the Freeman.

RAYMOND A. MATHISEN
Red Hook

Your fears are unjustified, according to UCCC AD Al DiBernardo. There will be a baseball season at UCCC this spring, he says, and the team will play a relatively large schedule of 23 or 24 games. Ulster still is without a coach, but the college is studying applications and should make an announcement before long. —Sports Editor.

Conversations With a Coach

Now, many of you out there probably think that being a high school coach can be a nerve-racking job — physically tiring, emotionally draining, vocally exhausting. Well, you're all wrong, each and every one of you. Coaching is EASY.

Forget all that stuff about coaches being under pressure to win, about losing sleep over officials' calls or upcoming games — propaganda! All a coach has to do is be able to understand different types of logic and conversation — a piece of cake.

However, since not many people are aware of the talent that coaches possess, I've decided to give you some snatches of actual conversations involving high school coaches. I'll call our coach "Knute," although that's not his real name...

PRINCIPAL: Fred, I want to talk to you about the team. You know, we're not doing all that well.

KNUTE: Yes, I know, but the kids are really trying. We'll win some games. After all, we've played the top two teams in the nation, plus the Oakland Raiders' final cuts.

PRINCIPAL: I realize that, but we do want to bring home a winner to Diddledeyvale, don't we? What was it that Vince Lombardi said, "Defeat is worse than death, because you have to live with it."?

KNUTE: I don't think...
PRINCIPAL: Well, you know what I mean. Get tough with these kids, they'll come around. Knock some heads together if you have to. And another thing, we've been getting some lousy calls against us. Don't be afraid to jump on these officials. We're behind you 1,000 percent!

KNUTE: I see.

PARENT: Listen, what's the idea of kicking my son off the team?

KNUTE: He was disrespectful, missed practices, and violated our training rules. Plus, he wasn't putting out the effort.

PARENT: Listen, my kid can run rings around the other guys you have. He says the problem with the team is you! You don't know how to coach!

KNUTE: We've won more games under me than with any other coach, and please stop poking me with your finger.

PARENT: I won't you to restate my boy!

KNUTE: I won't do that, and stop poking me.

PARENT: I want you to resign for the good of the team!

KNUTE: I won't do that either, and if you poke me with that finger once more, you're gonna lose it.

PARENT! I'm going to the school board about this!

KNUTE: That's nice...

BOARD MEMBER: Knute, Mr. Bleat called me up after the game on Saturday and told me about your kicking his son off the team for no apparent reason.

KNUTE: His son missed half the practices with no excuse, showed up drunk three times, and swore at me in front of the team. I mean, a coach has to maintain the rules. Otherwise, there'd be chaos.

MEMBER: Yes, but remember the primary purpose of high school athletics is to have fun! Don't be so hard on the boys; this isn't the pros, you know. Ease up a little.

KNUTE: I see.

MEMBER: And what's this about your threatening to break Mr. Bleat's arm if he disagreed with you?

KNUTE: Did he say that?

KNUTE: But I didn't...
MEMBER: Let's forget it, shall we? You were probably just upset over losing the game. But there is one other thing — about this arguing with the referee's calls. I wish you wouldn't do that. It creates a bad impression for the boys. I mean, they have to learn to respect authority.

KNUTE: I see.

MEMBER: Good. Well, I'll see you at the game this Saturday. Give 'em hell, and let's see if we can't bring home a victory this time. Remember, we're all behind you!

KNUTE: That's nice to know...

Masters' Sponsor Sues Insurance Co.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The sponsor of the Masters Golf Tournament has filed a lawsuit charging an insurance company with "deceiving and misleading the public" by naming a golf tournament the Ladies Masters.

Augusta National Golf Club Inc. filed suit in federal court Monday against the against the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

The suit said the firm planned to sponsor he Ladies Masters at Moss Creek Plantation near Hilton Head, S.C., next spring.

It alleged the defendant was "seeking to trade on the good will and public acceptance developed by the plaintiffs over many years" by using name "Masters" in the tournament.

The lawsuit asked that the court to permanently enjoin the insurance firm from using the name in connection with the Hilton Head tournament or any other tournament.

The Augusta club contended the defendants' actions "constitute an infringement upon the plaintiffs' exclusive right to the use of the term 'Masters' and also constitutes unfair competition."

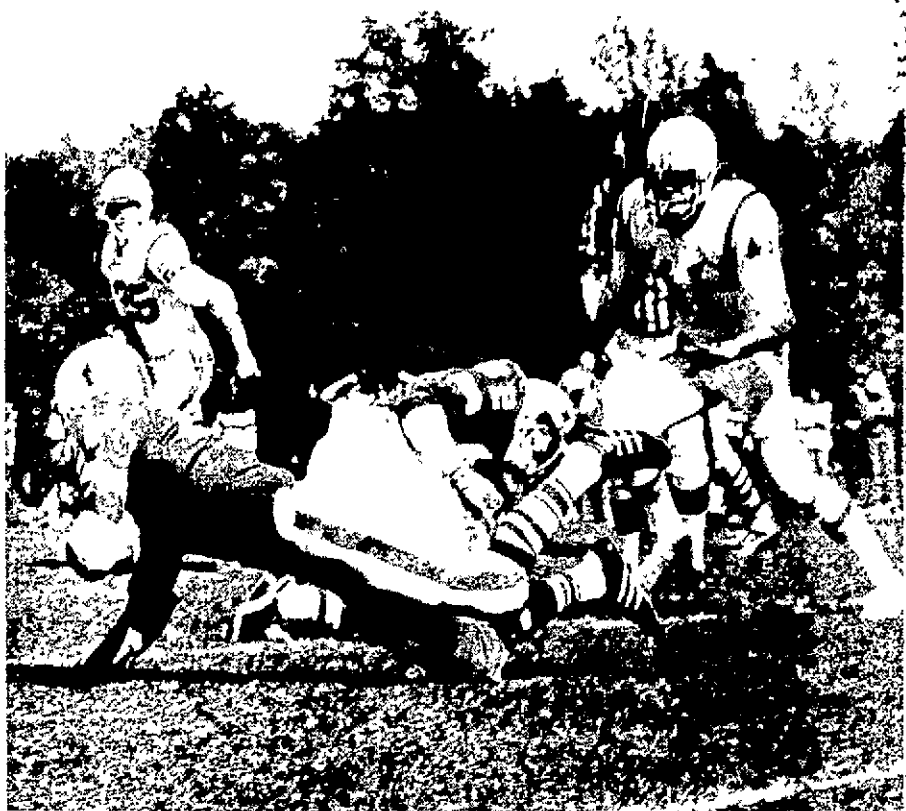

"The use of the name 'Masters' by the defendant is an attempt to encroach on the business and good will of the plaintiff with the intention of deceiving and misleading the public."

The suit charged the insurance firm's motive was to "enhance and bolster the image of the defendants' annual golf tournament and to promote real estate sales."

It said in last February, the defendants notified the Augusta club that the name of the Hilton Head tournament would be changed to the Women's International, but the defendant announced in August the event would be called the "Ladies Masters at Moss Creek Plantation for April, 1977."

Michigan Takes Command

NEW YORK (UPI) — Michigan's Wolverines, their arch rival Ohio State stung by defeat, walked off with a lion's share of the first place votes Monday to take a commanding lead in the third week of college football ratings by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The top-rated Wolverines, who out-rated Ohio State by 80 points last week, took advantage of the Buckeyes' narrow 22-21 home defeat by Missouri to pick off 39 of the 42 first place votes — eight more than last week — and outpoint second-rated UCLA by over 100 points, 417-309. The remaining three first place votes all went to Pittsburgh, which was third with 292 points.

Ohio State, meanwhile, which will have a chance to regain some of its lost ranking this week when it entertains second-rated UCLA, dropped from second to eighth. For the Buckeyes, it was their lowest rating in five years.

Defending champion Oklahoma similarly moved up a notch to fourth place in the wake of the Ohio State plunge and the Sooners came within a point of overtaking Pittsburgh as well, finishing with 291. Nebraska, which crushed TCU 64-10, was fifth, while Georgia, a 20-12 victor over highly-regarded South Carolina, improved a notch to sixth.

Maryland was seventh and Alabama and Missouri completed the top 10.

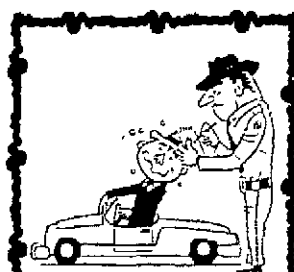

Unbeaten Kansas, one of the many surprise teams of this early season, headed the second ten, followed by Southern California, LSU, North Carolina and Notre Dame. For Southern California, it was an improvement of three places, while LSU, 31-0 winner over Rice, jumped two notches.

Notre Dame was not ranked last week, but apparently, off two straight victories, is ready to assume the national rating which has always been part of its tradition.

Boston College, Florida, Houston, Tulsa and Texas completed the second ten.

Dropping out of the top 20

this week for the first time in two years were Penn State and Texas A&M — both upset victims last week.

Curfew Imposed In Beacon

BEACON, N.Y. (UPI) — The city council voted unanimously Monday night to impose a seven-day-a-week, 11 p.m. curfew on youths under 17 in this Dutchess County city.

The action was taken, officials said, at the request of downtown area businessmen and was aimed at cutting down vandalism in the section.

Youths going to or from "sanctioned" events, such as school dances or jobs, would be exempted as long as they carried a note from an adult showing why they were on the street, the council decided.

Under the law, parents of youths caught violating the curfew would be subject to a fine.

Beacon became the second Dutchess community to pass a youth curfew in recent weeks, joining the town of Pine Plains.
